Truman Bars Weakening U. S. Stand In Europe

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Truman last night said he saw no reason to relax American efforts in foreign affairs as a result of the Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris.

The President issued his reminder in a formal statement a few hours after he had gone to National Airport in the broiling heat to welcome Secretary Acheson home and to congratulate him on "an excellent job."

The results of the Paris meeting, the President said, "reveal the correctness" of the policies the United States has been following abroad. Then, without naming specific policies, such as the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Treaty, he declared:

Plans Press Conference

"The results again underline the necessity of pursuing these policies with calmness and determination, as the only sure road to the establishment of conditions in the world where peace and freedom can live and endure.

"I am confident that the American people see this as clearly as I do, and that there will be no slacking of our efforts to achieve the great task which history has placed upon our country."

Secretary Acheson is expected to repeat this reminder, in more direct and urgent terms, when he reports to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in executive session this morning.

He intends to appear before the House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday morning and hold a press conference in the afternoon.

The President's statement and Acheson's appearances on Capitol Hill constitute a change in the methods used by Secretaries Byrnes and Marshall in reporting to the American people after Foreign Ministers' meetings.

Acheson Goes to White House

Byrnes and Marshall reported privately to the President on such occasions, but then went on the radio with reports to the public. This time Acheson went directly to the White House for a private report to the President; Mr. Truman then issued a public statement on his own, as if to demonstrate that he is constitutionally in charge of the foreign policy of the United States.

The President's statement, of about 1000 words, was a soberly worded assessment of the successes and failures of the four weeks' session in Paris.

Starting by saying that "the Secretary of State has given me daily reports, and now a final report" on the Paris discussions, the President expressed pleasure at the "genuine progress" made toward a treaty with Austria.

"This," he said, "is a development which I know will be most welcome to the people of Austria.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN OF THE HOUR—Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark (left) and Mrs. Perle Mesta congratulate each other. Mrs. Clark, former actress, businesswoman and banker of Richland, Kans., was sworn in as the new Treasurer of the United States. Mrs. Mesta, noted Washington hostess who helped raise funds for the Democratic presidential campaign, was nominated by President Truman to be United States Minister to Luxembourg

Egress Rules Adopted for New Building

The District Commissioners yesterday adopted the long-delayed fire egress code for new buildings, but abandoned a three-year effort to enforce the code on existing structures.

The decision will save the bulk of an estimated 100-million-dollar repair bill for District landlords who faced prosecution because their structures did not meet the strict provisions of the act.

Acting on a memorandum prepared by the Engineer Commissioner, Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, the Commissioners decided that enforcement of the code might force thousands of landlords into bankruptcy, and that, therefore, it would be "impracticable" in operation.

Instead, General Young said, he hopes to meet soon with a citizens committee and prepare new regulations which probably will deal largely with buildings by category, both as to type of business conducted and type of construction.

"My guess is," said General Young, "that we may be able to extend greater exemptions to some types of buildings where experience has shown the risk to be small. I feel that all of us have not given sufficient thought to the measure of the risk we are trying to guard against."

General Young said he hopes the new regulations will be formulated within six to eight months, certainly by the time the next District budget comes before Congress.

Asked whether failure to enforce the strict egress code on existing buildings might endanger those who use schools and similar public buildings, General Young pointed out that the fire marshal makes periodic checks of all public buildings including schools.

He said that as a result of such checks approximately $15,000 was spent two years ago to remedy con-

Mrs. Mesta Nominated U. S. Envoy

One woman yesterday became the first feminine Treasurer of the United States, while another was nominated by President Truman to be Minister to Luxembourg.

Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, the Richland, Kans., banker-businesswoman, took the oath as Treasurer to succeed the late William A. Julian.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, Newport, R. I., and Washington, society leader and Democratic Party fund raiser, was given the diplomatic assignment to Luxembourg.

The oath-taking ceremony for Mrs. Clark, onetime actress with such performers as May Robson and Pauline Frederick, drew many women prominent in political life, including: Mrs. Mesta, Frances Perkins, Civil Service Commissioner and former Labor Secretary; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint; Frieda B. Hennock, Federal Communications Commissioner, and Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Clark's big concern about her new $10,300 job was how to reduce the size of her signature so it can be engraved on all paper money.

She promised the Treasury to practice signing her name to shorten its length, but said if she couldn't shorten it enough to suit them, she will use one or two initials.

The lively, chic new woman official, 49, said she had studied penmanship as a child but "like being exposed to measles, it never took."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder stood with Mrs. Clark as she took the oath and later became the first to congratulate her.

She wore a black dress, cocoa brown jacket, white blouse, black shoes, a white hat and gloves.

The Luxembourg nomination of Mrs. Mesta had been forecast for several weeks since the President

New Traffic Laws Adopted For District

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

New, uniform traffic laws, eliminating conflict in some regulations and redefining others, will go into effect in Washington September 1.

The new regulations were adopted by the District Commissioners yesterday following a conference with George Keneipp, director of Vehicles and Traffic, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Police Superintendent, and other police officials.

The new regulations are expected to eliminate confusion between District and out-of-town motorists on driving procedure.

Here are some of the highlights:

A defendant arrested for speeding will be given a chance to convince the judge that his speed did not constitute a public hazard; for example, a motorist traveling at 2:30 a. m. on a main thoroughfare when there is no other traffic.

For the first time, the law spells out the responsibility of pedestrians to yield the right of way to emergency vehicles, and legalizes present practice of permitting police, ambulance and fire engines to slow down, rather than stop, at red lights and stop signs.

The rules permit arrest of persons proceeding at "unreasonably slow speed" when their speed impedes traffic.

Traffic signs must be "sufficient-

Johnson Hits Critics, Lays Policy Line

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

By word and action yesterday Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson spelled out an American security policy based on a "balanced team" of land, sea and air forces.

With President Truman seated on the platform behind him, lending added significance to what he said, Johnson delivered his first major policy speech as Defense chief at graduation exercises of the National War College.

He hit out at critics of himself and the armed forces and at the same time poured oil on the troubled waters that have been stirred up since he took office three months ago. And he made it very plain that military spending must be held within budget limitations.

Gives Concrete Evidence

Then, in these two actions, Johnson gave concrete evidence that he intends to be no Air Force partisan but a firm backer of the "defense team" concept:

1. Announced that with the President's approval, Congress will be asked for an additional 80 million dollars next year to modernize two aircraft carriers.

The funds will come from money made available by canceling the construction of the Navy's super carrier USS United States. Alteration of the two Essex-type flattops will make them capable of handling heavier and longer range planes now coming along.

(2) Confirmed reports that he had urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to cut back the Air Force to 48 groups—the level recommended by President Truman—instead of the 58 groups voted by the House. In this way about three-quarters of a billion dollars can be shaved from 1950 defense spending — close to the amount added by the House.

Johnson announced the Administration decision to modernize two more of the 27,000-ton Essex-class carriers as an impromptu addition to his War College speech.

'Strong Navy' Policy

He cited the new plan—approved only yesterday morning—as evidence that current military policy calls for a "strong Navy." His order canceling construction of the super carrier, said Johnson, "has been twisted into a charge of persecution against the Navy."

"Some partisans of that service have exaggerated this action and have represented it as part of conspiracy either to sink the Navy's air arm or to reduce the Navy to a second class role.

"In their campaign of terror against further unification of the armed forces, they have aroused false issues without the substance of truth."

But while he was striking back at such critics and insisting that one service can no longer be the "sole arbiter" of its own needs, the security policy laid down by the Defense Chief generally was reassuring to those who feared too great a concentration on air power.

The way to end interservice conflicts, said Johnson, "is not a simple task of knocking heads together." He absolved most top-ranking officers of the charge of bickering, declaring:

"With the exception of a few unregenerate warriors of the old-

'Assures Passage,' Says Walter

House Democrats Vote 147-8 To Support Housing Measure

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Caucusing House Democrats last night voted 147 to 8 to support the Administration's slum clearance and public housing bill with the number of units cut to the Senate-adopted figure of 810,000.

"This assures passage of the housing bill," Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.), caucus chairman, said.

The housing debate opens today in the House, and a vote, Walter said, is expected on Friday.

The caucus vote, Walter said, was taken in an attempt to sound out party sentiment for the amended bill. The caucus was not binding upon the individual members, he declared.

The Democratic vote, however, spurred Administration hopes that passage of the housing bill may give President Truman his first major victory in his domestic program since Congress convened.

The bill has already passed the Senate by an overwhelming majority.

The caucus agreed to support extension of Titles I and VI of the housing bill for 60 days. These two provisions dealing with FHA loans are already in existing law, which expires June 30. The caucus voted to extend them pending permanent legislation.

The Senate extended the Federal mortgage insurance program by a resolution yesterday.

The caucus also voted an additional 500 million for FHA loans for the building of single and multiple family dwelling units under Title II of the Housing Act.

Mr. Truman had asked for the construction of 1,050,000 low-rent public housing units in seven years, but the Senate adopted the figure of 810,000, which last night was supported by House Democrats.

Walter told reporters that the 147-to-8 vote was on the request of House Democratic Leader John McCormack of Massachusetts, who wanted an informal poll on the support he could expect for the measure if it were trimmed to the Senate figures.

Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee agreed to offer the amendments to the bill.

House Democrats expect to pick up as many as 25 Republican votes to clinch passage of their bill.

Heat at 93 Fells 7 on 1st Summer Day

Seven persons were treated for heat prostration here yesterday—the first day of summer and the hottest day of the year.

Admitted at Casualty Hospital were:

Francis Jenkins, 34, of 1609 16th st. ne., who was unconscious for more than four hours after being found lying on the street at 13th and H sts. ne.

Mrs. Ida Curtis, 40, of 2212 Rand pl. ne., who was overcome while working at her home.

Five others were treated and released.

They were: At Emergency Hospital, George Lunsford, 35, 1241 22d st. ne.; at Freedmen's Hospital, Coleman Fields, 36, of 1727 10th st. nw.; James White, 36, of 1116 5th st. ne.; Edwin Johnson, 49, of 414 Richmond st. nw. and Calandus Bridges, 25, of 49th and East Capitol sts.

Summer made an appropriate debut yesterday at 2:03 p. m. daylight time when the sun reached its most northerly point.

The sun, which rose at 5:42 a. m. daylight time, called it a day at 8:37 p. m. daylight, after 14 hours and 55 minutes of broiling heat which reached a year's high of 93 at 1:56 p. m.

Hottest days on record for the date occurred in 1923 and 1933 when the thermometer went to 98.

The weatherman saw some slight chance of relief today if predicted thundershowers materialize. He foresaw a high of nearly 90 degrees, "hot and humid."

Today's sunup and sundown will be at the same times as yesterday's, the weather bureau said, giving rise to an argument as to which is really the longest day.

A spokesman for the Naval Observatory, which, among other things, concerns itself with such matters, said that the question is virtually insoluble since the condition of the atmosphere "affects the position of the sun by refraction." Anyway, he said, they don't figure such things as closely as split seconds.

Czech State Brands Beran Law Violator

Prague, June 21 (AP).—Czechoslovakia's Communist government threatened tonight to take legal action against Archbishop Josef Beran. It accused him of trying to wreck the nation's peace, and disrupt its economy.

Premier Antonin Zapotocky told the country in a radio address that the government would not tolerate "violations of law" by the Roman Catholic hierarchy, and added: "Legal action will be taken against all saboteurs, provocateurs and instigators of discord and unrest."

He mentioned Archbishop Beran by name, and linked him with other "church dignitaries."

Beran Accused of 'Lies'

Thus the church-state war moved closer to a parallel with the case of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, who was accused of anti-state activity and subsequently tried and sentenced to life imprisonment in Communist Hungary last February.

Zaptocky accused Archbishop Beran of ordering Catholic priests to spread a "concoction of untruthful lies" against the government.

The broadcast followed a cabinet meeting at which the government apparently decided on a quick fight to the finish with Beran. The archbishop is resisting what he says are Communist plans for getting control of the church and severing its ties with the Vatican.

Red Press Attack

Zaptocky did not disclose what immediate steps were intended against the archbishop. The government moves might mean his arrest and trial unless he backs down—something which he said Saturday he never would do.

The Communist press hinted today at such action. It accused the Catholic hierarchy of terrorist tac-

Judge Threatens To Evict Her Mother, Who Then Decides to Stay and Hear All

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The prosecutor in the Judith Coplon espionage trial yesterday asked Miss Coplon if it was not true that she was engaged in sexual intimacies with another man about the time she says she was deeply in love with Valentin Gubitchev.

The question, coming with absolutely no warning, threw District courtroom into confusion.

"That's a damn lie!" the attractive, 28-year-old defendant, obviously caught by surprise, screamed. "Why are you doing this in front of my mother!"

Everyone was shouting at once.

"I knew he was going to do that!" the ghost-faced mother herself arose and half-shouted, half-sobbed to Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr. "I expected this from him!"

"Fornication has nothing to do with espionage!" Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer screeched.

Judge Orders Her Out

"Remove her from the courtroom!" Judge Albert L. Reeves ordered as the mother's cries shook through the court.

"She's her mother." Palmer stormed toward the bench.

"No, I want to hear all of this!" the mother cried.

"Remove her, unless she behaves herself . . ." Judge Reeves said, and Mrs. Coplon stayed.

Through the tumult Kelley's voice shot across the 10 feet of space between himself and the defendant:

"You deny it?"

"I do!" Miss Coplon shouted.

Admits She Was With Lawyer

Then she admitted she spent the nights of January 7 and 8 in Baltimore and Philadelphia hotel rooms with H. P. Shapiro, identified as a lawyer in the criminal division of the Justice Department, where Miss Coplon worked before she was charged with spying for Russia.

Also, she said, she spent the night of February 17 in Shapiro's apartment here.

But, she cried: "I did not spend the night with him in fornication."

The nights in the hotels there was no fornication either, she claimed.

Shapiro is in the General Administrative Procedures Unit of the criminal division of the Department of Justice. He is said to have been with the Department about two years, to be in his early 30s and—single. He could not be reached here last night.

In his prosecution surprise, Kelley was tearing into the main defense contention.

Arrested March 4

This is that the Barnard College honor graduate was seeing the Russian U. N. engineer as a sweetheart, not to give him the Nation's secrets.

The FBI arrested the pair March 4, charged Miss Coplon with espionage and both with conspiracy to commit espionage.

The February 17 night in Shapiro's apartment here was the day before she went to New York to see Gubitchev.

The January 7 and 8 nights in the hotel with Shapiro were about a week before Miss Coplon saw Gubitchev in New York January 14.

Before springing his question, Kelley, sitting quietly at the prosecution table directly in front of Miss Coplon, asked her about the date of January 14:

"You must have been deeply in love with him, weren't you?"

"Yes," Miss Coplon replied.

The courtroom was quiet. It was a lag in the testimony, which had been gone over before in direct-examination. Reporters were sitting back, taking it easy.

"Your answer is yes," Kelley repeated.

"Yes," Miss Coplon replied.

"And that was on January 14?

"Yes."

There was a slight, ominous rise in Kelley's voice: "Isn't it the

Senator Says 'Pull' Prevented Disciplining of Policeman

At least one Washington police private cannot be disciplined for his bad manners because of his political pull, Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) told the Senate District Committee yesterday.

The committee was meeting to vote on retroactive pay raises for District employes. Before the voting, Senator Smith criticized Metropolitan police for a lack of courtesy in a traffic case involving her administrative assistant, William Chesley Lewis, jr.

"It is with a great deal of reluctance that I vote for this bill," she said. "I hope that the additional $330 will attract a better caliber of personnel to our police force."

According to Senator Smith, the traffic ticket incident occurred in downtown Washington this year and involved Lewis, who was waiting for her in a parked car.

She said the policeman who handed out the ticket knew Lewis was waiting for her.

"But I'm not asking any special privilege," she said. "All I ask for is courtesy. Police should be courteous to everyone alike, whether they're dealing with members of Congress or ditch-diggers."

A complaint was made to police headquarters by Senator Smith's office. What happened to the police private?

A precinct captain, his commanding officer, told Senator Smith's office "he could not do anything about it because the private had to be handled with kid gloves."

The captain further said that the private, if disciplined, might

Police Halt St. Louis Clash Over Nonsegregated Pool

(From Press Dispatches)

St. Louis, June 21.—Approximately 400 police reserves rushed to Fairgrounds Park tonight to stop fighting between Negroes and whites prompted by a new order that let the two races swim together in city parks.

The fighting began soon after the pool opened this afternoon and Mayor Joseph M. Darst immediately revoked the nonsegregation order.

The crowd of about 250 teenagers involved in the afternoon fights grew to between 4000 and 5000 tonight, Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell estimated.

Eleven persons were injured as knives and clubs were wielded in scattered fights, but there were no mass encounters.

Swimming began at the regular opening time of 2 p. m., police said. About 50 Negro boys and about five times as many white boys swam together for 45 minutes.

The trouble started when some of the Negroes left the pool. A group of white youths struck at them with bats and heavy sticks, it was reported.

Police said they ordered all boys found with clubs out of the park and escorted the Negro boys several blocks from the park.

Chief O'Connell said many of the crowd that thronged into the park in the evening were teenagers watching to see what might happen. He reported the crowd began breaking up by 11 p. m. and the tense situation was eased greatly.

Oxnam Lets Spellman Know He Disagrees on 'Bigotry'

Boston, June 21 (AP).—Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York today charged that to Francis Cardinal Spellman the term "bigot" "means anyone who disagrees with the Cardinal or who objects to the hierarchy putting its hands in the public treasury."

Bishop Oxnam was commenting on Cardinal Spellman's accusations Sunday against Representative Barden (D., N. C.).

The Cardinal denounced Barden's bill for Federal aid to education and said parochial schools should share in the Federal funds. He called Barden a "new apostle of bigotry" and said his legislation was "un-American and anti-Catholic."

Oxnam's statement declared:

"As a loyal and wise legislator, Representative Barden insists upon the American principle that public funds shall be used solely for public education . . .

"Cardinal Spellman has used the term 'bigot' freely of late. Now we know what he means by it. Anyone who disagrees with the Cardinal or who objects to the hierarchy putting its hands in the public treasury is a bigot.

"Cardinal Spellman belittles himself when he refers to Representative Barden as 'un-American and anti-Catholic' or as 'venting his venom upon children,' 'as guilty of disservice to our country.' This is bearing false witness and to describe the bill as 'conducting a craven crusade of religious prejudice' is to lie.

"Barden wants to preserve public education. It (the bill) is the preservation of American public education and its protection from a prelate with a prehensile hand."

Yugoslavs Hold Out For Austria Claims

Belgrade, June 21 (NYHT.).—Yugoslavia will "never" renounce her territorial claims against Austria despite their rejection by the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers in Paris, the Yugoslav Ministry of Foreign Affairs said today in an official statement.

The ministry expressed the "deepest bitterness" at the manner in which the Big Four, including the Soviet Union, ignored Yugoslav demands. It said Yugoslavia will also "never" renounce its claims against Austria for reparations payments.

(The final communique of the Big Four said Austria shall guarantee to protect the rights of its Slovene and Croat minorities. This amounted to total rejection of Yugoslavia's demand for the cession of part of Carinthia, eastern province of Austria with a large Slovene population, and for autonomy for Slovenes remaining within Austrian borders. On reparations, the council said the Belgrade regime should only have the right to seize Austrian property within Yugoslav territory.)

Agreement Raises Hopes in Austria

Paris, June 21 (NYHT).—Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber was enthusiastic today about the agreement on Austria reached yesterday by the Big Four foreign ministers.

Dr. Gruber was hopeful about the prospects for complete agreement on an Austrian treaty in the next few months, and said he felt the terms contained in yesterday's communique would guarantee the political and economic independence of Austria.

Troops of the four occupation powers are due to evacuate Austria three months after the treaty has been ratified. Some Western diplomats have feared that an evacuation of Austria might be followed by a Communist coup there similar to the one in Czechoslovakia in February, 1948.

Dr. Gruber said in an interview today that the Austrian government is confident of its ability to handle any attempted coup. He said: "We have kept the Communists out of the police, the government ministries and the trade unions. The draft treaty permits us an armed force of 58,000, including the police, and this should be sufficient to maintain internal order."

Furthermore, Dr. Gruber said, the Austrian Communist Party is small, and the social system does not favor the growth of communism. In Austria, he said, "we had our land reform 300 years ago."

Berlin Strike End Seen in Red Action

Berlin, June 21 (U.P.).—Hope rose tonight that the month-old strike of Berlin railroad workers might be ended soon in the first move toward restoring normal conditions after the Big Four foreign ministers agreement in Paris.

Gen. P. A. Kvashnin, Russian transport chief, confirmed in writing to American, British and French authorities an offer of the Soviet-controlled railroad management to pay 60 per cent of the wages of the railroad men in marks issued by the Western Allies.

Kvashnin declined to give written assurance there would be no reprisals against the workers.

American and British officials called Kvashnin's letter fair. They urged the strikers to get back to work and permit resumption of railroad traffic to the western occupation zones.

The union men were reluctant to order a return without firm guarantees against reprisals.

Kvashnin said, regarding reprisals, merely that there would be none "provided the given person did not commit any crimes during the strike."

tics which are "against the law, and punishable."

The Premier accused the church dignitaries of working with the "enemies of the republic abroad" in attempts to "disrupt peace and quiet and distract citizens from their diligent work in the construction of a people's democratic republic and the fulfillment of economic plans."

He said the government has shown "much patience and tolerance up to now," but that it would not countenance "violations of the constitution and laws."

Zaptocky listed as alleged intimidation the excommunication of priests and laymen who have gone over to the separate Catholic Action Society founded by the Communists.

Archbishop Beran and the Vatican have pronounced excommunication upon the group's instigators.

For the past week the archbishop has been in semicaptivity in his palace. Government agents raided the consistory and seized church records. Security police manned the palace gates and telephone switchboard. Most palace callers were refused admission.

Saturday night Archbishop Beran drove to the Strahov Monastery and told his congregation: "I come to you and swear to you that I will never sign an agreement that violates the laws of the church."

It was reported without confirmation that Archbishop Josef Matocha of Olomouc, second city of Moravia, has been placed under police surveillance similar to the watch put on Beran. Archbishop Matocha would be Beran's most likely successor as primate.

Prague, June 21 (AP).—Gen. Heliodor Pika, former deputy chief of the Czecheslovak army, was executed today, the Prague Radio announced. He was sentenced January 28 after a two-day secret trial on charges of divulging secrets to the British intelligence.

Coal Strike Up In Australia

Sydney, Australia, June 21 (AP).—A virtual shutdown of industry because of dwindling coal supplies put 200,000 men and women out of work today in Sydney and Newcastle. But worse news was in store for Australians.

The Nation's 23,500 coal miners have threatened a general walkout Monday if their demands for a 35-hour week and wage increase of 30 shillings ($4.86) are not met.

There are more men out of work here today than in the days of the prewar depression. Australian labor leaders permit no real stockpile of coal. Industry is fed on almost a day-to-day basis. Storms have delayed arrival of coastal coal carriers. Now most factories are closed. Shops and offices are lit by oil lamps or not at all.

The city government has issued rigid restrictions on the use of fuel in homes. It is mid-winter in Australia and the temperature in Sydney was 49 degrees this morning.

British Ship Hit in Attack By Nationalists

Shanghai, June 21 (U.P.).—A Nationalist plane bombed and strafed the 9000-ton British motorship Anchises near the mouth of the Yangtze River today. Six of the crew were wounded and the heavily damaged ship was forced to run aground on the bank.

The attack, during a "nuisance raid" on Shanghai by three Nationalist light bombers, came a few hours after the Nationalist Government announced a blockade of all Communist-held ports.

However, the announcement set June 26 as the date the blockade would become effective.

(In London, the Foreign Office announced an official protest had been lodged with the Nationalist Government. Britain also ordered a warship at the mouth of the Yangtze "to intervene to protect British shipping there from interference.")

Several foreign shipping companies, including the American President Lines, cancelled all Shanghai sailings pending clarification of the situation.

Revolt Ended, Dominican Reports Claim

Havana, Cuba, June 21 (AP).—Official reports from the Dominican Republic today said the revolution against the government of President Rafael L. Trujillo had been crushed.

The Cuban press, however, gave considerable space to Dominican exiles' claims that their invading forces were only 65 miles from Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic.

These stories said revolutionary units were in control of Puerto Plata, Monte Cristi and San Pedro Macoriz on the north coast of the island and cited exile claims of a possible invasion from Haiti.

An official statement from the Foreign Office in Ciudad Trujillo said: "The most complete calm reigns in all parts of the country."

The Dominican Ministry of War announced yesterday that invaders who landed Sunday night on the north coast from two seaplanes were killed. Dispatches from the capital said all provincial capitals were quiet and communications were normal.

President Trujillo seized control in a 1930 revolution. In 1936 he who for four years since the end of hostilities have lived under a regime of occupation."

Recalling the long deadlocks over Austria, and the previous failures to remove obstacles, he said that at Paris "the more important of these obstacles were finally removed by a freely negotiated agreement among the four powers, and we have reason to hope that before the end of the year the treaty may be signed."

He praised the "patient understanding" of the Austrian people and predicted that "the goal, so important for Austria and her people, is at last in sight."

The obstacles he referred to were, first, the Russian support of Yugoslav territorial claims on Austria, and second, the long quarrel over so-called German assets in Austria seized by Russia after the war.

At Paris the Russians abandoned their support of the Yugoslav claim and the Western Powers agreed to a lump sum payment of 150 million dollars for the disputed properties.

Dealing with Germany, Mr. Truman conceded that "little progress was made" at Paris. He said the American delegation went there with the "serious intention of developing a constructive program" for meeting the requirements of all Germany.

'Misuse of Veto'

"At the same time, the Western Powers were determined," he said, "not to compromise the democratic principles and the conditions which must be established throughout Germany before an economically sound and workable solution can be found for German unity.

"They were equally determined not to jeopardize the basic freedoms as they now exist in Western Germany, merely to obtain a nominal political unity. In these objectives they knew they had the support of the freely elected representatives of the majority of the German people.

"The Soviet Union, on the other hand, sought a return to Potsdam and its system, which the Russians had rendered unworkable by their misuse of the unlimited veto.

"They refused to recognize the important progress which had been made in Western Germany since 1945.

"In these circumstances, real progress for the unification of Germany and its people was impossible. The most that could be achieved was a working agreement designed to mitigate the abnormal situation of a still divided Germany."

This was the only passage in which Mr. Truman attacked Soviet policies, and even this censure was milder than in past messages.

The President's statement went on to summarize the agreements providing for "consultation" among the occupying authorities, for keeping the present dual currency in Berlin temporarily, and for having another four-power meeting in the fall.

"Thus," said the President, "the door is left open to future efforts for a solution of the German problem and the achievement of peace in Europe."

The President added that he took "much satisfaction" in reports brought back by Acheson about "the close cooperation and understanding which characterized the relations of the three Western Powers throughout the conference."

"It is a demonstration," he said, "of the progress made possible by the identity of ideas and values which are the common heritage of the peoples of the Atlantic community."

Acheson himself was modest about his work at Paris when he stepped from the Presidential plane, the Independence, yesterday morning. Awaiting him with the President were Vice President Barkley and a crowd of Government men and diplomatic officials.

"I don't think we really accomplished too much," said the Secretary just before walking with the President to a White House car.

With him on the plane from Paris were Mrs. Acheson, John Foster Dulles, former Counsellor Charles E. Bohlen and Barbara Evans, Acheson's secretary at the State Department.

West Holds Initiative

Looking back on the four weeks' conference, American officials were glad there had been no setback at Paris to any American or western European policy.

The Western Powers still were free to push forward with the political and economic revival of western Germany, without interference by the Soviet Union. The West still held the initiative which Gen. George C. Marshall had wrested from the Russians in the summer of 1947.

Such concessions as the West obtained—and they were pathetically few—were felt to be the direct result of the firm American policy of recent months, based on the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Treaty and the creation of a self-governing western Germany.

Those officials familiar with Soviet tactics saw room for endless wrangles during the summer, over Austria as well as Germany.

The American delegates did feel, however, that lifting of the Berlin blockade had been confirmed formally and at an astonishingly small price. The only price the West had to pay, apart from holding the Paris conference, was to reconstitute the Council of Foreign Ministers as an instrument of East-West negotiation.

One other aspect of the conference was regarded as important, especially by the French, who badly wanted some evidence of relaxed tension in Europe.

The conference did not break up; it conducted its meetings with outward politeness; it did not degenerate into the brawls of previous London and Moscow meetings; and when the Ministers discovered they could not agree, they agreed to disagree for a few months.

Outwardly, at least, there may be a relaxation of tension during the summer, a little less name-calling and a little more of the normal atmosphere of conducting diplomatic business between Soviet Russia and the West.

Basic policies, however, have not changed. The chasm between East and West still is as wide and deep as the Grand Canyon. No bridge has yet been thrown across it.

In these circumstances the Administration here will lose no time or effort in pressing for ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty, for approval of the military assistance program, and for making western Europe self-reliant and self-supporting in the shortest possible time.

Truman at Luncheon Of Ex-Legion Officers

President Truman yesterday attended a buffet luncheon of the "Post Mortem" club, an organization of Capital officials who have held State or National offices in the American Legion.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson was host to about 15 members and guests in his private dining room in the Pentagon.

President Truman once served as Missouri State treasurer of the Legion. Johnson is a former national commander.

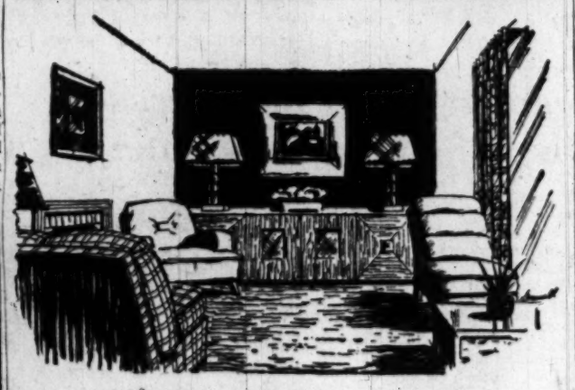
SPEAKING OF Furniture
By WILLIAM BANKS



THE USE OF COLOR

One of the most perplexing problems of re-decorating, is what to do with rooms which appear too long; or with ceilings which appear too low. Where we have to use the furniture already in the room, one of the solutions is the use of color.

In the living room sketched above, the too-long narrow effect was lessened by the correct use of color alone. The side walls were treated with a tint in a light, receding color to make them seem farther away and widen the room. The wall end was painted in a warm, dark advancing color which seems to bring it forward.

If you cannot paint your wall, you can get something of the same effect by placing dark masses against it in the form of book shelves, panels or draperies.

Horizontal color lines are also used to bring down the ceiling and to lengthen the walls. Using dark color on the ceiling helps further to make it seem lower.

We would enjoy discussing your furniture and decorating problems with you. Drop in to . . .

No Bomb Uranium Lost, AEC Claims

By The Associated Press

A flat statement that "no A-bomb uranium is lost" at the great Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant was issued by the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday.

Almost simultaneously, Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Senate-House Atomic Committee told newsmen on Capitol Hill:

1. The committee is investigating an "inventory discrepancy" at the Oak Ridge plant.

2. But he believes it is "not of a kind for the American people to become alarmed about."

McMahon's statement followed published reports about a "loss" of uranium—the key ingredient of atomic bombs—at Oak Ridge.

Neither McMahon nor the AEC gave any inkling as to the type of material, if any, that appears to be missing.

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) asked McMahon if it is not true that it remains to be determined whether the discrepancy is "a bookkeeping error or a loss of material."

"Yes, I think that can be said," McMahon replied.

McMahon noted the "complexity" of the huge Oak Ridge operation and he commented:

"A tremendous difficulty occurs in taking an inventory of materials that exist from time to time in the form of gases, liquids and solids.

"Inventory discrepancies, within certain limits, are I think bound to occur. This isn't the first time it has happened, nor I think will it be the last."

However, McMahon announced that the Senate-House Committee will continue its investigation of the current discrepancy "until we are satisfied with the results."

The Connecticut Senator said the management at the Oak Ridge plant, the Carbide and Carbon Chemical Corp., has taken "great precaution" not only to obtain as exact an inventory as possible, but also to safegard the entire plant.

Atomic experts have testified before the joint congressional committee recently that "hundreds" of pounds of uranium are handled at the various plants.

An ounce of enriched uranium-235 was discovered missing at the AEC's Argonne laboratories in Chicago last February, but the AEC claims all but one eighth of the material has been recovered from wastage.

The flurry over the possibility of a new loss came as the Senate-House committee met to hear additional evidence from Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) in his charges of "incredible mismanagement" against AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal.

Hickenlooper turned once more to a scrutiny of higher-than-estimated costs in building the vast atomic plant at Hanford, Wash., a multi-million-dollar project being carried out by the General Electric Co.

Vice President Harry Winne of General Electric told the committee that his firm's operation of the plant has resulted in savings "at an average rate of 40 million dollars to 50 million dollars."

Whites Clash With Negroes

finisher was reported in critical condition from a stab wound.

Fairgrounds Park is in the north end of town, about six blocks from a Negro district. Sportsman's Park, where the Cardinals played the New York Giants tonight, is six blocks away.

There were no disturbances at any other city pool today. The pool at Fairgrounds Park was closed indefinitely tonight.

Yesterday Director of Public Welfare John J. O'Toole had ordered the playgrounds and city pool opened to both races.

He told reporters the city could not oppose anyone lawfully using a swimming pool. The Negroes are taxpayers and citizens, too, O'Toole added.

In Mayor Darst's order rescinding O'Toole's directive, he said he was directing O'Toole, in the "interest of the general public to adhere to the time-honored policy" of separate pools for Negroes and whites.

"At the same time I appeal to the citizens for voluntary compliance and to the leaders of both races for cooperation with city authorities in maintaining and further improving our splendid race relations record."

The mayor said the division of existing swimming pools "seems fair, six for whites and three for Negroes."

He added, "If the Negro facilities prove inadequate it is my purpose to expand them, using postwar bond issue funds."

Huber Moves To Force 52-20 Bill to Floor

Representative Walter B. Huber (D., Ohio) yesterday moved to force out of the House Veterans Committee a bill extending for five years the "52-$20" payments to unemployed former servicemen.

He filed with Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), a petition that, if signed by 218 House members, would force the committee to send the bill to the floor.

The provision in the GI Bill of Rights under which jobless veterans are paid $20 a week up to 52 weeks is scheduled to expire for most former servicemen on July 25.

Huber acted after a group of veterans, who also are members of the United Electrical Workers Union (CIO), complained that Chairman John E. Rankin, (D., Miss.), of the Veterans Committee gave them a "run-around" when they tried to see him in support of the extension.

3 Probes Ordered Into Report Ex-Colonel Got Fee for Promising Aid on U. S. Contracts

By The Associated Press

A three-pronged investigation was ordered yesterday after a report a wartime lieutenant colonel got a $1000 fee as a down payment on work he said he would do helping a client land a Government contract.

The report was in yesterday's issue of the New York Herald Tribune.

Jack Steele, in a copyrighted story, said that James V. Hunt, a so-called management counselor here, had accepted the fee from Paul Grindle, president of a Framingham, Mass., furniture factory.

Grindle was quoted as saying that Hunt, who was an official in the War Assets Administration after he left the Army, had implied he had considerable influence in Washington.

Truman Aide Mentioned

According to Grindle, Hunt tossed off the names of several prominent Washingtonians as if he were on friendly terms with them.

Among those mentioned, Grindle said, were Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide to President Truman; Secretary of Defense Johnson, and Jess Larson, former War Assets administrator who recently was named Federal Works administrator.

Grindle said he gave Hunt $1000 and agreed to supply an additional $500 a month for expense money—plus 5 per cent of the gross amount of any contract he received. The agreement was signed May 9, 1949.

But, the story said, Grindle kept a record of all conversations and turned these records over to the Herald Tribune.

As a result, investigations were ordered by:

Secretary of Defense Johnson, who said he wanted to see whether anyone has received "percentage" contracts with the national military establishment.

Grindle

Hunt

Admiral Paul Mather, who succeeded Larson as head of the War Assets Administration. He said the story would be investigated thoroughly. (War Assets has the job of disposing of war surplus supplies which originally had cost billions.)

And Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) of the Senate Investigation Committee also called for a "complete investigation of all the facts."

Johnson issued a statement saying that buying by the armed forces is conducted "openly, without favoritism and under established procedures." He said he hopes businessmen will help expose those who say they have influence.

At the offices of J. V. Hunt & Co. here, a secretary said Colonel Hunt would make no comment until he had had a chance to talk with his lawyer.

All those mentioned by Hunt denied they ever had been influenced by him.

Client of Hunt's Says He Paid Him $80,000

NYHT News Service

A client of James V. Hunt yesterday acknowledged he paid $80,000 for services of the Washington "management counselor" during negotiations for the purchase of the Lido Beach Club, of Long Beach, L. I., from the War Assets Administration.

The Lido, taken over by the Navy during the war, was spotlighted from several directions as official Washington prepared to probe the "5 per center" situation.

In reply to questions by reporters, William P. Rogers, counsel for the Senate Investigating Committee, said WAA records of the Lido transaction will be used as a starter for the committee inquiry into Hunt's dealings with Government departments and agencies.

Colonel Hunt's connection with the Lido purchase was freely discussed by telephone yesterday by Milton Seiden, manager and co-owner of the property. The other owners are his father, Frank Seiden, and a brother, Leo.

'You Can't Get to First Base'

He said Hunt's services were retained because "you know as well as I do that you can't get to first base in Washington without someone representing you."

As for the price paid for the Lido, Seiden said, "We came out on the bad end of the stick." The Seidens owned the Lido when the Navy took it over during the war.

They had a priority on the repurchase of the hotel and beach facilities when it became a surplus war asset. The Government still is holding a 117-acre golf course that once was a part of the Lido facilities.

New Bill Proposes Machine to Tally Votes in House

Two House members yesterday revived the drive for time-saving mechanical voting devices.

Representative harles E. Bennett (D., Fla.) introduced a bill that would direct the Capitol Architect to install conduits for a visual recording and automatic vote counting mechanism as part of the House chamber renovating plan, scheduled to start July 1.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) later took the floor to stump for the same proposition, pointing qut the huge number of hours each Congress consumes in the present system of clerk calling out the names of individual members.

"An electric push-button voting machine would save us a great deal of time, and the taxpayers a great deal of money," said Miller.

Hiss Defense To Call More Witnesses

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 21. — Six to eight more factual witnesses are expected to be brought to the witness stand Wednesday by the defense as the Alger Hiss perjury trial resumed in Federal District Court here.

In addition, attorneys for Hiss said, they have several more character witnesses to call, making a total of "about a dozen more witnesses" to appear before the defense rests its case.

Among the last of the witnesses will be the lanky, handsome, 44-year-old Hiss, making the most significant and dramatic appearance of an unusually successful career which carried him to high Government posts and the $20,000-a-year presidency of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

His attorneys said he will probably testify Thursday, and "possibly late Wednesday, if the trial moves that fast, which is not likely."

Throughout the 15 tense days of testimony, Hiss has appeared more like an interested spectator than a defendant, showing little emotion beyond intense interest as he listened to the mounting array of testimony with which the Government seeks to prove that he lied when he said he did not give State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers in 1938, or did not see Chambers after 1936.

No trial session was held today, because Presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman was attending a conference of district judges. Hiss' attorneys worked throughout the afternoon to prepare evidence they will submit Wednesday. They also began drafting their requests for explanations of law which the judge will make in his charge to the jury at the end of the trial.

Johnson Calls for 'Balance' of 3 Forces school tie, the separate services have searched diligently to resolve their differences."

The Defense Secretary reaffirmed the agreements reached by the Joint Chiefs of Staff at Key West and Newport last year as the official "charter" on the roles, missions and functions of the armed forces.

Repeatedly Johnson stressed the role of the Joint Chiefs as being responsible—jointly rather than individually — for the national security. (The JCS consists of the uniformed heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force, Gen. Omar Bradley, Admiral Louis Denfeld and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg.)

"To those who contend that each service must be the sole arbiter of its own needs," he said, "I would reply that this Nation can no longer tolerate the autonomous conduct of any single service.

Of interest in this connection are persistent though unconfirmed reports that the Joint Chiefs voted 2 to 1 against the modernization of the two aircraft carriers announced yesterday. A similar vote —Bradley and Vandenberg against Denfeld—was followed by an order canceling construction of the super-carrier United States, with Johnson supporting the majority. In the modernization order, however, Johnson overruled the majority, if the reports are true.

In modernizing the flattops, the Navy will strengthen their flight decks to handle heavier new attack planes—one or two of which reputedly can carry the atomic bomb. The Navy also will install more powerful catapults to launch the big craft, and stronger elevators to raise them from the hangar deck.

The alterations will be similar to work already started on the carriers Essex and Wasp. The Navy wants to modernize all of its Essex carriers at a rate of two a year, but failed to get funds for continuing the program in the original 1950 budget.

If the additional 80 million dollars is allowed, the Navy will have eight flat tops modernized to handle the new heavier planes. None of the modernized craft, however, will be able to handle sizable numbers of the still bigger, longer range planes planned for the abandoned USS United States.

Takes Slap at Soviet

Johnson opened his "full-dress" security policy speech with a discussion of foreign policy and a slap at Soviet Russia.

Long-range military readiness is required while we face Russia—"a power hostile to its world environment, conspiratorial in its international conduct, despotic in its internal affairs," Johnson declared.

The cost of such a preparedness program must be kept down by "efficient and unified management of our armed forces," he added.

But within our present strategic concept of national defense, there exists an "essential and honorable role for each of the armed forces," Johnson declared. He spelled out these roles as follows:

NAVY

"With the extension of American commitments overseas—both in Europe and in the Pacific—a strong Navy is absolutely vital to the security of the United States. Because the naval air arm is a critical weapon in modern sea warfare, we could no more deny the fleet its carrier aircraft than we could deny ships their radar.

MARINE CORPS

"At the same time I reaffirm the birthright of the United States Marine Corps and its air arm. The Marine Corps' role in the future is guaranteed . . . by the proven necessity for equipping fleets with assault forces for the seizure or defense of naval bases essential to the conduct of naval campaigns.

AIR FORCE

"The threat of instant retaliation through an air offensive has become one of the greatest deterrents to war today.

"Strategic air bombing has been chartered by the Joint Chiefs of Staff as the primary mission of the Air Force. At the same time, the Air Force is held responsible for the air defense of the United States. And it is enjoined to provide tactical air support for the Army and the Navy when required in sea action. Tactical air support has become especially crucial to land operations of the Army . . .

"While the atom bomb has greatly multiplied the destructive force of air power, its effect upon war strategy and the length of war has not yet been completely explored. Certainly the atom bomb is not the absolute weapon. But neither is it just another piece of ordnance . . . The great significance of the atom bomb lies in the destructive and denial power that may be carried in a single aircraft.

Army

"Though air power has given promise of a speedier end to conflict, it has not supplanted the soldier who must finally defeat the enemy land forces. For ultimately war between nations is reduced to one man defending his land while another attempts to invade it.

"The Army must devote a greater scale of its strength to nourish a later war potential rather than a large-scale force for instant combat. Nevertheless, it is essential . . . that the Army have a mobile striking force, combat trained and available for urgent dispatch anywhere in the world.

Allies

"Because the United States could not—without grave distress to the civilized world—abandon western Europe to enemy occupation with the later promise of liberation, our long-term strategy —in the event of war—must rest with the containment and thereafter in the defeat of an aggressor's land-army strength. To live in preparation for so onerous a wartime task, the Army must plan for the rapid mobilization of its mechanized manpower."

told reporters he had several women under consideration for diplomatic posts. The Luxembourg assignment up to now has been handled by the United States Amabassador at Brussels, Belgium.

Mrs. Mesta has been a close friend of the Truman family for some time. She originally came from Oklahoma, where her family was interested in oil. For several years she has been one of the leaders of Washington society. However, her nomination listed residence as Rhode Island.

She is the third woman to be given a diplomatic post. Mrs. Daisy Harriman was Minister to Norway and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, daughter of Williams Jennings Bryan, Minister to Denmark.

Two Arrested By Vice Squad In Gaming Raids

A laundryman and a tailor were arrested in two vice squad raids yesterday, each charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Hen Lee, alias Same Lee, 47, of 601 N st. nw., was arrested at 1:45 p. m. in his laundry at that address. Police said they confiscated quantities of numbers slips and several cartons of unused slips. He was released under $1500 bond.

Louis Worley, 39, 1017 M st. nw., was arrested 15 minutes later in a tailor shop at 1211 11th st. nw., on the same charges. He will appear in Police Court today. Lieut. Roy Blick of the vice squad said police had no warrant for Worley, but that they had surprised him after receiving a tip.

Senate Group Votes 75c Wage Floor

By The Associated Press

A Senate Labor subcommittee yesterday voted unanimously for a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour. It decided against trying to extend coverage of the wage-hour law to five million additional workers.

The seven-man subcommittee, headed by Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), constitutes a majority of the 13-man Senate Labor Committee. Presumably the agreement means the full committee is certain to recommend wage-boosting legislation to the Senate.

One decision was against extending the law to workers in retail stores.

Minimum Now 40 Cents

The wage-hour law now applies to most business firms making or handling goods shipped across State lines. Generally, it forbids payment of a lower wage than 40 cents an hour and requires payment of premium pay for work over 40 hours a week.

In addition to an increase in the minimum to 75 cents, labor unions have been clamoring for extension of the law to cover additional workers. Most opposition in Congress has centered on extending the coverage, rather than on boosting the minimum.

The plan agreed on by the Senate subcommittee is, in effect, a compromise.

Pepper announced the agreement as follows:

1. Raise in the minimum wage from the present 40 cents to 75 cents. Pepper said this would raise the wages of between one million and 1,500,000 workers.

2. In case of violations, the Government would have the right to sue employers for back wages on behalf of employes.

3. The child labor provisions of the law would be strengthened and made more uniform. For example, oppressive child labor would be prohibited flatly in interstate commerce. At present, the Government must show the goods involved were shipped across a State line within a certain period after being produced.

4. The minimum wage law would not apply to small Western Union agencies with less than $500 worth of business a month.

5. Proposed extension of coverage to millions of new workers, including retail employes, was dropped.

6. Certain questions relating to coverage of farm processing industries were left for the full committee to decide.

Neither the House or Senate has yet debated a minimum wage bill.

Streamlining Of D. C. Set-up Is Bypassed

The President will not send to Congress at this session a plan to streamline the District government under the recently-passed reorganization bill, it was learned last night.

The measure, under which seven Federal department reorganization plans were put before Congress Monday, also would permit the President to make sweeping changes by Executive Order in the setup of the city government.

Budget Bureau officials said a District streamlining plan will be held up this session on two counts:

1. The President's staff planners, tied up on Federal reorganization programs, have not made studies of the District administrative structure.

2. The Senate-passed Kefauver home rule bill would accomplish an even more effective city reorganization than the President by Executive order.

The Kefauver measure, besides granting local suffrage, provides for re-grouping the iDstrict's 100 agencies into 12 major departments.

Budget officials said yesterday that they "much prefer" to accomplish city government streamlining through the pending home rule legislation.

Princess and Texan Married

Associated Press RADIOPHOTO
Harris and his bride stroll through Hohenzollern gardens

Hechingen, Germany, June 21 (AP).—A Hohenzollern princess who might have been the daughter of a German Kaiser but for the fates of war turned her back on castles today and went honeymooning with an American interior decorator.

Princess Cecilie, granddaughter of old Kaiser Wilhelm, became Mrs. Clyde Harris of Amarillo. She is going to live in a little apartment in Texas.

The blonde princess and her young businessman were married in the 1000-year-old story-book castle here today before a Who's Who of royalty. Then they drove off to a secret refuge somewhere in Germany.

Both are 31. They met when Harris was an Army officer in Germany. They corresponded when Harris returned to the States.

The bride, a direct descendant of Queen Victoria of England, was given away by 67-year-old Crown Prince Wilhelm, her father. Giving away the bride is not ordinarily a part of the German ceremony, but it was a concession to American custom.

Villagers serenaded the couple to the accompaniment of a mandolin as they drove away.

Senate Fight Opens On Spending Cuts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate economy bloc, led by Republicans and conservative Democrats, yesterday opened a fight to immediately instruct the President to cut all appropriations from 5 to 10 per cent.

The drive ran into the solid opposition of the Administration leadership and a long floor wrangle that veered from bipartisan to partisan overtones.

The debate on the so-called McClellan bill, signed by 30 Senators and directing the President to do all the cutting, was touched off by these two developments:

1. Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), acting, he said, for other Senators, blocked with a single objection consideration of the bill on the Senate's unanimous consent calendar.

2. Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), after a meeting of the Senate Democratic policy committee, told newsmen he was opposed to the bill and would not call it up.

"Stunned" by Statement

Saying he was "stunned" by Lucas' statement, Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) read an account of it to the Senate and asked Lucas if it were true.

Lucas not only confirmed it, he accused some of the sponsors of the resolution of refusing to cut their own "pet projects" and "passing the buck" to the President.

"The President would be on the hot spot," Lucas said. "Every Senator would be down there saying, 'Don't cut out my project. Cut the other fellow's, but don't cut mine.'"

Lucas voiced doubt that Congress can "abdicate" its appropriations authority in that manner. He said it hasn't even cleared yet some 30 billion dollars in appropriations and "should have the courage" to do its own cutting.

Hope for 'Move' Soon

Senators Wherry, Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Robert A. Taft (Ohio) replied that the Senate had refused to make GOP-sponsored 5 to 10 per cent cuts in individual bills largely because some Senators (on the Democratic side) demanded an "overall" cut with the President as surgeon. Ferguson voiced hope that Senator John R. McClellan (D., Ark.) would "move" soon to call up his bill.

Lucas replied tartly that he thought McClellan "would abide by the wishes of the majority . . . You (Republicans) are not going to take the leadership away . . ."

McClellan, chairman of the Senate Expenditures Committee, which approved the resolution directing Mr. Truman to make the cuts, did not take part in the GOP bout with Lucas, but later told newsmen he will do everything in his power to get the resolution before the Senate and hoped Lucas would agree to call it up.

Earlier, after McGrath had blocked unanimous consent consideration of the proposal, McClellan demanded action "now."

"I intend to keep pressing until this resolution is brought up . . . to let the country know that the Senate either stands for budget balancing or what has happened here has just been so much talk," McClellan said.

Stresses Importance

"This resolution is more important to the security and destiny of America than the unfinished business (Taft-Hartley Act repeal) that we have been squabbling over for the past two or three weeks."

Senator Burnet R. Mayband (D., S. C.) suggested the resolution might be offered as a rider on an appropriations bill in the closing days of Congress. He said the Senate ought to consider it separately before then.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) criticized McGrath for objecting to unanimous consent action.

Customs Rules Eased

Cobh, Eire, June 21 (U.P.).—Relaxed customs regulations for Americans coming to Ireland went into effect today. Americans now may bring in 1000 cigarettes instead of 200, and one quart of spirits and one quart of wine, instead of none.

Youngest 'Ham' In This Area

The Washington Post

JOHN L. GURKE, 14, ninth grade student of Leland Junior High School, is one of the youngest "ham" radio operators in America. John, who has been granted a permit by the FCC to transmit over amateur radio frequencies, bought his set with money earned as a carrier boy for The Washington Post. He lives at 71172 Denton rd., Bethesda, Md.

Caucus Backs Housing Bill

measure at the caucus was made by Representative Eugene Cox (D., Ga.), who reiterated his previous opposition on the grounds of socialized housing.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), McCormack, and Representatives Spence, Wright Patman (D., Tex.), George H. Christopher (D., Mo.); Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.); John D. Dingell (D., Mich.), Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), and John Lesinski (D., Mich.), all spoke in favor of the measure.

The American Legion yesterday called for immediate enactment of the housing program, decrying "synthetic propaganda" against it.

Legion Commander Perry Brown, in a letter to Spence, said "President Truman has properly exposed the motives and techniques of those attempting to kill the bill."

Meanwhile, Federal Housing Administrator Raymond M. Foley accused real estate interests of injuring their own cause by what he called "gross distortions" in a last-minute effort to bottle up housing legislation.

"I have strongly supported and fought for every legitimate effort to help private industry meet more of the housing need, and I shall continue to do so," he said, "for I firmly believe in the free enterprise system.

"But I do not think the industry serves its own or the public's best interests when it permits its spokesmen to 'cry havoc' when the Government seeks to supplement private housing enterprise by making Federal assistance available to provide decent housing for low-income people that the industry cannot presently serve."

Wheat Pact Meets Resistance Among Consuming Countries

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Only 7 of the 37 wheat importing nations that signed the International Wheat Agreement March 23—three months ago—have formally ratified the pact.

The pact must be approved by purchasers of 70 per cent of the 456 million bushels covered by it, by June 30—a week from tomorrow—or it will expire.

The 1948 agreement — which called for a 10 per cent higher minimum price for wheat than the present pact—expired a year ago when the Senate refused to ratify it. It also called for 10 per cent greater exports. Although this country had been the leader in bringing about that agreement, the Eightieth Congress rejected it, mainly because many Senators thought the maximum price ($2 a bushel) was too low.

None of those that have formally approved the pact so far are major importers. Altogether they guarantee to purchase only about 71 million bushels. The pact won't go into effect unless purchasers of 320 million bushels agree within a week.

Officials in charge of the pact were visibly concerned over the situation yesterday. Francis A. Linville, assistant chief of the State Department's division of international resources predicted that if the pact is ratified by June 30 it will be by just barely enough."

Linville declared himself "quite uneasy". "I wish I could get others as concerned as I am," he remarked.

Several major importers are expected to ratify any day now, officials said. But, they add, this action has been expected daily since last March.

Nations and Quotas

The nations that have ratified so far, and the amount they agree to purchase, are: Belgium, 20.2 million bushels; South Africa, 11 million; New Zealand, 4.6 million; Switzerland, 6.4 million; Ireland, 10.1 million; Greece, 15.7 million, and Ceylon, 2.9 million.

Action toward ratifying has been started in both Italy (40 million bushels) and the Netherlands (25.7 million) but local officials are not informed as to how near they are to conclusion.

The largest purchaser, the United Kingdom (177 million) is expected to ratify. No legislative action is necessary in Great Britain. If the British cabinet fails to act—which would mean the end of the agreement—it will surprise everyone.

Ex-Actress Kills Self After Slaying Husband

Norfolk, Conn., June 21 (AP).—Former Actress Viola Gordon Munro shot and killed her husband, Alfred Gordon Munro, 74, in the bedroom of their small apartment here today and then killed herself, State police reported.

Munro was a one-time Boston theater manager and his wife, about 55, was a monologist or elocutionist and lecturer until their joint retirement about six years ago.

Election Put Off By Presbyterians

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 21.—A plan to elect the moderator of the Synod of Baltimore, Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., on the final day of its annual meeting here was approved today.

The plan, submitted to the synod last year, was acted upon by the twenty-fourth annual conference of the Baltimore synod which opened at Hood College yesterday. In previous years the moderator was elected on the opening day.

From 153 Churches

Ministers and laymen from 153 churches in the District of Columbia, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia are attending the sessions.

Election of the moderator will take place Thursday afternoon. Each year one of the three presbyteries which make up the synod nominates the man to be chosen moderator.

The Washington City Presbytery, which this year is nominating the moderator, has submitted the name of Dr. Halley B. Taylor, pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, 15th and R sts. nw., Washington.

At Business Meeting

At today's business meeting, the Rev. Robert E. Sherrill, pastor of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, 1862 Kalorama rd. nw., was elected to a one-year term as temporary clerk of the synod.

Reports of the presbyteries of Maryland, Delaware and Washington City were submitted at the business session. A report of the general council, urging restudy of the rules of the synod to make the council more active in conducting its work also was submitted.

Miss Constance M. Hallock of New York, a member of the board of national missions of the church, spoke at a meeting conducted by the synodical, women's organization of the synod.

Dr. Kloman Accepts Call To St. Albans

Dr. Kloman

Dr. E. Felix Kloman, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Alban's Episcopal Church, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw.

Dr. Kloman, who succeeds the late Dr. C. T. Warner who died in January after serving as rector of St. Alban's for 36 years, will come here September 15.

A native of Haymarket, Va., the new rector is a graduate of Episcopal High School, Alexandria, the University of Virginia, and the Virginia Theological Seminary. He also holds an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Temple University, and an honorary Doctor of Sacred Theology Degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

After his graduation from the seminary, Dr. Kloman studied tropical diseases at Livingston College, London, and served as a missionary in Liberia for two years.

In 1927 he became assistant rector of Grace Church, New York, where he served until going to the Philadelphia church in 1938.

As rector of the 254-year-old Christ Church in downtown Philadelphia, Dr. Kloman took part in community activities. He is head of a 300-member Neighborhood Business Men's Club which meets regularly at the parish house.

The 48-year-old rector, who is married and has four children, is a nephew of William C. Kloman, chairman of the board of the Kloman Instrument Co., 1822 I st. nw.

Lutherans To Observe Anniversary

The 10th anniversary of the organization of the Southeastern District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will be observed at 8 p. m. today at Trinity Lutheran School, Mount Rainier, Md.

The celebration is part of the seventh annual convention of the district, which began yesterday at the school. Delegates from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Delaware and North and South Carolina are attending the meetings.

Yesterday the Rev. Rudolph S. Ressmeyer, president of the district, told the 129 ministers and laymen that in the 10 years since the district was organized, membership has increased 50 per cent, contributions 150 per cent and Christian school enrollment 700 per cent.

Present membership is 29,000 baptized persons; annual contributions total $75,000, and there are 998 children in schools, he said.

The Rev. O. A. Sauer of Richmond yesterday delivered the first of a series of convention lectures on "The Life of Joseph, with Applications to Christian Living." Sessions will be concluded Thursday.

Egress Rules To Take Effect

ditions the fire marshal deemed hazardous.

Another $75,000 item is in the current District budget, and additional funds for safety work in schools probably will be contained in next year's budget, General Young said.

General Young said that subsequent to these fire marshal checks, another survey showed that $1,600,000 would be needed to make schools conform with egress regulations. A "good part" of this work, he said, probably falls in the category of not being "common sense."

Pressure for adequate fire regulations in Washington mounted rapidly after the Boston Coconut Grove fire in 1942, which cost nearly 500 lives.

New regulations were finally drafted, applying to buildings constructed after March 8, 1946, but enforcement of the code for buildings erected before that time was delayed by pressure of property owners to November 1, 1947, later to July, 1948, then to January, 1949, and finally to July 1, with owners given until August 1 to make corrections.

Food, Funds and Common Sense

All three are in good supply on this business-like Isle of Progress

THE PEOPLE of the Dominican Republic, second largest country of the West Indies, face today's troubled world with confidence born of well being and sound economic progress.

In 18 short years of skilfully-planned improvement, amazing things have happened. From a bare subsistence level, Dominican enterprise now feeds its people well—and exports large quantities of many foods. Exports have climbed nearly 600 percent.

A $20,000,000 foreign debt has been whittled down to zero—an achievement no other country in the world has equalled. A sound Dominican currency has been developed, with ample gold reserves, and substantial dollar balances in New York. The Dominican peso today is worth exactly 10 U. S. dimes.

These are only a few of the results that have come from the Dominican government's scientific direction applied to production, marketing and finance. Dominicans are proud of their country's prodigious achievements.

For information concerning tourist attractions or business opportunities, write to the Dominican Republic Information Center, 6 West 51st Street, New York 20, N. Y.

AT WELL-STOCKED MARKETS like this one at Ciudad Trujillo, Dominicans buy excellent fruits, vegetables, meat and fish in plenty. Clean, sanitary markets are characteristic of the country. Practically all the Dominican Republic's food is produced within the country.

DOMINICANS PRODUCE 100,000,000 POUNDS OF RICE A YEAR. Fifteen years ago its rice was nearly all imported. Today Dominicans grow and clean enough rice to supply all, some for export. Rice retails locally for about 13¢ a pound.

SUGAR is a big-money crop. The Dominican Republic ranks fourth among Latin American republics as a sugar producer. Its annual export of sugar averages 500,000 tons. The country's agriculture is well diversified.

BANK DEPOSITS have climbed more than 700 percent since 1936, to more than $50,000,000 in 1948. The circulation of dollars has increased ten-fold to meet increased volume of business.

GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROJECTS provide 3- and 4-room Hollywood-type bungalows for $14 to $23 a month, with electricity, water, modern plumbing and sewer facilities, and title to tenant after 10 years.

LIVING IS GOOD. The houses of business and industrial executives follow the modern Dominican architecture—combining beauty and comfort.

At Least 106 Killed In Japan's Typhoon

No Relief

Drought, Heat Wave Plague East

Chicago, June 21 (U.P.).—The first day of summer was one of the hottest days of the year for many areas, especially the East, where the worst June drought in 41 years continued unabated today.

But in the Midwest north winds and showers promised relief from a heat wave which had sent temperatures into the mid 90's.

Public officials at New York and Cleveland took steps to conserve dwindling water supplies.

In New York, city engineers asked parents to stop children from splashing in streams of water from street hydrants.

Cleveland's director of utilities warned that reservoirs had dropped to "dangerously low levels" and asked residents to forego sprinkling lawns and gardens.

Farmers in New York State and New England, who have reported crop losses totaling about 50 million dollars, were given scant hope of relief from the drought.

Since the drought began, New England has counted 43 deaths from the heat or drowning. In the last 27 days, the Boston area has had only .19 inch of rain.

Potomac Death Toll Now Listed as Eight

Moorefield, W. Va., June 21 (AP). The body of a sixth victim of the weekend flood on the South Branch valley of the Potomac River was found today at Sycamore, between here and Romney.

Searchers discovered the badly decomposed body of Leota Redmond, 12, of Old Fields, along the stream banks.

The girl, along with Nata Walker, 18, and Winston V. Beckwith, 2, both of Old Fields, was washed away Friday night while hanging on to a tree after the car in which they were riding with Mr. and Mrs. John Gaither, of Old Fields, was overturned by the high water. The Gaithers were rescued Saturday morning.

The finding of the Redmond girl makes it virtually certain that Miss Walker and the Beckwith boy are dead also, making a definite death toll of eight, authorities here said. Five others still are missing and are believed dead.

In the Washington area, the waters of the Potomac remained at normal levels, according to harbor police. The only thing out of the ordinary, they said, was the large number of small pieces of debris floating downstream.

Tokyo (Wednesday), June 22 (AP). Government reports today put Japan's typhoon death toll at 106. Other reports said 563 were missing.

The storm center had passed northward over the Sea of Japan after buffeting Kyush with 93-mile winds and heavy rain. It was scheduled to hit Honshu today.

The Japanese Welfare Ministry gave this toll: 106 dead, 66 injured, 659 homes destroyed and 2803 damaged. Most of the deaths were attributed to drowning in flooded rivers that surged through towns and villages.

All the dead and injured were reported to be Japanese.

The typhoon, with gusts up to 115 miles an hour, first struck at the big U. S. Air Base on Okinawa, south of Japan. No American casualties were reported.

Osaka, Japan's second largest city, was in the region hard hit by the rains and flood.

Ship Sending Out SOS Carries Jungle Beasts

Hongkong, June 21 (U.P.).—Port authorities picked up an SOS from the 8591-ton American freighter Lightning, adrift off Okinawa after breaking loose from her moorings. Pacific Far East Lines said the ship carried a cargo of Siamese jungle beasts, including 700 monkeys, 8 elephants, 12 bears and a dozen snakes over 20 feet in length.

550 Youngsters Head for Camp

The first group of some 550 youngsters have left the Washington area for a two-week vacation at the Salvation Army's Camp Happyland, in Triangle, Va.

Features of this summer's activities, Lieut. Leslie Hall, camping director, announced, will be ceramics, nature studies, trail blazing, woodcraft and swimming. Also baseball, boating, fishing and picnics.

The Salvation Army, which also operates a camp for Negro children, announced that "due to budgetary curtailments, the camps are depending entirely upon the Army's many friends to assure continuance of the 12-week schedule now set up."

Antilynching Bill Almost Passed On Routine Call

The Senate yesterday came within a hair's breadth of passing the controversial antilynching bill.

The bill's number and title were called on routine calendar procedure.

Senator Guy Gillette (D., Iowa), presiding, waited a moment and began to declare the measure passed. But Senator Spessard Holland (D., Fla.) jumped to his feet just in time with an objection.

The measure, if called up under normal procedure, would launch a full-dress Southern filibuster.

Reorganization Bill Passed

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday passed a major reorganization bill carrying out some of the recommendations of the Hoover Commission in the fields of Government procurement and housekeeping.

The measure, introduced by Chairman McClellan (D., Ark.) of the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee, was approved as a substitute to a similar measure passed by the House.

The legislation now goes to a conference with the House. McClellan said he anticipated little difficulty in reconciling differences.

The bill is not one of the seven reorganization plans sent to Capitol Hill Monday by President Truman under he terms of the newly approved reorganization authorization measure.

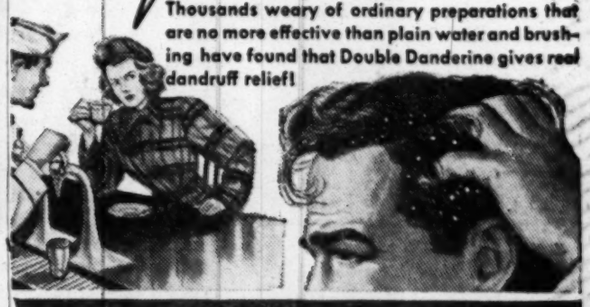
I HATE DANDRUFF!
Thousands weary of ordinary preparations that are no more effective than plain water and brushing have found that Double Danderine gives real dandruff relief!



Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF
Kills dandruff-causing germ*—on contact!
This refreshingly fragrant, easy-to-use dandruff preparation has given truly remarkable results—even in some of the most stubborn cases!
If you have dandruff—and have tried many preparations in a vain attempt to get effective relief—you'll be happy to know about Double Danderine. For as thousands have discovered, it really works!
Ordinary dandruff-combatting methods that simply remove loose dandruff don't give you effective relief. For they don't destroy the germ which authorities explain is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff. The truth is, they do no more than plain water and brushing will do! But Double Danderine actually kills this germ—on contact!
That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.
*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

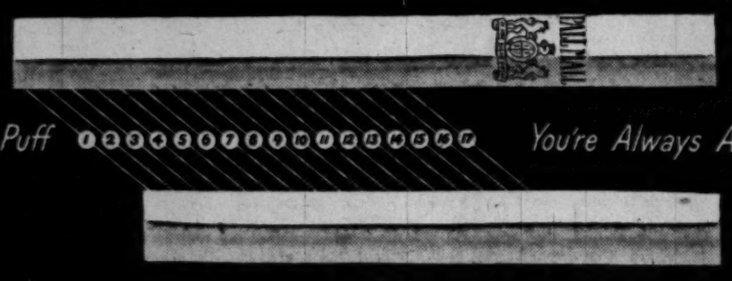
GUARD AGAINST THROAT-SCRATCH
enjoy smooth smoking

PALL MALL's greater length of fine tobaccos travels the smoke further... filters the smoke and makes it mild

LET YOUR THROAT ENJOY SMOOTH SMOKING! Puff by puff—you're always ahead when you smoke PALL MALL. For PALL MALL's greater length travels the smoke further on its way to your throat—filters it naturally through PALL MALL's traditionally fine, mellow tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch. Thus PALL MALL's fine tobaccos give you a smoothness, mildness and satisfaction no other cigarette offers you.

THROAT-SCRATCH SPOILS SMOKING ENJOYMENT. You guard against it when you smoke PALL MALL. If you really want your throat to enjoy smooth smoking, ask for PALL MALL—the longer, finer cigarette in the distinguished red package.

PUFF BY PUFF... YOU'RE ALWAYS AHEAD
Take 5 puffs or 10... or 17... when you smoke PALL MALL



Study the puff chart! At the first puff, PALL MALL's smoke is filtered further than that of any other leading cigarette. Moreover, after 5 puffs of each cigarette—or 10, or 15, or 17—PALL MALL still gives you a longer, natural filter of fine tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch.

Outstanding—and they are mild!

Morality By Terror

The acts of violence committed in the South by hooded and sheeted men during the past fortnight are not typical lynchings, in that local law enforcement officers appear to have had no complicity in them. Moreover, the victims, 11 of them thus far, have been white persons, and they have been flogged or threatened with death but not actually killed. Otherwise, the attributes of what is called "lynch law" have been evidenced. Private persons have inflicted punishment for "offenses" which were not criminal, without any authority or process of law.

The "offenses" punished by the masked hoodlums all seem to belong in the morals category. In the latest case, a mother was beaten with a rope because the night riders didn't like the company kept by one of her daughters. Other victims were accused of "improper behavior" or of "mingling with Negroes" or of other infractions of what the lynchers consider proper conduct.

If these are not true lynchings, the South nevertheless has its tradition of lynching to thank for them. For certainly they are inspired by and reflective of the tolerance with which too many Southern officials have in the past looked upon mobs which took the law into their own hands. Nothing is plainer than that violence breeds violence and that disrespect for law is incorrigibly contagious. The lesson should not be lost upon the authorities of Alabama, where the violence has been concentrated. It is greatly to be hoped that they will have speedy success in putting an end to this ugly terrorism—and that they will act with equal vigor henceforth to prevent terrorism in all its forms.

Wind-Up In Paris

The best thing that can be said about the Four-Power Conference is there has been an abatement of tension in the relations between Soviet Russia and the Western powers. Even the optimists had not expected more than was actually accomplished. All along, Foreign Minister Schuman had expressed the feeling that a working arrangement on Germany on the basis of the present partition would be arranged and that the way would be paved for a state treaty on Austria. This is what has happened. Even these meager results of the parley seem to be regarded as highly tentative, dependent upon the maintenance of administration in accordance with the pledges, and, in the case of Austria, upon the hope that negotiations will not be impeded by fresh obstacles. Vishinsky's ex post facto attempt to rewrite the communique, arising from fresh instructions from the Kremlin, added to the sense of uncertainty over the achievement.

What the diplomats call the modus vivendi on Germany provides for the carrying out of the Jessup-Malik arrangement which brought the Foreign Ministers together. The blockade of Berlin has been lifted, but there will be no return to the preblockade arrangement in the supervision of Berlin. Two Berlins will now exist along with two Germanys. It is a thoroughly anomalous arrangement, but the Western allies would have been foolish to go back to a single authority for Berlin in which the Soviet would again have been armed with veto power. This system would have invited deadlock after deadlock.

Western counterblockade of eastern Germany, of course, has been abandoned along with the blockade, but this can mean an exchange of goods only on a limited scale. As to Austria, the prospect of a state treaty liberating Austria from military occupation now appears fairly bright. This, however, is due to Tito's squabble with the Kremlin, not, apparently, to any change of heart in Moscow. Moscow has decided to drop its backing of Tito's claim to Carinthia—the main stumbling block hitherto to an agreement. In return the allies seem to have made concessions on the lump sum to be paid to Russia in redemption of Russia's claims to so-called German assets in Austria.

The Paris conference was notable for the absence of acrimony. Evidently the Kremlin had decided that the tactic of attacking the other participants and the countries they represent was a boomerang. The bluster that has hitherto marked such meetings gave place to diplomacy. Vishinsky, who can scream louder than Molotov when the Politburo requires, was almost dulcet, and observers noted a new uncertainty, almost a defensiveness, in Soviet policy. The Soviet spokesman added to other bits of evidence that the new line in influencing people is to stress the Muscovite devotion to peace. Much more will have to be done to persuade the Western world of the reality of Soviet professions.

The lesson of this conference to the Western world, to paraphrase the President's reaction, is the wisdom of persevering with the initiative it has won in securing and unifying the free world. The only answer to the perpetuation of partition of Germany is an unceasing quest to bring the Germans into the European community.

Four-Way Split

It is difficult to imagine a more unsatisfactory decision than that by which the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the act opening Federal Courts in the States to citizens of the District in cases involving diversity of citizenship. Only Justices Black and Burton joined Justice Jackson in the opinion of the court. Justices Rutledge and Murphy concurred in the result, but for totally different reasons. The other four justices dissented, dividing into pairs for expression of their opinions. "Conflicting minorities in combination," as Justice Frankfurter complained, "bring to pass a result—paradoxical as it may appear—which differing majorities of the court find insupportable." The decision thus seems to teeter on the edge of a legal foundation which a majority of six judges would like to snatch away.

The quarrel between the majority groups arose over Chief Justice Marshall's ruling back in 1804 that a citizen of the District was not a citizen of a State within the meaning of the Judiciary Act of 1789. Justices Rutledge and Murphy wanted to overrule Marshall and say flatly that the District is a State within the meaning of Article III of the Constitution, which defines the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts. The Jackson-Black-Burton trio would not go that far. In Marshall's adverse ruling under the old Judiciary Act, he had said, "But this is a subject for legislative not for judicial consideration." Congress took up that suggestion 136 years later and voted to open the Federal Courts to District residents on the same basis as they are available to other citizens. It did not attempt to overrule Marshall or to change the meaning of the word "State" in Article III, but in its capacity as the exclusive legislative power over the District it put local citizens on a par with those of the States in pressing their suits in the Federal Courts. The power exercised was not that given Congress to create inferior courts but that of governing the District.

This does not seem to us a stretching of constitutional authority. Congress did not impose on the courts any unjudicial duties or any unreasonable burden. On the contrary, it merely removed a discrimination against District citizens that has no warrant from the viewpoint of logic or convenience. It is hard to imagine, as Justice Jackson said, a fairer or less prejudiced solution of an ancient problem.

The two minority groups were concerned because they believe, as Justice Frankfurter said, that the Jackson opinion "invites a use of the Federal Courts which breaks with the whole history of the Federal judiciary and disregards the wise policy behind that history." Chief Justice Vinson said flatly that the court had exercised "an amendatory function" in interpreting the Constitution. In our opinion it would be more accurate to say that the prevailing minority gave broad recognition to Article I of the Constitution with the result of slightly impinging upon Article III, for the sake of upholding an act of Congress and correcting a long standing injustice. If this involves any "gymnastic expansion" of the grand old charter, it is insignificant in comparison to some of the court's other feats in elasticity which have brought less desirable results.

The Road To Statism

Congressman Pace, chairman of a House Agriculture Subcommittee, is actively sponsoring a bill calling for repeal of the Aiken law and allowing Secretary Brannan to try out his proposed subsidy plan on three commodities. The bill also provides for a new definition of parity as urged by the Secretary. The subcommittee favors the trial proposal because it proved impossible to determine the cost of the full-fledged plan, pass judgment on its administrative difficulties, or appraise its benefits to consumers.

It seems to us that these are first-rate arguments against authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to experiment with a program the cost and efficacy of which are veiled in obscurity. Besides, trial runs are not needed to enable Congress to decide whether it is in the national interest to establish a system of price supports and subsidies designed to maintain farm income at levels commensurate with those of other groups. All that is required is to examine the plan itself, which, on its face, encourages overproduction and would necessitate extensive production and marketing controls over virtually every crop. In fact, Secretary Brannan himself has stressed the essentiality of compliance with control measures, such as acreage allotments, market quotas, and marketing agreements to prevent wasteful production and disorderly marketing.

In his speech at Washington and Lee University, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes warned that some of the legislative programs that are being seriously considered may lead us "down the road to statism." If adopted, there is danger, he said, that "the individual soon will be an economic slave pulling an oar in the galley of the state." Mr. Byrnes may well have had the Brannan program in mind when he spoke, for it would unquestionably open the door to an excessive amount of regimentation of agriculture. Moreover, if farm incomes were to be guaranteed, other producing groups would soon be demanding similar protection against economic vicissitudes, and the end result might be state control of industry as well as agriculture.

The question that confronts the country today is how to establish a system of controls that will give the farmer reasonable protection against excessive price fluctuations without subjecting him to governmentally imposed restrictions that would deprive him of all freedom of action. The problem is, as The Washington Post stated a few days ago, "one of degree." It is not a case of all or nothing.

Till recently the war and postwar price-support system, except in a few cases such as potatoes, has not had much effect on prices. Prices have been high because of abnormally heavy demands and food shortages. And support programs have probably kept them lower than they otherwise would have been in many cases by encouraging increases in production. But today conditions are different: surpluses are piling up and price supports are relied on to halt declines in agricultural prices. As a result the cost of this price-support system is mounting rapidly and will continue to rise unless corrective action is taken—in other words, unless the present high and rigid price-support system which puts a premium on overproduction is modified.

Secretary Brannan's plan takes cognizance of the danger, but proposes to meet it by tightening controls while maintaining high support prices geared to income for storable commodities and paying subsidies to farmers for perishable commodities equal to the difference between the support standards for such products and their market price. While food consumption would be stimulated by lower retail prices under this subsidy program, the cost of it would, of course, be borne by taxpayers.

Although the Aiken Act is far from perfect, it is a move in the right direction, since it institutes relatively low levels of support prices varying with the supply of the supported commodity. The bill indorsed by Rep. Pace would scrap this plan and set up new parity standards tied to high and rigid support prices that would actually raise support levels for most commodities. Since enactment of this measure would, in the absence of stringent production controls, encourage farmers to produce even greater surpluses, it would almost certainly pave the way for acceptance of the entire Brannan program as a substitute for the more flexible Aiken plan. That would be a major disaster.

Attack On Barden

One thing is pretty evident from Cardinal Spellman's attack on Representative Barden as "an apostle of bigotry" as well as on his aid-to-education bill: he didn't dispel much darkness. Quite aside from the propriety of a churchman using the altar as a platform for political diatribe, he is, it seems to us, under obligation, if he does so, to observe the canons of accuracy. The cardinal attacked the Barden bill as "un-American," "anti-Catholic," antichildren, and so forth, because, he said, it would deny parochial school pupils "the health benefits and transportation services provided for their companions attending public schools." The Barden bill in fact makes no such distinction. Federal funds to be granted under it could go only to public schools. But as it specifies that none of these funds shall be used for transportation or health services, the question of discrimination on these grounds does not arise. What bothers the cardinal, of course, is the explicit denial of any Federal funds to nonpublic education.

What the cardinal didn't say was that he and other Catholics favor the Thomas aid-to-education bill already passed by the Senate, which does not contain this denial. Like the Barden bill, it bars any Federal funds for school health, among other services, though it does not eliminate aid for transportation. And it permits the recipient States to dole out the Federal grants they receive for other purposes "for which educational revenues derived from State or local sources may legally and constitutionally be expended in such States." What it comes down to is that under the Thomas bill the Catholics can get Federal funds for free textbooks and school bus service in those States which appropriate for parochial as well as for public schools. Under the Barden bill they cannot.

FEEDING PUMPKINS TO COWS

The boy remembered the year they raised pumpkins
on the hill field next to the cow pasture.
After the corn was cut the pumpkins were dragged and dumped in a pile close to the pasture fence.
The boy's duty was to go on the hill each night and sling some to the cows.

He stuck a fork in a pumpkin—
it was like sticking a fork in a full moon—and lifted it over the fence and gave it a fling; the blow broke the pumpkin; the pieces jumped over the grass;
the broken yellow moons lay in the pasture;
the cows came,
they guzzled the splinters down, they stood and chewed, and the boy stood and watched; the real moon slid up in the sky round and red now as the pumpkins, and the boy felt wonder grow within him, at the wide sky, at the round red moon moving so placidly in it, at the cows chewing, and at himself there on the top of the world, with a pitchfork breaking moons for cows to eat.

"Reflections On Prices"

Your June 18 editorial drew the conclusion that the recent declines in copper, lead and zinc prices are healthy correctives toward a sound postwar economy. The degree of these reductions, however, has been such that our mining industry now faces conditions almost as serious as those of the early 30s.

My discussion does not apply to the great open-pit mines which produce about two thirds of our copper. In the underground mines which produce the remainder of our copper and all of our lead and zinc, labor costs are some 70 per cent of total costs. In these mines, costs per ton of ore have risen to about 2¼ times prewar costs.

The decade of the 30s was a period of intensely selective mining of high-grade ores. Low metal prices forced this suicidal robbing of our deposits. The wartime subsidies were not paid to maintain in operation a handful of miserable marginal mines. They were paid to allow all of our mines to abandon the practices of the 30s and expand their operations from a restricted selective basis to maximum production rates through mass-mining of all ores. Mass-mining in turn allowed extensive mechanization.

As a consequence, productivity of mine labor increased by some 35 per cent, grade of minable ore declined by about 4 per cent, and total metal production rose. Since the end of the war, high metal prices have allowed continuation of mass-mining in spite of increasing labor costs.

Suddenly prices have declined by 35 per cent to 50 per cent. The industry finds itself geared to mass-mining of ores, high labor costs, and heavy capital charges. At these prices it is probable that ruin stares in the face some 30 per cent of our copper mine capacity and 45 per cent of our lead-zinc mine capacity.

Let us not be too complacent at healthy correctives which involve on this scale the dispersion of skilled labor forces, destruction of capital values, loss of ore through collapse and flooding of abandoned workings, growth of monopoly, and the return to selective robbing of those deposits which remain in operation.

"Pushkin's Progress"

It is difficult to see what it was which exercised your editorialist in his June 19 piece on Pushkin. The Soviet critics and before them, Herzen, Bielinsky, Leoniev, Chernichevsky, have always regarded Pushkin as a literary giant, but never as any "proto-Communist Russian genius." As the American Pushkin scholars, Yarmolinsky, Harper and Simmons have pointed out, Pushkin is to Russia what Dante is to Italy, what Goethe is to Germany. One Russian critic summed it up when he said, "Pushkin is our all." Why then the difficulty in comprehending the recent apotheosis, when as you incorrectly say, that Dostoievsky, Tolstoy, Turgenev and Gogol are now depedestalized. From my reading of recent issues of International Literature, I see no such switch in party line.

And, what do you make of Pushkin's not being wholly Russian by race? Of course Pushkin was proud of his African lineage, inordinately so. The Russians, after all, are a very mixed racial group, as witness Lenin the Kalmuk and Stalin the Georgian. But, before the bar of all nations and continents, the U. S. S. R. stands with clean hands with respect to its constitution and its laws concerning race persecution and treatment of racial minorities.

"Moral Disarmament"

Had Mr. Martin called you to find out what a Moral Rearmament Conference is, as suggested in your editorial of June 12, he would have received some very inaccurate information. But you probably know by now that the Oxford Movement belongs to the Church of England and that the Oxford Group belongs to Dr. Buchman. J. I. H. EALES.
Alexandria.

Editor's Note—For some years the term "Oxford Movement" has been an occasion of no little confusion. Before 1921 it was universally understood as referring to the revival of High church theology that occurred at Oxford University in the later 1830s, and found expression in the famous Tracts for the Times. However, the name is now commonly used to designate the religious principles and practices taught by Mr. Buchman, whose early disciples were won at Oxford. To escape the confusion there seems a tacit agreement nowadays to refer to the Anglican movement associated with the names of Newman, Ward, Keble, Pusey, etc., as "Tractarian." The second edition of Webster's International Dictionary recognizes Mr. Buchman and his cult as the "Oxford Group Movement."

Admission Of DPs

There are rational arguments that can be stated against admission of displaced persons. Experience has shown that with tighter restrictions placed on immigration the economic status of the Negro has improved.

Any realistic person will readily agree that DPs are sought by States to fill menial jobs that "native" Americans do not accept. By menial jobs I mean tenant farming and for proof I cite the readiness of Southern States in accepting DPs. Tenant farming is a blight on this Nation that ought to be eradicated and not encouraged.

Experience has also shown that during times of stress—the great depression—among the first people to become dislocated were the immigrants.

In the past I have objected to admission of DPs on these grounds. But the statements issuing from influential groups—DAR—in the name of "patriotism" have actually caused me to change my whole viewpoint on the matter.

I speak as the son of immigrant parents. I have experienced the degradation and witnessed the plight of immigrant people. My mother had five children to support all by herself. She pleaded for employment. When opportunity was finally presented it was of the most menial sort.

Recently I asked her, "If you had it to do all over again, would you?" "Yes," she said. "Why?" I asked. "Fri-spitch," she said.

Would someone please list a better argument for admission of DPs. I doubt that it is possible, because this is the American dream. This has been encouraged and sought for in the past and, I hope, will continue to be so in the future.

"Battle Of The Books"

You apparently missed the boat in your June 16 editorial "Battle of the Books." Your discussion of Mr. Alexander's suit has completely disregarded the factors most objectionable in the Merchant of Venice and Oliver Twist.

When you cite King Claudius and Titus Andronicus as examples of representatives of nationalities who could easily raise like objections, you make obvious your misunderstanding of the entire situation.

Claudius and Titus, in their respective plays, were members of a group. All of the characters in Hamlet were Danish—heroes and villains alike. There is no danger of King Claudius being taken as typical of his race; Hamlet and Horatio are representatives of the same race and are portrayed as heroic.

If Shylock were one of many Jews portrayed in Venice, there would be little objection to the possible effects on young minds. We have no intention of banning all books with villains whose nationalities are indicated.

But Shylock is not a member of a group. No other character of importance in the play is a Jew (except Shylock's daughter, who converts). He therefore becomes a representative of a group. He is individualized as a Jew and it is this individuality coupled with his villainy that distinguishes him.

The immature mind, whose appreciation of a novel or play is generally confined to the hero, the villain and the romantic angle, in the schoolroom, is presented with situations that perfectly reinforce previous impressions or create new, undesirable associations.

Perhaps in another culture or era, where there is no psychological "set" for the prejudice, Fagin and Shylock could be appreciated for their dramatic effects without fear of possible negative influences. It is rather unlikely that one play, poem or song can, of itself, breed prejudice, but once the prejudice exists, any one of them, if effective, can help sustain it.

In the latter part of your editorial, you were no doubt referring to Taffy Was a Welshman, when you said, "Almost every English-speaking child at a very early age is encouraged to take a prejudiced view of the Welsh character." I feel quite safe in presuming that the greatest majority of children, of nursery rhyme age, have never heard of, or had any association with, the term "Welshman" (quite different from the frequently used "Jew").

In a situation of this kind, there would be no frame of reference, no association, and certainly no "set" for prejudice. You are correct in saying there is no anti-Welsh sentiment in America, and it is for just that reason that the rhyme is harmless. CELIA K. PAVIS.
Washington.

In the interest of common sense and essential justness, permit me to point out that the reason anti-Dane, Welsh, English, etc., literature can be shrugged off by these people is that a dominant people need have no fear of the consequences of libelous caricatures. I have never heard of restrictive covenants leveled against the Welsh, English, Danes, etc., as such; nor do I know of any concerted efforts to discriminate against them in the field of education, at resorts or in so basic a matter as earning a livelihood, have you? Civilizing Illegitimacy

By Malvina Lindsay

World's Unwanted

IN THE LAST few years a tidal wave of illegitimate children has washed up on a world still largely archaic in its laws and attitudes toward birth outside of wedlock. Hence states and cities in this country are beginning to look to revision of their bastardy laws. And the large number of illegitimate children in other countries attributed in paternity to foreign occupying troops, especially American, continue to be thorns of international rancor.

Americans abroad find United States servicemen still blamed for the continuing increase of "nameless children" even in countries from which American troops have been absent several years. For war's backwash of illegitimacy has continued throughout much of the world, especially in places where battle losses greatly upset the man-woman balance.

Need of world agreements to bring about better care of these children and their mothers is increasingly apparent. Too often lack of legal machinery for dealing with this problem shuts such children off from care they might get. This was recently demonstrated when welfare authorities of Heidelberg, Germany, were unable legally to accept offers of 134 American families to adopt illegitimate children of Negro soldiers in that area. These babies were part of about 5000 illegitimate children (of all races) born to German mothers in Heidelberg and Mannheim since the war. This shows the magnitude of the problem.

IN MUCH of this country the illegitimate child does not get a civilized start in life partly because of antiquated laws. That is one reason proponents of the new bastardy law for the District of Columbia hope it may set a national pattern for such legislation.

This proposed law, now undergoing some change, would force fathers to help support illegitimate children that the courts had declared to be theirs. It would also in such cases require the name of the father to be put on the birth certificate, and would remove the stigma of illegitimacy from the birth record of a child whose parents married after his birth.

This would take many illegitimate children off relief, it is believed. The rate of illegitimacy in the District is high—about 10 per cent of all live births—and far in excess of that for the Nation at large. One reason for this is that many young women come here for work, or to seek oblivion when in trouble.

This bill illustrates the growing trend toward more paternal obligation for illegitimate children. Yet the attitude in The Scarlet Letter still prevails in many places. Recently a court in Bristol, England, ruled that under the law the "illegitimate child is not the father's child, it is only the child of its mother."

MOST STATE laws in this country still brand children with illegitimacy on birth certificates. The National Association of Women Lawyers is seeking to have all States adopt anti-shame legislation to remove all references to illegitimacy on birth certificates. Since these frequently are required as proof of citizenship, for employment and other purposes, the illegitimate stigma can handicap a person throughout life.

Around 100,000 illegitimate children are born in this country annually. The rate took a sharp upturn in 1944, having been declining in the three preceding years. Strangely the upward shift has been chiefly among older girls, those between 20 and 29, often those from middle class families.

The unstable state of society makes it likely that fatherless children will continue on the increase in much of the world. Fairer laws based on modern conditions will do much to help these children. Even more needed is better understanding of the emotional and social processes involved. Only recently has there been recognition that fathers as well as mothers of illegitimate children need counseling and sympathy. And the future of the child depends on the affection and understanding he receives from society even more than on the dollars obtained for his support.

Sesquicentennial

The article "Club Hears Foreign Students" by Genevieve Reynolds, in your issue of June 16, arrested my attention: "I wish every young Czechoslovakian could see American democracy first hand. Then I am sure there would be no misunderstanding between the two countries," Prague-born Rudy Kroc told members of the Washington Soroptimist Club yesterday. Kroc was one of 11 foreign students attending the Stuyvesant School in Warrenton, who gave brief speeches at the club's luncheon, held at the Willard Hotel. Miss Reynolds quotes several of the other students, from Ecuador, Siam, Egypt, Colombia, etc.—all in the same vein.

Here is the answer to the House Committee on Appropriations, that seems to doubt that any good would some from advancing two million dollars, to start the wheels of the National Washington Sesquicentennial Exposition. It is bound to grow into the greatest world fair in history, the Freedom Fair that all the peoples of the earth will want to see!

Washington Calling

June Graduates

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—There they go, out into the world, the long line in cap and gown. From one side of the country to the other they are stepping out of colleges and high schools as the bands play solemn music and the orators warm up their graduation day rhetoric.

Childs

In the audience, we, their parents, feel a bursting pride. And yet at the same time we can't help but wonder what kind of a world they are going to find. It is that old familiar feeling of watching the young bird pushed out of the nest.

Foolish, of course, since many of these young men were at Guadalcanal and Salerno and Bastogne and other faraway places with strange-sounding names and nasty climates. But parents are parents, and I suppose they always will be.

While the final figures are not in, the line of college graduates this June is likely to be longer than ever before. In 1948 it was 319,000, which was nearly 50 per cent greater than the prewar high of 1940.

For the first time since the war, graduates this year are likely to experience some difficulty getting jobs. That is a reflection of an economy that has slipped from the phenomenal war and postwar peaks.

EWAN CLAGUE, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, gave some useful guidance the other day. He listed the fields in which there is likely to be an oversupply of new graduates for the next few years, as engineering, law, accounting, business administration, personnel work and journalism. By next year pharmacy may be added to the list.

There will be continued shortages in teaching, nursing, medicine, dentistry, the medical-service occupations and social work. The big need in teaching is for elementary teachers. But high-school enrollments are expected to increase by more than a third in the 10-year period beginning in 1952, and that will mean a need for more high school teachers.

"While the current unemployment level is still low when compared to the record size of the civilian labor force," Clague said, "it does mean job difficulties for new workers as well as for handicapped people, older workers, and others who are less readily hired. Industry's needs for new college graduates are also affected by the fact that the wartime and postwar shortages in a number of occupations have now been filled."

Trends in these matters have a way of shifting every decade or so. In the 20s the thing to do was go with a brokerage house and sell pretty pieces of paper for a lot more than they were worth. In the 30s Government attracted a number of bright young men and women. The war and the inflation took care of the 40s.

It sems to me there's a lot more uncertainty today. The young seem to be less sure of what they want to do. If there's to be a pattern in the 50s, it is not yet apparent.

SOME long-range forecasters take a gloomy view of the collegians' future. They want to know where all the graduates in the years to come are going to find the respectable jobs they've been led to believe would be the reward for their education.

For example, if 50,000 engineers a year are graduated and the total replacement for the country is less than 10,000 under normal circumstances, where will the 40,000 find a chance to use their hard-won skills? If American know-how can be exported under the Point IV proposal, perhaps some engineers can be sent abroad. But the number would be small.

Clague takes an optimistic view. He says engineering graduates will find that their training helps them to obtain administrative or technical sales jobs.

But engineering will not be the only category in which there will be a surplus even at present employment levels. Young men and women who educate themselves in the belief that society has a place for them and then find no place are bound to be unhappy and frustrated. Young people in this class were among Hitler's early adherents in Germany.

Speculation of this kind has thus far not deterred ambitious youth. The number of graduates in 1950 is expected to be an all-time high. During the past year there were 2,400,000 students at the college level, a million more than the record prewar year. If education means something more than just a better job and a higher status, then maybe the young are taking away something that will sustain them no matter what the trials and tribulations. But that is speculation, too.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Fighting Chance

SAIGON, Indo-China.—The French cannot reconquer this country. French colonial power cannot be restored here, not with all the jet planes in the world. The French know it. Therefore what the French now plan here is simply a holding operation, an attempt to buy time.

For the West, the French holding operation will have an obvious value. It will postpone the chain reaction which the loss of Indo-China to the Communists, following immediately on the heels of the loss of China, would almost certainly produce throughout southeast Asia. But postponement is not enough.

The French plan to create what they call a "redoubt," a center of military power, across the eastern coastal route of infiltration by the Chinese Communists. To this end, they mean to root out Ho Chi-Minh's guerillas from a quadrilateral area bounded by Langson, Moncay, Hanoi and Haiphong. This redoubt will not seal the Indo-Chinese borders. In the mountainous thick jungle of the interior, that is impossible. But, by cutting off the coastal route, the redoubt will confine contact across the borders to jungle trails. It will thus be difficult for the Chinese Communists to deliver any decisive aid to their Indo-Chinese comrades.

The ultimate purpose of this holding operation is to allow time for the organization of an independent Viet Nam government and army under the titular and possibly temporal leadership of the former Emperor, Bao Dai. This government and army will then have the task of doing what the French cannot do—reducing Ho Chi-Minh's following to a hard Communist core and establishing a truly independent Indo-China.

THERE ARE those here who believe this French plan is nonsense. Bao Dai is a rather pathetic French stooge, so the argument runs. He can never attract the essential nationalist support. The French army and colonial services are determined to sabotage an independent Viet Nam government in any case. For these reasons it is said that the last and only hope, here as in China, is an attempt to promote the apostasy of the Communist leadership.

THE PLAIN fact is that, after what has happened in China, the West simply cannot afford any risk at all of losing Indo-China. This country is like a great muscular finger crooked around Siam and probing into the heart of southeast Asia. Its loss will be the first stage of catastrophe. What can the United States, as leader of the West, do?

Before coming to the Orient, this reporter suspected that the new postwar Asiatic nationalism was largely a surface phenomenon, articulated by a handful of intellectuals. It is nothing of the sort. It is a deep and universal force. Already we have been maneuvered into the position of seeming to be the enemies of Asiatic nationalism, while Moscow masquerades as its champion. If this process is allowed to continue indefinitely, in the unanimous opinion of the best observers in the Orient, we shall surely lose Asia. We must halt the process.

Thus what we cannot do is obvious. An American policy which supports, or seems to support, the moribund remnants of French colonialism in Asia would be sheer folly. An American arms program in aid of a French colonial army in a war which that army can never really win would be absolutely fatal to American interests throughout Asia.

What we can do is also obvious. We can support the Viet Nam experiment here with energy and determination. We can publicly insist, so to speak, on the reality of Viet Nam's independence—which will certainly deeply irritate a good many of the French.

TO THIS end, we should as soon as practicable offer generous American diplomatic, economic and military aid to the independent Viet Nam government and army which the French are now officially promoting. The real weakness of Viet Nam does not lie in the fact that Viet Nam's ruler, Bao Dai, was a playboy in his youth. It lies in the universal conviction that Bao Dai is the puppet of French colonialism, and thus as clearly doomed as French colonialism, while Ho Chi-Minh rides the wave of the future.

If the West is to have even a fighting chance in Indo-China, this conviction must be changed and only a determined American policy can change it.

Under any circumstances there is in truth no more than a fighting chance here. But a fighting chance is better than no chance at all. And there is still one chance—a Viet Nam government which owes allegiance to no great power, not France, nor the Soviet Union, nor the United States. The full weight of American strength should now be brought to bear to promote and support such a government.

Eleven to Graduate From Hebrew Academy

Speakers will be Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, member of the District Board of Education; Rabbi Henry Segal, spiritual leader of Congregation B'nai Israel, and Bernard Danzansky, president of the Hebrew Academy of Washington.

Miss Coplon Admits Hotel Trysts With Federal Lawyer

truth, Miss Coplon, that you and Gubitchev never were in love whatsoever in the slightest degree?"

"I will speak for myself," the tiny brunette defendant replied easily. As far as I knew, I was very deeply in love with him. As far as I knew, from what he said to me, I thought he was very deeply in love with me."

"And that is how you felt right up to January 14, the moment before he told you he was a married man?" Kelley repeated, rather quietly.

The Night of January 7

"I did," the defendant answered.

Kelley sat forward in his chair in an almost imperceptible movement. His voice started in steely tones, but not too loudly, then rose sharply, hitting hard on each word:

"Is it not the truth that just one week prior to that date, prior to January 14, which would be the night of January 7, you spent the night in room 412, in the Southern Hotel in Baltimore, Md., while registered with a man under the name of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Shapiro, from 122 Burnside ave., East Hartford, Conn?"

It was the surprise that gave the question such impact. Palmer had depicted Miss Coplon's romance with Gubitchev as a kissless love affair. The question seemed to make the courtroom tremble. The sobs of Miss Coplon's mother could scarcely be heard in the noise and confusion.

By comparison, Miss Coplon may be said to have remained calm — she has been incredibly calm and fluent during her testimony. But her face paled and something shattered across it as she sat forward sharply in her chair as if jerked there. It was a "damn lie," she was shouting, and Palmer was screeching an objection—which Judge Reeves overruled.

"Answer my question," Kelley drove back, "did you not spend the night with Mr. Shapiro on those occasions."

"I do not know how he registered," Miss Coplon replied, her hands clasped together. "I spent the night with him, during which time I did not sleep or make any attempt to sleep."

"In Baltimore on the 7th?"

'Baltimore on the 7th," she repeated.

"In Philadelphia on the 8th?"

"It was that weekend," she said.

"Both nights?" Kelley asked.

"Both nights."

"Friday and Saturday?"

"Friday and Saturday."

She Answered in Negative

Kelley looked straight at the trimly built 5-foot, 100-pound girl.

"Did you not spend New Year's Eve of this year with Mr. Shapiro, in fornication, in an apartment of a friend of his in this city?"

She was still sitting forward and her eyes remained on the prosecutor's: "I did not."

Have you not spent nights during the month of February in Shapiro's apartment—in fact, to be specific, the seventeenth of February, the night before you went up to meet Gubitchev—bringing your bag there with you, when you entered, taking it with you the next morning when you left the apartment to go to the Department of Justice and leaving for New York?"

Miss Coplon hesitated a moment. "I think I did that night."

"And have you not spent other nights in his apartment during the month of February?" Kelley's voice rose.

"I have," the defendant admitted.

"Now," said Kelley, "let us go back to the second time you met him. What was the date your second meeting with Mr. Gubitchev?"

Palmer flung to his feet: "The question was fornication. Then he changed his question. I submit the lady has a right to answer the question."

Judge Reeves ruled: "She may answer."

Miss Coplon herself turned dramatically to the jurist:

"May I ask you one thing, Your Honor?"

"Do not ask me," the white-haired, 75-year-old judge said, shaking his head, but Miss Coplon continued:

"No, really—is this related to the issues of the case? Has he a right to besmirch me in the presence of my mother?"

Judge Reeves ruled yet again: "You may answer."

"You can answer," Kelley said, "the question about this fornication."

The defendant's eyes came back from jurist to prosecutor: "I did not spend the night with him in fornication."

Q. (from Kelley): You spent the night with him in the hotel registered as man and wife?

A. I do not know how we were registered.

Q. Why didn't you inquire?

A. I did not think of it.

Q. What were you doing?

A. We went away on the weekend.

"To Discuss Literature?"

Q. What for?

A. We went away on the weekend.

Q. To discuss literature? (Miss Coplon has said it was having things like art and literature in common that attracted her to Gubitchev and that her romance with the Russian was kissless except for one time he tried to kiss her.)

A. We go away for lots of things.

Q. You left Washington with Shapiro, in his car, and spent Friday night, the 7th, in Baltimore, Md., what for?

A. What did we spend Friday night for? Because we went to Baltimore.

Q. Why did you go and spend the night in his room?

A. We spent the night together in the room. We did not go to sleep at all.

Q. Why did you spend the next night in his room in Philadelphia?

A. We just spend the night in the room together.

Q. Didn't go to sleep at all that night either?

A. I might have slept some that night, but there was no fornication.

Photostats of Register Entered

Q. Did you have breakfast in bed in Philadelphia?

A. I did not . . . What do you mean by breakfast in bed?

Kelley offered in evidence photostatic copies of a registration the night of January 7 in the Southern Hotel in Baltimore of "Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Shapiro, 122 Burnside ave., East Hartford, Conn." And of a registration the following night in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, of 'Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Shapiro, East Hartford, Conn.,, for room 1523.

Attached to the Philadelphia hotel registration was a bill for $11.35—$9 for the room and $2.35 for food. The latter, according to an itemized list, included "orange, 1 toast, 1 rye toast, 2 scrambled eggs and ham, 1 grape nut flakes, 2 coffee."

At Miss Coplon's "What do you mean by breakfast in bed?" Kelley pushed himself to his feet, strode toward the witness box and flashed the photostat of the Philadelphia hotel bill before the defendant:

"You observe the registration. Look on the second sheet—you observe it's an order for food. Part of the breakfast you ordered that morning . . ."

"On January 14, while you were with Gubitchev, before he told you he was married, while you were happy in the restaurant, did you tell him that you had spent the previous Friday night with a man in his room, registered as his wife, in Baltimore—did you tell him that?"

"I did not," Miss Coplon replied, "and I never knew I was registered as anyone's wife."

Before January 14, she had testified, she had been dating Gubitchev since September, 1948, without ever knowing that he was already married.

"Did you tell Gubitchev on that night you had spent the Sunday previous in a room with Mr. Shapiro, registered as his wife?" Kelley asked.

"Same Answer, No"

"I said I did not," Miss Coplon said.

"Did you tell Mr. Gubitchev that?" Kelley asked again.

"I give you the same answer, no."

Until the surprise questions about the hotel trysts, Kelley had been conducting his cross-examination in an almost casual manner.

He sat at the prosecution table toying with a pencil, glancing at his notes . . . glancing up then with an easy movement of his head to look at Miss Coplon.

His voice was relaxed. As he asked Miss Coplon about the kissless romance with Gubitchev she says she was having when the Government says she was spying, his voice seemed to be without even the slightest edge of sarcasm.

"He always acted the gentleman toward you?" he asked matter-of-factly.

"You were happy?"

And so on, until finally in the same tone:

"You must have been deeply in love with him, weren't you?"

The prosecutor got his "yes" answer and then with crashing abruptness the question came.

The uproar the question set off continued to some degree through the defendant's entire subsequent testimony about her nights with Shapiro, Justice Department lawyer.

Palmer, the rotund defense attorney, was on his feet from the first screaming the objection that the material was "irrelevant and incompetent and has nothing to do with this particular case."

JUDITH COPLON
"I did not sleep . . ."

All his fury at the prosecution seemed finally to burst forth in his tempestuous: "Fornication has nothing to do with espionage!"

The towering prosecutor answered:

"It has something to do with love."

"Mr. Palmer, I'll have to fine you again unless you behave yourself," Judge Reeves said as he ruled such matters relevant.

The prosecution questions on the hotel nights and what went on during them seemed to fall hardest on the mother of the defendant, black in mourning for her husband who died since his daughter's arrest March 4.

Mother Wants to Hear

In those stormy early moments after the first question came it appeared she might hear no more, for as she cried out and Judge Reeves ordered her removed, marshals stepped quickly toward her.

Their hand was stayed as a strange, crackling cry came from her throat, "No, I want to hear all of this" and the judge said she could remain if she behaved herself.

Her sobs gradually muffled. Her fingers continued to twist beneath the perpetual white handkerchief in her lap. But her face was as grey as a marble slab.

To say that Miss Coplon, visibly, in her physical reactions, took these bursting minutes with more calm than others on the defense side is not to say that she took them with calm.

"That's a damn lie!" flew from her lips in a spasm, anger and surprise showing in her face.

Fluency Is Astounding

The fluency with which she has testified—an astounding, really incredible fluency, including 10-minute explanations in a stretch of her work, her motives and her life—seemed sizably punctured, though not entirely broken. Her answers were shorter and once, in that greatly dramatic moment, she turned to the judge and pled with him to stop it.

But physically she retained control of herself. She sat forward sharply in her chair at the first surprise question. But her voice did not shake, nor her hands.

Her answers, through some of the seething testimony that Kelley extracted from her, were monosyllabic and at times almost listless—in contrast to her previously articulate language.

And her face, small, projected, seemed beaten in at the end of the sequence, its pallor a reflection of the ghost-face of her mother a few steps away.

Her hands, which have moved so constantly in gesture from the witness stand—even, graceful, flowing gestures, remained now clasped together.

Her fingers did not idly move, as has been her habit even on the witness stand, around the curls that touch her shoulders and frame her face.

The fingers now remained in her lap, tightly clasped.

The cords on either side of her throat came taut.

Palmer had turned Miss Coplon over to Kelley with a flourish ten minutes before noon recess:

"Anyway, Judy, you started with the glamor of your job and ended with the dirt and degradation of a trial. Your witness, Mr. Kelley."

Eyes Meet Electrically

The high-tension electric connection that seemed strung between the eyes of Kelley and Miss Coplon was quickly established.

Palmer asked the marshal to bring a glass of water "for this girl."

"We can wait until after the recess if she's tired," Kelley said.

"I'm not tired," Miss Coplon, smiling slightly and looking the prosecutor straight in the eye, said . . . and the cross-examination was under way.

Kelley lost no time in prying into what Miss Coplon says was her romance with Gubitchev.

"In the course of your nine meetings," he addressed her, "you experienced three overwhelming emotions: love, fury, terror."

The love was for Gubitchev. The fury at hearing from him that his wife's detectives were on their trail. The terror at hearing from him the NKVD, Russian secret police, might be shadowing them, too.

"Love is a strong emotion," Kelley said. "How about fury?"

"So is fury," said Miss Coplon, her lips touched with a smile of sarcasm as she eyed the prosecutor back.

"Terror?"

"So is terror. So is laughter," she added.

Palmer objected at one point and Judge Reeves said: "One moment. She can take care of herself."

The battle of wits was on between prosecutor and witness, both—in those roles—extremely worthy protagonists.

"Let's see if we can determine, as the song title has it, what is this thing called love?" Kelley continued smoothly.

"What's that?" Palmer burst to continued smoothly.

"He asked, 'What is this thing called love?'" Judge Reeves repeated solemnly.

Laughter Brings Warning

The courtroom burst into laughter and the jurist sternly stopped proceedings, sharply warned the spectators.

In the afternoon, Kelley was continuing to question Miss Coplon about her meetings with Gubitchev the first time September 4, 1948, before a cubistic painting in the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

"You testified you found him sensitive, gentlemanly, respectful, charming," Kelley said. "Tell me how he was dressed."

"He was wearing, I think," Miss Coplon said easily, "a dark suit—I don't remember the color. I believe I said I thought he was attractive—I referred to his face."

The battle between Kelley and Miss Coplon continued on this level, the sarcasm biting and hard but underneath, most highly polished.

He told her he was a U. N. engineer, Miss Coplon said, and Kelley asked:

"What did he tell you of his education and family background?"

This paved the way for a surprise on the defense's part: what Gubitchev told Miss Coplon about his feelings toward his homeland.

His home was Moscow, he had been in various parts of Russia, including the Urals, as a boy he had spent summers in Leningrad around the ships, she said he told her.

But the Soviet engineer, charged now with conspiracy to commit espionage against the United States, told her the first time they met he did not want to talk much about Russia because:

"Mr. Gubitchev informed me he was anti-Soviet. He said he thought the artistic and literary purges going on in Russia were inane. As far as I could see, he looked on Russia as a closed book in his life. He said he wanted American citizenship, he didn't want to go back to Russia, he did not want to discuss anything about Russia. He did not care for the present Russian government."

In view of the NKVD, Kelley said, didn't she consider it surprising the Russian should relate this to a stranger in a public place.

"Considered It Healthy"

"Didn't you consider that an unhealthy remark for him to make?"

Miss Coplon smiled. "No, I considered it healthy."

And because he was a member of the U. N. secretariat, it didn't seem strange, she testified.

The personal angle picked up:

"You considered marriage to him, didn't you?"

Miss Coplon smiled softly. "I did. It hadn't got that far, though."

She called him "Val," she said, and he called her "Judy."

"Anything else he called you?" Kelley asked.

"He might have said 'dear.'"

Kelley relaxed a moment. Then: "Did you ever before allow yourself to be picked up by a strange man and give him your phone number?"

Palmer flamed to his feet. "It's a dirty, contemptible . . ."

Judge Reeves cut him off and Kelley continued, eying the defendant:

"You know what I mean by picked up, don't you?" his voice an undertone of cool but sharp biting. "Did you ever pick up before with a total stranger?"

Miss Coplon's anger at the question was visible but she answered: "Yes, I have."

"Frequently?"

"No."

The veiled sarcasm continued from both sides, both defendant and prosecutor warmed to battle:

"You never asked if he was married?"

"No," Miss Coplon replied.

"Why?"

"I assumed he was single—he told me he was in love with me, he saw me Saturday nights on dates."

"Didn't you know that married men go out with single girls?"

"Yes," Miss Coplon said, the slight smile not creasing her lips. "I understand they do."

"So he was married or single?"

"Yes, I suppose he was one or the other."

"He was young, but you never asked him if he was married?"

"There are young men married," Miss Coplon answered that one, "and there are a lot of young men not married."

"Did you ever meet any charming married men?"

"Of course," Miss Coplon said, fingering her hair.

"When you found this man charming, didn't it ever occur to you to ask if he was married?"

Miss Coplon said it didn't. "I've met a lot of men older than Mr. Gubitchev who were charming and never got married."

"Never," said Kelley, "until you met Mr. Gubitchev were you in love?"

"Never," said Miss Coplon, "had I been in love as deeply as I thought I was with Mr. Gubitchev."

"And on January 14, before he told you he was married?"

"I felt I was in love with him very deeply," the tiny defendant replied.

"You had never felt love so deeply before?"

"Never," she said.

Suave But Biting

And so, in quietness for the most part and only that constant undertone of sarcasm—suave but biting—on both sides, was laid the groundwork for the late afternoon's explosion.

This development drowned out, newswise, an important defense explanation early in the day from Miss Coplon as to some of the documents found in her purse when she was arrested with Gubitchev.

The Government charges that the biographical sketches on Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sinderbrand and Albert B. Stevenson concerned "three potential recruits for espionage service."

On the contrary, testified Miss Coplon, she intended them for use in an autobiographical novel on the Washington scene.

She had written three chapters of the book, she said, and was intending to confer with a Simon and Schuster junior editor the weekend she was arrested in New York.

Dealt With Washington

"The first chapter dealt with my coming to Washington," she said, "the way wartime Washington affected me—the feeling of idealism, the war effort, the desire to get things done despite the red tape.

"Then as the war ended it told of the defection of people going from Government to industry, able people, because they felt they could get better jobs on the outside.

"The book dealt also with the witch hunts, the hysteria, things that were farcial, ridiculous and tragic.

"There was also a theoretical discussion on mass production in the United States vs. handicraft production abroad, as I'd seen it there during my trip."

Some of the material in her purse, which included 34 FBI confidential "data slips," she was using, she said, as Morgenthau, Ickes, Hopkins and others used Government material for their memoirs.

"It was a series of sketches," she said. "Not a coordinated novel. It was the life of a Government girl in Washington, also some glimpses of Europe. I guess it was the creative urge."

She was the central character, she said, and another character was Raymond P. Whearty, once her boss in the Foreign Agents Registration Section at the Justice Department and now one of her prosecutors.

She related from the stand her impressions of Washington: "You couldn't tell people the work you were doing. There was the loyalty program and you couldn't discuss anything. You never knew who was a spy or counterspy. Never knew who would report something about you on the basis of something heard incorrectly at a party. You never knew—like the thing about people who worked at the Department of Justice not wanting to be seen carrying PM, the liberal New York paper."

So Miss Coplon "bared her soul," as Palmer asked that she do to the jury.

Impression of Spying

Her reaction to reading FBI reports in connection with her job:

"Every day I'd get this whole fabric of people whose wives were going through their pocketbooks to spy and report, or daughters spying on mothers, sons on fathers.

"I got this whole impression of spying and counter-spying, anyone reporting on anyone else, that, Mr. Kelley," she said, addressing the prosecutor, "is the impression I got when I read through these reports.

"Thousands of such matters—'little individuals' who might go to organizations called pro-Communist or pro-Communist-front . . . a man running a fruit stand would run in and report what someone had said to him. A barber out in Gedunk or Oshkosh would report what a customer said to him.

"This whole fabric," her voice continued fluently, unhesitating. "Not just mothers and daughters but that's how close it was.

"Trash covers being put on people by the FBI—their wastebaskets gone through to see what people tore up—phones being tapped, mail covers being put on. Relatives, friends, casual acquaintances, storekeepers, all reporting on other people . . .

"Semi-Hysterical Feeling"

"That," her voice culminated in the charge . . . "That, as far as I'm concerned is the basis of the (FBI) reports . . .

"In that one chapter I wanted to get this whole feeling which has been permeating Washington since I came here. This semi-hysterical feeling . . . People being afraid to walk around with newspapers like PM."

"And so," Palmer said, "Sunday morning (March 5) when you expected some of your literary achievements to be seen by this gentleman at Simon and Schuster—instead of that you were in jail."

"That's how it happened," Miss Coplon said.

"That," Palmer said, "is how it happened."

Where is the novel now? the prosecution kept asking.

She said she had put it in a bedroom chest of drawers at her parents' apartment in Brooklyn. It remained there while she was in prison in New York, then she was out under bond.

"The newspapers made such a ridiculous spectacle of me," she said. "And I didn't know if the FBI had searched the apartment or might. I didn't want them to get it because I didn't want to be held up to ridicule. So when I got out of prison and went home I put it down the incinerator in the apartment house."

So began—and, so ended—an unusual day in court.

Town Officials Ask Prince Georges Board To Keep Slot Machines Out of College Park

The town of College Park, Md., yesterday joined Hyattsville and Greenbelt in a request to keep county-legalized slot machines out of its boundaries.

A letter to the Prince Georges County Commissioners, signed by Vance Vaughn, corporation counsel to the town, stated the mayor and town council had adopted a resolution asking that there be no licenses issued for slot machines in College Park.

One of the main reasons the citizens are opposed to the bill is because of the large body of students at Maryland University, the letter pointed out. College Park voted 3 to 1 against legalizing the slot machines.

Jerrold V. Powers, attorney for the commissioners, reported no further action has been taken to prepare the forms for issuing licenses. He said a decision is awaited from Circuit Court Judge Charles C. Marbury on the validity of the slot machine law.

Judge Marbury's ruling is expected today or Thursday. The slot machine law was approved at a referendum June 2. Question of the law's validity was brought up last Thursday when a Montgomery County pinball machine operator challenged that part of the law which restricts licenses to residents and property owners of Prince Georges County.

Meanwhile, the Hyattsville City Council Monday night passed ordinances taxing slot machines and beer and wine establishments.

The ordinances, effective immediately on slot machines and July 1 on beer, provide for a tax of 20 per cent of the county license fees.

The tax will be $5 a year on class A machines offering only "free plays;" $10 on pinball or claw machines dispensing awards, and $35 on console type machines. A clerk's fee of $1 will be charged for issuing or transferring a license.

License fees for beer and light wine will range from $5 to $12.

Slot Machines Legalized in Charles County

Charles County voters yesterday legalized slot machines. Unofficial tabulation showed the vote was 1973 for and 1040 against licensing the amusement "devices."

The balloting made southern Maryland a solid slot machine area. Operation of the mechanical devices already has been approved in Anne Arundel, St. Marys, Calvert and Prince Georges Counties.

Only about 43 per cent of the 7049 eligible voters cast ballots in the 10 election districts.

Predictions had been that a light vote would mean legalization.

Electioneering by the Restaurant Owners Association, which spearheaded the campaign of proponents, was intense throughout the county.

Advocates ran shuttle-service cars to take voters to the polls. Warm, humid weather, however, made it difficult to persuade farmers to leave their tobacco planting long enough to vote.

Taverns were closed by law during balloting. Plastered on their doors were placards reading: "Closed today until 8 p. m. to vote for legalization of amusement devices. Suggest you do the same."

The County Ministerial Association, which announced a last-minute door-bell ringing campaign against legalization, also motored voters to polls, but their representatives were less in evidence.

$150 License Fee

The law provides that only registered voters or property owners can be licensed to operate the machines. The operator's license fee is $150 for each machine with one slot, $25 for each additional slot. Distributors, who must be five-year county residents who voted in the last election, will pay an annual $2000 fee.

Forty per cent of revenue is to go to reduction of the real estate tax; 30 per cent to reduction of outstanding school bonds; 30 per cent for fire companies, county library, Physicians' Memorial Hospital and salary of a license inspector.

Navy Planes Fail To Sight Any Sub Near Test Range

Miami, Fla., June 21 (AP).—An intensive 24-hour search by Navy planes for an unidentified submarine—reported sighted in the vicinity of the new Banana River guided-missile testing range—ended at dusk today with negative results.

Navy ships and planes continued to keep watch, however.

The mysterious undersea visitor was reported seen Sunday morning by the Canaveral Light Station, near the Banana River rocket-testing base.

The guided-missile base is scheduled to open July 1. Target for the missiles will be tiny, uninhabited islands in the Bahamas group.

An unofficial but reliable source at Norfolk, Va., reported an unidentified submarine was sighted off the North Carolina coast last week. The source said the following day the craft, belonging to a "friendly nation," identified itself and advised it had been engaged in exercises to determine how close it could approach the United States coast without detection.

Rule Changed

D. C. to Let Speeders Keep Permits

The District Commissioners yesterday rescinded the regulation for mandatory suspension of permits of drivers who are convicted of driving in excess of 39 miles per hour.

Action came in response to a request by Mrs. Mary A. Silver, chairman of the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits. Mrs. Silver said her board was three months behind in reviewing reports received on the suspension clause.

"This policy," she wrote, "has further created a great amount of criticism from citizens who do not feel that the action taken is justified due to their past traffic record over a period of years."

Mrs. Silver asked that the board be given discretion to take a "man's past record and his need for an operator's permit" into consideration in determining "the appropriate action to be taken to cause him to be a safe driver in the future." This request was granted.

New Traffic Laws Adopted

ly legible to an ordinarily observant person" to be enforceable.

For the first time, there is regulation of bicycle traffic, with the same traffic regulations applying as to automobiles.

There is emphasis on the right of an operator who has stopped at a stop sign to enter an intersection after he has yielded right-of-way to vehicles which were close enough to constitute a hazard at the time he stopped.

Pedestrians may not walk along a roadway where a sidewalk is provided, nor may they cross an intersection diagonally.

No vehicle may stop where official signs prohibit its stopping, unless directed to do so by a police officer.

The new rules clarify the legal point that the owner of a vehicle is presumed to be the operator when a violation occurs unless he can prove otherwise.

Another new section of the law prohibits boarding or alighting from moving vehicles, and prohibits drivers of such vehicles to permit this practice.

The law retains the 22,000-pound gross single-axle load and the 65,000-ound load limit, but authorizes the highways director to permit oversize or overweight vehicles to make single trips.

Nats Thump Chisox, 9-3, as Hudson Hurls 4-Hitter

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, JUNE 21 — Jake Mintz, the manager of Ezzard Charles, has dropped an iron curtain between his fighter and the outer world until tomorrow night. There are too many plots afoot to eucher his man, Charles, out of victory over Jersey Joe Walcott and his rightful distinction as Joe Louis' successor, Mintz moans.

"From here on, we're gonna have privacy," said Mintz. "The things they've been trying to do to my fighter . . ."

POVICH

Among the things they've done, according to the Mintz beef, is asking too many questions in Charles' training camp at Momence, Ill., 70 miles from this thriving hamlet. "Those newspapermen are asking Charles in what round they think Walcott will hit him hardest. And what he's gonna do about Walcott's 15-pound weight advantage. They're trying to give him an inferiority complex."

At 2:30 the other morning, according to Mintz, a car drove into the grounds of the training camp, darkened its lights, and heaven knows what it was up to. He made a point of that in a press conference. It was suggested that he get his camp out of Lovers' Lane.

FOR A TIME, the privacy that Mintz was demanding for his fighter threatened to extend right up to ringside tomorrow night. The fight was a dismal financial flop until the last couple of days when sales suddenly picked up and now there are indications of a $250,000 gate and 25,000 witnesses, if the weather continues fair.

There may even be a profit for the International Boxing Club, the new combine with outlets in New York, Chicago, Detroit, and Cincinnati. That would be a new experience for the IBC, which dropped a wad in its Cerdan-LaMotta promotion at Detroit last week. The officers of the International clout cartel, variously labeled otherwise as Monopoly, Inc., and the Octopus, are here in force, and the expenses will cut heavily into the gate.

Supposedly the promoter of the fight is Joe Louis, but he is mostly in absentia around the fight diggings. The over-all supervisors are Jim Norris and Arthur Wertz, the Chicago money men of the combine, but the work is being done by Harry Mendel, the public relations man. The IBC has also called in a couple of older heads, Harry Markson, its Madison Square Garden promoter, and Al Weil, Garden matchmaker.

CHARLES IS still the favorite to win the fight, though the odds against Walcott have dwindled from 8 to 5, to 7 to 5 and may be lower than that by ringtime. They're fighting for a slightly synthetic world heavyweight title in the same ring at Comiskey Park where Joe Louis won the authentic crown exactly 12 years ago on another June 22 evening, from Jim Braddock.

The greater incentive appears to be with the 27-year-old Charles, who despite the fact that he finds himself fighting for the title, has never had a good payday in the eight years he has been in the ring. Walcott, in contrast, has twice figured in the big money from two fights with Louis, the last of which fetched him $160,000 before taxes and managerial deductions. They might come out of this one with $60,000 each.

Against the threat that it could be a dull fight between the backpedaling Walcott and a reluctant Charles, the Illinois Boxing Commission has waived its rule requiring 8-ounce gloves. It has okayed 6-ouncers for tomorrow's fight, perhaps on the theory that thus somebody is more apt to get hurt, or knocked out, which would at least be a saving feature.

LACKING FOUR DAYS, it has been a year since the ancient Walcott last fought anybody. His previous battle was the second Joe Louis affair in New York, and rustiness is one of the factors that have made him the under-dog. But Walcott points out that he has always been the long-shot in his important fights, and that is of no moment.

In Charles, Walcott will not have the easy target he had against Louis who in his latter days as champion was fat, slow and anchored for the right-hand shots of Jersey Joe who floored him three times with right hand in their two fights. Charles, unlike Louis, is no stalker, but a fancy mover in his own right, not as fancy perhaps as Walcott, but fast on his feet nevertheless.

Charles' battle plans are no secret. He reckons that he'll stand off Walcott in the early rounds, and wait for Jersey Joe's own legs to slow him up. Then Charles will start to carve him up. He'd better make no mistakes, though, against the old man who had Louis down thrice.

Louis Hopes Title Fight Tonight Hits $300,000

By Jack Cuddy

Chicago, June 21 (U.P.).—Despite today's showers, the weather bureau predicted "cooler and dry" for tomorrow night's fight between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott for recognition as world heavyweight champion.

Promoters Joe Louis and Arthur Wirtz were interested nearly as much in the weather as in their hoped-for gate of $300,000 at Comiskey Park, for most outdoor title fights during the past year have suffered at least one postponement because of rain.

Charles of Cincinnati, 27, was favored at 7-5 to beat Walcott of Camden, N. J., 35, in their scheduled 15-round fight for the National Boxing Association's recognition as successor to Louis, who retired in March.

The winner will not be recognized as champion by the New York or Massachusetts commissions, nor by the British Boxing Board of Control.

Promoters Louis and Wirtz of the International Boxing Club, staging its first heavyweight title fight, expected a crowd of about 30,000 at the White Sox Park, where exactly 12 years ago (to the night) Louis became champion by knocking out Jim Braddock in the eighth round. After achieving that victory of June 22, 1937, Louis hammered on to establish an all-time record of 25 title defenses.

Charles, who may scale less than 180 pounds, was favored by betting men because he is eight years younger than ancient Walcott, father of six children. However, a preponderance of boxing writers—assembled from various cities—favored Walcott because of his advantages in weight and punch.

Walcott, the first heavyweight who ever got three chances at the crown, expected to scale about 194 pounds. That was expected to give him an advantage of at least 14 over his slender, mustachioed opponent. Jersey Joe registered 194½ when he floored Louis twice in their first title fight December 5, 1947. And he scaled 194¾ when he dropped Louis once in their return title tilt, June 25, 1948.

Neither contender was impressive in training. Walcott—compact and bull-necked—appeared slightly slower than in the Louis fights, and his punches were less accurate. However, his legs still had their bounce, and he appeared more aggressive than before.

Charles appeared surprisingly slow and easy to hit. Because of a cheek-gash suffered at camp on May 12, Ezzard had to wear protective rubber face-flaps during the last week of sparring.

TV, Radio Carry Title Fight Tonight

Tonight's NBA heavyweight championship between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago will be seen and heard in the Washington area.

The Comiskey Park bout will be televised on WNBW (Channel 4) at 10:30 P. M. At the same time, radio listeners may catch the Corum-Don Dunphy broadcast over Station WMAL (630).

9 U. S. Seeded Stars Breeze At Wimbledon

Wimbledon, Eng., June 21 (U.P.).—The U. S. paraded its tennis might at full strength today as defending champions Bob Falkenburg and Louise Brough led seven other seeded Americans in a mass advance in the historic Wimbledon championships.

All moved up with remarkable ease. Frankie Parker of Los Angeles dropped a set and so did Gertrude (Gorgeous Gussie) Moran of Santa Monica, Calif.

The fans converged on an outside lawn for an anticipated fashion treat from their glamour girl, "Gorgeous Gussie" Moran.

But the lace-trimmed panties which she was expected to wear under a white skirt did not appear. Gussie left them off and wore conventional shorts.

More important to her ambitions to justify her fourth seeding in women's singles, Gussie almost left her game back in the hotel room, too. She dropped the first set to Mrs. G. Walters, veteran British player, and had to work hard to win, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Falkenburg, the Hollywood slugger who surprised even himself by winning the crown last year, rode into the third round on his booming service and soon was joined by Parker, top-seeded Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., and United States Champion Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles.

Falkenburg completely outclassed E. J. David of England, 6—3, 6—1, 6—2; Schroeder knocked out Kalman Feher of Hungary, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4; Gonzales laughed his way through an easy victory over Chrtsian Grandet of France, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3, and Parker, after a shaky start, began nipping the chalklines and pulled out a 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4 match against Bill Sidwell of Australia.

Miss Brough, blonde veteran from Beverly Hills, Calif., opened defense of her title with a breezing 6-1, 6-1, victory over Edith Middleton of Britain and moved into the third round with second-seeded Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Bellevue, Del., and fifth-seeded Shirley Fry of Akron. All three drew first round byes.

Crooker Boots In Close One At Rosecroft

By Jack Walsh

Post Reporter

The next to last race on the next to last card provided one of the top racing thrills at Rosecroft Raceway last night before a crowd of 6658 bent on getting even by wagering $218,332.

(SEE RESULTS AND ENTRIES ON PAGE 15).

And that amount left the total handle for 19 nights just $503 short of the four-million-dollar goal.

Handy News Boy, driven by Earl Crooker, was the star in that seventh event, a mile trot. The 6-year-old gelding came from the fourth spot in the stretch and his margin over the last horse in the eight-horse field was only five lengths.

Handy News Boy just managed to stave off Hunter Direct, who lost by a neck after moving from sixth. Joe Eyler's Tom Dillard was third. The winner, who had to survive a foul claim, paid $13.

Rosecroft's highly successful inaugural meeting closes tonight with the best program yet offered by Racing Secretary Ed Keller.

Valo Grand Slams

Macks Whip Tribe, 8-2; Take Second

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Elmer Valo's fifth inning "grand-slam" homer was the telling wallop as Philadelphia leveled Cleveland's world champions for the seventh time this season in a 8-2 victory tonight. The victory advanced Philadelphia to second place in the American League pennant race.

Lou Brissie posted his seventh pitching victory with Bob Kennedy, the only thorn in his side. The Cleveland outfielder homered with the bags empty in the fifth—the first of four hits Brissie allowed Boston, June 21 (AP).—Lefty Mel Parnell became a nine-game winner as the Boston Red Sox stretched their current winning streak to six straight today with a 7-1 win over the Detroit Tigers.

Ted Williams more than clinched matters in the sixth inning when he lashed his 17th homer, more than 400 feet into the center field stands, against Starter Art Houtteman with two aboard.

Cincinnati, June 21 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers tonight protected their National League lead with a 9-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds, their favorite doormats. The Dodgers got seven of their nine runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, before a crowd of 21,935. The start of the game was delayed 45 minutes because of a rainstorm.

2 Big Innings Help Sid to Register His 5th Victory

By Morris Siegel

Post Reporter

To crack a three-game losing streak, the Nats had to knock out two pitchers, one catcher and 10 base hits last night, but they met the test and bashed the Chicago White Sox, 9-3.

A three-run counter attack in the fourth inning, which saw the Sox battery of Pitcher Al Gettel and Catcher Don Wheeler both removed, put the Nats over the hump to stay.

To make matters more secure and the humid evening more tolerable for the 7439 observers, the Nats added another pitcher and five more runs to their collection in the sixth inning.

This addition, when carried out to another decimal point, also added up to Sid Hudson's fifth hurling success, his latest being a neat four-hit job.

Whipping his live fast ball by the Chicagoans and bending his snappy curve around them, big Sid yielded three hits in the fourth inning when the Sox tied the score at 1-1 and another single in the fifth, when the Sox countered with two runs. But those were all.

To return to the winner's circle, for a change, the Nats presented a different lineup to the Sox and their Griffith Stadium patrons. Manager Joe Kuhel wheeled in his left-handed batting unit which consisted of two changes in the outfield.

Buddy Lewis, making his first appearance since injuring his leg May 25, was in right, and Gil Coan was back in the lineup in left field. Ed Stewart, the third left-handed batting outfielder, took care of center.

Between them, the trio cracked out six hits—two a piece, with Lewis throwing in a double and Coan a triple.

Catcher Wheeler Hurts Finger

The defeat was pinned on Gettel, his fourth against one victory, who was kayoed in the three-run Nat fourth. Two pitches previous, Catcher Wheeler Stuck his finger in the way of a foul tip and had to be replaced by Joe Tipton.

The five-run Nats sixth was at the expense of Left-hander Clyde Shoun, who was shoved into the breach when Gettel was flattened in the fourth.

Sam Dente, who also was one of the two-hit Nats, whacked out a two-run double in the big round, Hudson chased in a run with a single, Coan produced the fourth tally with a single and Lewis climaxed the uprising, greeting Reliefer Matt Surkont with a double, to drive over the fifth run of the inning.

The Nats' three-run fourth inning required only two singles, as Gettel helped the offense along by walking Eddie Robinson with the bases loaded to force in one run and followed this by hitting Al Kozar with the bases still jammed to force in another run.

Center Fielder Metkovich got into the act by dropping Al Evans' liner to center to permit the third run of the inning.

The Nats' first tally, picked up in the first inning, resulted from a booming triple to right by Coan and an outfield fly by Lewis.

The Sox matched that with three singles off Hudson in the fourth with Cass Michaels' infield hit driving Luke Appling across.

The Chicagoans struck up a two-run inning in the fifth, doing it on a walk, Dente's error, an infield out and Rookie Dick Lane's two-run single.

IN SHORT—Manager Jack Onslow, who usually dispatches one of his coaches to remove a pitcher, charged out of the Sox dugout himself to yank Gettel. Onslow appeared none too pleased with Gettel's performance of walking Robinson and then hitting Kozar and had words with the big righthander on the field . . . Hudson and Dente collaborated to pick rookie Dick Lane off second in the fourth, saving the Nats a run as Appling followed with a single to left center on the next pitch . . . For tonight's rubber game, the Nats are countering Chicago's choice of lefthander Bill Wight with their southpaw ace, Mickey Haefner.

Phils' Homers Beat Bucs, 9-4

Pittsburgh, June 21 (AP).—Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones slashed out two home runs tonight as Eddie Sawyer's surprising Philadelphia Phils whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 9 to 4 for their second straight win over the hapless Buccos.

Frisch Fined $100, Barred for 5 Days

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—Frankie Frisch, manager of the Chicago Cubs, today was fined $100 and suspended for five days by President Ford Frick of the National League.

The suspension was the result of a row with Umpire Art Gore at the finish of yesterday's Cub game five-day suspension when they walloped the Boston Braves, 8 to 4, today before a gathering of 3161.

Wilmington, Del., June 21 (AP).—Rocky Graziano, former middleweight champion of New York, took his first step on the comeback trail tonight by belting out Bobby Claus, veteran Buffalo campaigner, in 46 seconds of the second round in their scheduled 10-round main bout at Wilmington

Over 'Obsolete' Rule

Cary Middlecoff Miffed at PGA

By Bus Ham

Post Sports Editor

CARY MIDDLECOFF, brand-new National Open champion, would like to sit down with the guys who run the Professional Golfers Association and tell them some things he has on his mind.

Cary isn't eligible for the United States Ryder Cup team for this year's matches with the British. And he thinks that is ridiculous.

He wasn't eligible for the 1949 PGA championship at Richmond, Va., last month, and he won't become eligible for this event until 1951.

Middlecoff is ineligible for the Ryder Cup team and the PGA simply because he has not served five years of apprenticeship under the PGA.

"That's the silliest, most obsolete rule I ever heard of," Middlecoff said yesterday as he stopped in Washington for a day.

"WHY, A FELLOW can go through law school, almost complete his work in medicine in the length of time that the PGA re-

Jack Furey's Recovery Wins D. C. Junior Golf Title With 78

Dick Foster Dethroned In Surprise

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Jack Furey, an outsider from Columbia Country Club, was as hot as the weather yesterday as he replaced Dick Foster as the District of Columbia junior golf champion in the twenty-sixth annual tournament at Washington Golf and Country Club.

After a mediocre first nine of 42, Furey caught fire and blazed over the final nine in 36 strokes for an eight-over-par 78. He was two strokes ahead of his nearest competitors and nine strokes ahead of Foster, who wound up with 45-42—87.

Deadlocked for second place were Jim Bogley of Prince Georges, and John Eisinger of Kenwood. Bogley won the place on the second hole of a "sudden death" playoff, firing a four to Eisinger's double-bogey five.

Despite his hot closing nine, Furey won top prize, the Albert MacKenzie Trophy, on the final hole. Bogley needed a mere par for a championship playoff but soared two over.

quires a young pro to put in as an apprentice.

"Any schoolboy can learn in a few weeks all there is to know about running a golf shop.

"That apprenticeship rule has been handed down by a lot of old duffers who came to this country years ago.

"I've got about 1000 points toward the Ryder Cup team and all you need to qualify is 250 points, but I don't suppose I'll get to play because of that one little old rule.

"I might make quite a little money by not being a member of the Ryder Cup team. It takes time to go to England for those matches. But being on the team is something we all look forward to, and I'd rather have that honor than the cash.

"IT SEEMS A LITTLE ironical because I was chosen on the Walker Cup team in 1947 but passed it up in order to become a pro. Now that I am a pro, I am NOT eligible for the Ryder Cup team the year I win the biggest title of all, the National Open."

When Middlecoff nosed out Sammy Snead and Clayton Heafner by a stroke for the Open title early this month, he was in a position to look back and say to himself:

"Well, I guess I got here faster than almost anyone else in the history of the game."

He turned professional March 13, 1947. In a little more than two years, June, 1949, he held the Open championship.

But this tall, 28-year-old, refreshingly frank Tennesseean will be in no hurry to cash in on the title that is said to be worth $100,000.

"I know that most of the fellows who win the Open figure they have to get their money out of it fast, and the faster the better before your name cools off.

"I'M NOT PASSING up any money, but I'm planning to take it a little easier, keep my game in tune, and go on winning some tournaments. That'll make the title worth more to me over a longer period, maybe for a full year."

Middlecoff is committed to play in six more tournaments on the PGA circuit. He will keep his promises.

But he will NOT play in Canada, and by October he intends to be in South America for a series of exhibitions.

Come next May, he expects to play a return engagement in the National Celebrities tournament.

"I really didn't know what the Celebrities was all about when I came to it this year," he said. "But it's different; it's just about the finest thing in all of golf. The pros are just now finding out what it's like. You'll have more and more of us in it."

John Curtin Also Wins Golf Berth

Joe Gambatese, first to finish the full 36 holes in yesterday's qualifying round for the National Public Links Championship at East oPtomac, posted a neat even par total of 144. He combined rounds of 73 and 71.

Gambatese was joined in the 144 bracket by Pat Martino, Federal Housing Administration employe who carded a two under par 70 in the morning round and a 74 in the afternoon.

The last three of five places alloted to Baltimore and Washington went to John Curtin, 74, 72—146, from Washington and two Baltimoreans, Ray Heins, 71, 75—146, and Fred Walter, 75, 72—147.

The first alternate spot went to Ralph Morgol who matched regulation figures on two extra holes to win out over Fred Pence who went one over on the second hole and Bill Collins, Keith Kallio, and Bill Gehring, all of whom went one over the first extra hole.

Fifty golfers from the District and Baltimore were shooting for the five places. They will join 202 who qualify in other cities and three former National Public Links champions who qualify automatically.

Martino's 70 Best of Day

Martino's two-under-par 70 in the morning was the best effort of the day. Heins and Gambatese both had a 71 round in their cards, 1 stroke under par.

The five qualifiers and the single alternate will all go to the National Public Links Championship to be held at the Rancho Golf Course in Los Angeles, July 9 through 16.

George Graham, District Public Links champ from last year, was well off the pace yesterday with, 75-77—152—WEST McLEAN.

Lanham's Auto Race Fans to Hear Fight

Complete details of the Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles heavyweight championship fight will be broadcast to fans at the West Lanham Speedway when the thrilling new sport of stock car racing is introduced at the Maryland track tonight at 8:30.

Twenty of 35 members of the Eastern Stock Car Racing Association, including many outstanding big car and midget racers, will see action in tonight's inaugural program on the steeply banked Lanham oval.

Babe Fires 67 To Win, Meets Grace Lenczyk

Oklahoma City, June 21 (AP).—Babe Didrikson Zaharias moved into the second round of the Women's Western Open Golf Tournament today, defeating Mary Louise Cordingley, Des Moines, 7-5, with a subpar performance.

The Babe took a 4-up lead with a three-under-par 34 on the first nine and then closed out her opponent on the thirteenth hole.

Mrs. Zaharias finished out the 18 holes to card a 67, eight under par, for the 6629-yard Oklahoma City Country Club course.

Grace Lenczyk, the 2-year-old National Amateur champion, earlier won from Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich., 6-4, and will play the Babe in tomorrow's second round.

The Babe gave her usual colorful exhibition, deciding to play out the remaining five holes after winning her match.

Pat Devany, 20-year-old Grosse Ile, Mich., star rallied on the last four holes to defeat Peggy Kirk, Findlay, Ohio, veteran, 1-up in the only upset as favorites moved up.

Defending champion Patty Berg coasted to a 4 and 3 verdict over 16-year-old Nancy Reed, Nashville.

Choices Win In Women's Golf Tourney

By Leila Edwards

A field of 60 players ignored the heat and humidity yesterday at Columbia Country Club to play in the first round of matches for the Women's District Golf Association championship.

The first flight favorites in the upper bracket won their matches according to form. Mrs. A. B. Bower, Manor, the defending champion, disposed of Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, Woodmont, 8 and 7; Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, defeated her clubmate, Mrs. Rex Howard, 2 and 1; and Mrs. D. H. Henderson, Congressional, eliminated Mrs. George Martin, Manor, 3 and 2.

The closest match of the day was a red-hot battle between Miss Elinor Finckel of the host club and Miss Betty Garber of Argyle. Miss Finckel sank a long putt on the 18th green to tie up the match, but Miss Garber went on to take the 19th hole and drop her opponent into the consolation playoff.

Results and pairings for tomorrow follow:

FIRST FLIGHT

Mrs. A. B. Bower, Manor, defeated Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, Woodmont, 8 and 7. Miss Betty Garber, Argyle, defeated Miss Elinor Finckel, Columbia, 1 up in 19 holes. Wismer Steers Middlecoff From D. C. to Title Bout

Cary Middlecoff, National Open champion, came to Washington yesterday for a five-day vacation.

On the train from Detroit, where Cary tied Lloyd Mangrum for the Motor City Open title, he met Radio Sports Announcer Harry Wismer, also en route to Washington.

Wismer suggested they go to the heavyweight championship fight between Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles in Chicago tonight.

Middlecoff took Wismer up so tonight they will be at the ringside.

Middlecoff will return to Washington Thursday, rest over the weekend at the home of friends, then play exhibitions in Newark, N. Y., Binghamton, Ithaca and Utica before entering the National Capital Open, sponsored by The Star, at Princes Georges, July 1-4.

Cameo Shades Heurich, 7-6

Jamming six of its runs into the fourth inning, Cameo Furniture nine yesterday nosed out the Heurich Brewers, 7-6, in a Washington Post-Industrial League game on the Ellipse.

Superman, Sharkey Wrestle

Babe Sharkey and the Golden Superman clash in tonight's wrestling headliner at Joe Turner's Arena.

A special added attraction on the show will find Dutch Schweigert, the last of nine matmen hurled from the mat by Sharkey in last week's "wrestle royal," grappling with Ace Freeman.

George Macricostas, the stocky Golden Greek also will swap holds with Hans Kampfer.

District Pay Rise, Teacher Sick Leave, Go to Senate

Police, Fire Pension Increases, Payments At Death, Approved By D. C. Committee

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

District pay and pension increases and a teachers' sick leave bill won quick approval of the Senate District Committee yesterday.

The committee also voted a $1000 payment to the next-of-kin of policemen and firemen killed in line of duty, and an increase from $75 to $500 in payment for their funeral expenses.

Committee action sent to the Senate floor amended versions of these House-approved measures:

1. Pay. A $330 annual increase, retroactive to last July, for Metropolitan, White House and Park Police, District firemen, school teachers and per diem employes. A change of wording, but no change in major provisions, was ordered. In the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee, failure to get a quorum postponed action on the $330 retroactive increase approved by the House for District classified employes.

2. Pensions. An increase in the monthly pensions for widows of police and firemen from $60 to $125, and an increase in the payments to their dependent children from $10 to $25. The bill fixes the age limit for children receiving the pensions at 18 instead of the present 16, and it also boosts from 3½ to 5 per cent the contribution made by police and firemen to their retirement fund.

"The Federal Diary," by Jerry Klutz, will be resumed tomorrow in this space.

The $1000 lump sum payment and $500 funeral payment were written into the bill at the suggestion of Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) and Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.).

3. Sick leave. Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) won committee approval to increase the House-approved figure of 60 days of accumulated sick leave for teachers to the level now given civil workers, 90 days. The bill would give Washington public school teachers their first system of pair sick leave, and do away with the need for them to hire substitutes.

4. Judges' salaries: This pay scale was approved by the Senate committee—Chief judge, Municipal Court of Appeals, $14,500; associate judges, Municipal Court of Appeals, $14,000; chief judge, Municipal Court, $13,500; associate judges, Municipal Court, $13,000. The House voted $13,000 for chief judges, and $12,500 for associate judges of both courts. Present pay for associate judges of Municipal Court is $9975, and for all other judges in the two courts, $10,000.

The committee also approved a bill to require that stop payment orders on checks be given to banks in writing with an amendment to give check writers the right to give a telephone stop-payment order that will be good for 24 hours; also a bill to boost from $1000 to $3000 the size of contracts that can be awarded by District contracting officers without prior approval by the Commissioners.

Senate Votes D. C. Funds in Eight Minutes

The Senate yesterday approved and returned to the House for conference the $103,142,153 District appropriations bill for the year starting July 1.

A series of Senate changes increasing the House-approved appropriations by $4,218,532 were adopted, and the bill passed by a voice vote, all within eight minutes.

The bill was steered to passage by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.), chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Hill and six other Senators were named to confer with members of the House about Senate additions to the House figures. Other conferees are Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.), Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.), Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) and Leverett A. Saltonstall (R., Mass.).

Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.) is slated to head the House conferees. Conferences on the measure may begin Thursday.

go to his own Senator "and make a political issue of it." For that matter, the captain added, he might do the same thing if placed in a similar position.

'Sad Commentary'

"I think it is a sad commentary on the District police organization," said Senator Smith, "that a captain has to handle one of his subordinates with kid gloves."

She said also that the police department "is the last place we should have political patronage."

"Because of this," she said, "I am seriously considering legislation requiring that the police force of the District be restricted to legal residents of the District."

Records at the Third Precinct show that Lewis, the administrative assistant, was given two tickets on February 28.

One was issued by Pvt. W. B. Bowman of the Third Precinct for stopping on a "no-standing" space. The second was issued by Pvt. James L. Thrift, also of the Third Precinct, for failing to exhibit a registration card. The records show Lewis forfeited $3 collateral on each charge.

"Is There More Trouble?"

Contacted at the Third Precinct, Capt. Anthony Richitt declined immediate comment and said he would have to talk to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police. A later call to the precinct brought the information that Richitt had gone to headquarters to confer with Barrett.

However, Private Thrift was on hand. He was asked if he remembered the case.

"What, is there more trouble about this thing?" he exclaimed.

Q. What happened?

A. Wait a minute. (Thrift was gone for about 2 minutes and then returned to the telephone.) Listen, you better get your information from the captain. He's at headquarters right now.

Q. Well, just tell me what happened. Where was it?

A. It happened on I st., near Doctors Hospital.

Thrift acknowledged that he was riding in a scout car with Officer Bowman when the incident occurred. He referred reporters to Captain Richitt for details.

Barrett Has No Comment

A reporter then called Barrett's office and was told Richitt had left. Barrett was asked if he had any comment to make.

"I have no comment to make," said Barrett, "and I have asked Captain Richitt to instruct the men not to make any comment."

Barrett did say that it was not the incident which prompted the recent series of courtesy directives to the police force.

Policemen Vote Thanks On Pay, Pension Bills

Members of the Policemen's Association of Washington last night voted resolutions of thanks to the House and Senate District Committees for expediting the pay rise and pension bills.

The action was taken at an association meeting attended by more than 100, held in Odd Fellows' Temple, 419 7th st. nw.

Inquest Clears Taxi Driver In Fatal Fight Over 10 Cents

A 37-year-old cab driver yesterday was exonerated in the death of a Capital Transit supervisor, whom he admitted hitting in the face during an argument that started over a dime.

Randall

A coroner's jury found that Raymond R. Randall, of 4604 3d pl. sw., had "acted in defense of his own life" when he struck Millard L. Cecil, 47, early last Saturday morning.

Cecil staggered to a friend's apartment at 1501 Olive st. ne. and died there several hours later. His death was caused by a fractured skull and intercranial hemorrhage.

'I'll Never Forget It'

"I only defended myself. But it's awful to know you've killed a man. I'll never forget it as long as I live," Randall declared after hearing the verdict. He is the father of six children and his wife expects another child shortly, police said.

He did not testify. Detective Sergt. John L. Sullivan, of the Homicide Squad, testified, however, that Randall gave the following account:

He told police he picked up Cecil shortly before 12:30 a. m. Saturday at New York ave. and 11th st. nw. The argument took place at Kenilworth ave. and Polk st. ne., when he told Cecil the fare was 70 cents and Cecil insisted it was only 60 cents.

Cecil got out of the cab, declaring, "The hell with you, I'm not going to give you anything," Randall said, adding he then drove several blocks to look for a policeman but couldn't find one and returned to the intersection.

When he got there, Cecil tried to strike him while he was in the cab and then hit him with an umbrella, shattering his wristwatch and knocking it to the ground when he got out. He struck Cecil once in the face with his fist, knocking him into the gutter, Randall said. Then he helped him up and left after Cecil indicated he was all right.

Reported Incident to Police

The cab driver said he had driven several blocks when he noticed blood on his shirt and trousers. He returned to the scene but Cecil was gone. So he reported the incident first at the Ninth Precinct Station house, then to two scout car policemen and finally at the Forteenth Precinct Station house, to which he had been directed.

Sullivan later told reporters that police had not connected the report with Cecil's death because Mrs. Marie Daly, of the Olive st. address, had reported Cecil came there at 2 a. m. Actually he arrived there shortly after 1 a m.

Randall, driver for Veteran Cab Co., was arrested Monday after police received a telephone call that he had been in a fight near the Olive st. address. He told police he had not read any newspapers and had no idea the man he struck was dead.

Transit Union And Company A Dime Apart

With the deadline for a new work contract only nine days away, Capital Transit Co. and AFL maintenance men and operators failed to find a basis for agreement at a mediation session yesterday.

Representatives of the company and Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, met for two hours but broke up 10 cents an hour apart.

The union originally asked for 25 cents an hour increase in pay for 4300 CTC workers, and certain fringe benefits which the company estimated would amount to 9 cents more per hour. At this point, it was learned, the union is willing to settle for a flat 10 cents an hour additional.

The company at first demanded that the union accept certain operational changes which it said would increase efficiency and result in savings of $500,000 annually. Capital Transit has receded from this position, and is now offering to continue the 1948 contract for another year.

Federal Mediator James Holden said yesterday he would call the negotiators together again on Thursday afternoon in an attempt to break the deadlock.

Ranks Broken

Carpenters And Builder Enter Pact

A major builder yesterday broke ranks and signed a new work agreement with striking carpenters providing for a pay increase of 10 cents an hour.

Standard Construction Co., which agreed to the carpenters terms, is a builder of garden-type homes in the Washington area. Currently, the concern is putting up 1900 apartment units in nearby Maryland.

By the end of this week, an official of the company said, at least 200 AFL carpenters will be back on the job at three Standard developments: Chillum Heights Apartments, 950 units; Kirkwood Village Apartments, Ager Road, 750 units; Queenstown Apartments, 200 units.

The carpenters, who walked out on 100 million dollars worth of construction in this area June 1 to win their demand for a 10-cent-an-hour raise, hailed yesterday's agreement with Standard as an important victory.

A spokesman for the Master Builders Association, however, minimized the development. Standard, the spokesman noted, is one of the few home-building concerns which utilizes union carpenters.

There was no change in the status of the pie-drivers strike. The pie drivers struck for higher wages against four pie bakeries here June 3.

D. C. Rent Act Hit in Suit on Cooperative

Constitutionality of the District Emergency Rent Control Act was challenged yesterday in Landlord and Tenant Court.

Herman Miller, attorney, declared the law is unconstitutional because an emergency no longer exists.

He also questioned the legality of the amendment to the rent law dated April 18, 1949, arguing it is unconstitutional because it was made retroactive to March 1, 1949.

The amendment provides that a purchaser in a cooperative cannot bring an action to evict a tenant unless 65 per cent of the tenants in the building had agreed to join the cooperative.

Miller represents Marie L. Eckhoff of 1427 Chapin st. nw. who has bought an apartment under the cooperative plan in the Altamont Apartments, 1901 Wyoming ave. nw.

She is seeking to gain possession of the apartment from Mrs. J. M. Johnston, its present occupant.

Miller told the court the rent law was an emergency measure designed to prevent rents from skyrocketing in the District during the housing shortage.

Denies Housing Shortage

"But there is no housing shortage now," said Miller. "The best evidence of that is in the classified columns of the newspapers where there are numerous houses and apartments for rent or purchase."

Joining Miller in the attack on the cooperative sale amendment to the rent law was Stuart Robeson, attorney representing the Home Realty Co., which handles the Altamont Apartments.

Robeson declared the amendment was "class legislation" and discriminated against cooperative plan purchasers as compared to home owners generally.

Tenants' Attorney Replies

James Crooks, lawyer retained by tenants in the Altamont Apartments to represent them in their fight against the cooperative plan, denied Miller's claim that the emergency is at an end.

He said no evidence to bear this out has been introduced in this case. The tenant should be allowed to remain in her apartment, Crooks told Municipal Judge George D. Neilson.

"I am inclined to agree that the rent control act has raised more public-spirited debate than almost any other law in the District," said Judge Neilson.

"The American people do not like restraints unless they are absolutely necessary.

Court To Weigh Plea

"However, the rent control act was passed after lengthy debate and hearings in Congress, and it was signed by the President.

"I am asked to strike down that act. This would be a far-reaching step because it is a very serious matter. I will give this matter full and ample consideration before reaching a decision."

There are three other similar suits pending concerning cooperative sales in the Altamont Apartments, a seven-story, 58-unit building. It has been agreed by opposing counsel that the decision in the Eckoff-Johnston case will be accepted to decide the other actions.

Young Agrees to Allow Murphy's Retirement For Physical Disability

Lewis Arrest And Search Ruled Legal

Motion to Suppress Evidence Seized at Warrant Is Denied

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

William (Snags) Lewis and 13 other indicted gamblers were legally arrested and searched in Bladensburg, Md., three months ago, Judge Edward M. Curran ruled in District Court yesterday.

The opinion gave the Government a major victory in its campaign to bring 33 indicted gamblers to trial.

Similar arguments are slated in the Government's case against five men arrested at the headquarters of State Wide Sports News Distributors in Colmar Manor, Md.

Specifically, Judge Curran denied defense motions to suppress evidence seized under the search warrant and to dismiss the indictments. He granted in part the defense motion for a bill of particulars.

The crux of Judge Curran's opinion was his decision that an affidavit executed by Bernice Franklin, red-headed ex-waitress and Government informer, contained sufficient allegations of facts to show probable cause for the issuance of the search warrant with which Government agents on March 25 raided Lewis' headquarters.

In her affidavit, Miss Franklin charged that three other indicted gamblers were cogs in a lottery machine headed by Lewis.

Defense attorneys claimed the affidavit was not sufficient to support the search warrant and the warrant was further illegal because the address of Lewis' headquarters, 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, was incorrect on the warrant, and because the United States marshal for the District of Columbia does not have the power to serve a search warrant in Bladensburg, Md.

Curran said defense arguments about incorrect address and the power of the United States marshal were "without merit."

He denied the defense motion for dismissal of the indictment against the 14 defendants. He ruled they were adequately appraised of the nature of the charges against them and protected from second prosecution.

In granting part of the defendants' request for a bill of particulars, Judge Curran said "the Government shall furnish the defendants the location in the District of Columbia where the defendants were concerned as owners, agents, and clerks of the alleged lottery."

To Specify Carriers

According to Judge Curran's ruling, the Government shall also specify the defendants who allegedly took numbers winnings from the District to Lewis' headquarters in Maryland.

No date has been set for the trial of Lewis. The trials of all defendants indicted by the special gambling grand jury had been delayed pending Judge Curran's decision.

Defense attorneys said yesterday they would file identical motions with the judge who hears the case.

Truman's Choice

Flanagan Due to Stay As PUC Head

James H. Flanagan is slated to get President Truman's nomination for a new three-year term as chairman of the District Public Utilities commission, it was learned yesterday.

His own record, and support from Capitol Hill which he did not seek, are said to favor Flanagan over Harold Boisvert, Washington attorney who was backed by the District Democratic Central committee. Flanagan's term ends June 30.

Flanagan's reappointment would be the second time this year the President has overruled the wishes of the local Democratic organization. The President chose John Russell Young to continue as Commissioner, instead of replacing him with Thomas P. Morgan, the candidate put forward by the Democratic committee.

Young's nomination cleared the Senate. Similar approval is regarded as certain for Flanagan.

Backing of Boisvert for the position by the District Democratic Committee was disclosed by Melvin D. Hildreth, Democratic committeeman. Boisvert is a former president of the Young Democrats here.

Boisvert Flanagan

Hildreth said the central committee took its action in support of Boisvert two or three weeks ago. He said the proposal had not yet been discussed with the President. He said opposition to Flanagan had developed among Washington labor unions after the recent PUC decision raising street car and bus rates.

Flanagan had served as PUC chairman since February 1942. Earlier he served with the Securities and Exchange Commission. A native of Newton, Mass., he attended New York and Boston Universities, and the Georgetown School of Foreign Service here.

Who Wrote It?

Libel Issue Studied in Bard Dispute

The question of whether a private letter may be considered libelous yesterday was taken under advisement by District Judge Matthew F. McGuire.

The jurist had been asked to grant a summary judgment dismissing a $50,000 libel suit against Giles E. Dawson, 3434 34th st. nw., curator of books and manuscripts at the Folger Shakespearean Library.

The suit was filed by Charles Wisner Barrell of New York City who thinks Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford, wrote the famed plays and sonnets, using as a pen name "William Shakespeare."

Barrell, secretary-treasurer of the Shakespeare Fellowship, New York, charges he was libeled in a letter written by Dawson regarding Barrell's claims that X-ray and infra-red photos of portraits of Shakespeare show they were painted over, lending credence to the de Vere theory.

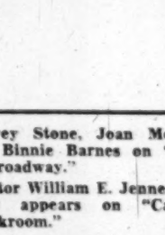
Dawson's letter to a third party read in part: "The plain fact is that we were entirely unable to see any of the things he (Barrell) saw in the negatives. They just weren't there. If he can now produce pictures of these things they must have been doctored up."

Fire Chief Suffering Heart Condition and Cataracts; Long in Controversy Here

By John London
Post Reporter

Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday agreed to retirement of Fire Chief Clement Murphy because of physical disability.

Murphy, long a controversial figure, has been suffering from a heart condition and a cataract over his right eye, associates said.



Murphy

He has arranged to undergo an examination by the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons on June 28 and will appear before a retirement board on July 2.

Murphy, 48, would not have reached retirement age until his fifty-fifth birthday. If he receives a maximum disability rating, he would be retired at $5000 a year, half his present salary.

There was no official comment as to whether his retirement was in any way a disciplinary action. Some reports indicated Murphy, after he was cleared of charges of "demoralizing" the department by a trial board, was warned another scrape would be his last.

Plans for retirement of Murphy, who was named chief engineer March 1, 1946, were disclosed with release of a letter addressed to him by Commissioner John Russell Young, dated Tuesday.

Young said, in part:

"Realizing as we do, that your condition is becoming more serious than what I'd thought, I now agree that you should seek immediate retirement. I hope that you will arrange with the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons the necessary examinations.

"The splendid fire department we enjoy in this city has been greatly supported by your administration and the present high standard of efficiency is due in a large measure to your leadership. This high standard, we have agreed, must be maintained."

Colleagues said Murphy has talked of undergoing an eye operation, and complained of a sinus condition. In 1948 he was on sick leave for 27½ days for "medical observation." In March and April of this year he was absent for 26 days, recovering from fractured ribs suffered in a fall, records showed.

On January 30, 1948, Murphy was cleared by a trial board of charges of unfitness and inefficiency and nine counts involving charges of intoxication and obscene language.

A native of Bridgeton, Mo., Murphy joined the force February 11, 1919, after World War I service in the Navy. He was promoted to sergeant in 1928, lieutenant in 1931, captain, 1932. He was made battalion chief in 1939 and was assigned as drill master. In October, 1945, he was made acting deputy chief and named chief engineer next year.

Speculation was rife yesterday as to who would succeed Murphy. If the chief recommends a successor, some quarters predicted the following would be in the running:

Third Battalion Chief William H. Ronan, 43; Chief Executive Officer Alfred M. Grunwell, 48; Superintendent of Machinery William H. Boswell, 47, who was promoted by Murphy from private to captain; Deputy Chief Engineer Joseph A. Mayhew, 62; Deputy Chief Percy A. Davis, 59; Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts, 48.

Independent Status Given Records Unit

The Police Department's Communications and Records Bureau will be set up as an independent command on July 1, Superintendent Robert J. Barrett announced yesterday.

The transfer from administrative headquarters was described by Barrett as primarily a streamlining move.

The bureau was started after The Washington Post exposed police practice of "pocketing" crime complaints, which resulted in a systematic official understatement of the city's crime situation.

The new records system started partial operation on January 1, 1948. All crime complaints reaching the Police Department now are recorded in the bureau which receives reports by teletype from the precincts.

Major Barrett said the new system has been successful, and there was no longer any reason why the bureau should not stand on its own feet like the Women's Bureau and the Detective Bureau.

No personnel changes are contemplated. Capt. John Agnew is in command of the Records Bureau.

Four Escape Fire In Dwelling, But One Is Burned

Four persons escaped from the burning third floor of a dwelling at 1125 5th st. nw., shortly before 5 p. m. yesterday.

When flames swirled up the stairway to the third floor, Charles Harper, 29, leaped from a window to the roof of a second floor porch and made his way to the ground from there.

Harper went to the Second Precinct to report the fire and then was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was treated for second degree burns to his hand and arm.

Three other pesons, Mrs. Dorothy Claggett, 21, Mrs. Virginia Smith, 25, and Florence Reid, 20, of Baltimore, all sisters, escaped from the third floor by the same route Harper used. They were uninjured.

Firemen said damage to the dwelling was extensive.

Area News in Brief

System of Alarms Opposed by Barrett

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett wants the police to be the first to know if a burglar attempts to loot vaults in the Municipal Center which houses police headquarters.

Barrett made this clear in asking the Commissioners to reject a proposal to install Phonet-alarm equipment in new vaults being installed in the building.

The plan was to connect the Phonetalarm equipment with the American District Telegraph Co. which would then contact police. Barrett said it would be much better to install an alarm system connecting directly with the four major units of the police department in the building, giving them all an opportunity to respond to the alarm.

Installation of the equipment was recommended by the Superintendent of Communications, Herbert A. Friede, and District Disbursing Officer J. J. Krohr. The Commissioners went along with Barrett.

For New Building

Senate Office Razing Job Under Way

The job of razing 55 dwellings on the proposed new Senate Office Building site was begun yesterday.

Capitol Architect David Lynn announced the site clearing contract was awarded to the Ace Wrecking and Building Materials Co. of Washington. The firm submitted the law bid of $8555 to tear down the buildings.

The site, half of the block facing on 1st st. ne., between B and C sts., still is the home of 20 Negro families and six or seven white families.

Lynn explained the actual razing operation will begin on the already vacated street houses. He said that contractors probably will not get the Schott's Alley, where the Negro families live, until about July 1.

National Capital Housing Authority and other housing officials now are seeking replacement accommodations for the remaining families.

The Senate last week voted to delay starting its new 20 million-dollar office building on the Government-owned site for at least another year.

Man Acquitted

Frank Haven, 62, a furniture store employe, was acquitted yesterday by directed verdict of a charge of carnally knowing a 10-year-old girl. The verdict of acquittal was directed by Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court. No address was given for the defendant.

Got $163, Fined $195

Accepting unemployment compensation checks proved slightly unprofitable yesterday to Jimmie L. Howard, 26, a laborer of 119 Thomas st. nw.

He pleaded guilty to 13 charges of accepting a total of $163 this year while he was working and was fined $195 by Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court.

"There are too many cases of this kind coming in here. I'm going to see if I can put a stop of it," commented Judge Raedy.

The Casket Didn't Fit

James H. Lowe, 42, was convicted yesterday of unlicensed undertaking and was sentenced to pay a $100 fine or serve 30 days in jail.

According to Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, the case was brought to Municipal Court after a spectator at a funeral service in Lowe's residence, 2426 I st. nw., said the deceased man was too long for his casket and his legs were doubled up under him to fit.

Sentencing was by Judge Frank H. Myers. Lowe said his license to do undertaking work was taken from him in 1947. His record shows that in 1936 he served from two to six years for grand larceny from a deceased person.

Sen. Pepper Gets Lost

Like the thousands of tourists who visit the Capitol, Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) gets lost, too.

Pepper, who has been on the "Hill" 13 years, got out of a seldom-used elevator on the House side. He started to walk away and found himself facing a blank wall.

"Say, how do you get to the Senate?" he asked.

Someone told him.

F. J. Luchs to Speak

Frank J. Luchs, general chairman of the 1950 Community Chest Federation Campaign, will speak at the Junior Board of Commerce luncheon in the Burlington Hotel at 12:15 p. m. Thursday. His subject will be "Our Job In Building the Community."

Better Trade Group Elects

Thomas E. Reid, chairman of the Personnel Policy Board of the National Military Establishment, said yesterday that if there is another war, there won't be enough manpower to provide both the right fighting skills and the right production skills.

He told more than 400 members of the Better Business Bureau that business must prepare for this emergency now by improving management and organization methods for better use of manpower and skills.

Reid was the main speaker at the twenty-ninth annual luncheon meeting of the bureau, which later reelected Ralph L. Goldsmith of Lansburgh's department store as chairman.

Claude H. Woodward, director of the local bureau, announced that the 1950 national BBB convention would be held in Washington.

Goldsmith said the return of competitive business conditions has brought out some "questionable tactics" in selling, including exaggeration. The bureau thus is becoming "even more valuable" than it has been, he said, in combating these tactics.

Others reelected as Better Business Bureau officers were Everett J. Boothby, vice chairman; Hulbert T. Bisselle, treasurer; R. B. H. Lyon, counsel, and Herbert J. Rich, assistant treasurer. Gerald D. Grosner was elected chairman of the merchandise committee.

Tree-Trimmer Dodges Death In 40-Ft. Fall

An Arlington highway department worker escaped possible death by inches yesterday when he plummeted 40 feet from a tree-top, missed a brick wall on one side, some cement block on the other, landing in a shallow stream.

Roosevelt Andrews, 22, fell when his safety belt broke as he trimmed a tree at 1st rd. and N. Cleveland st. Long Branch is about a foot deep at the place where he dropped.

He was treated at Anderson Othopedic Clinic for a broken right leg and a deep cut on his wrist, and sent to his home, 3000 S. 22d st.

Last January Andrews broke a finger when hammering. Two months ago he was badly burned when someone threw a lighted match into a sewer where he was working.

Theft Charge Against Couple Is Dropped Here

A shoftlifting charge against Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Crown of Derwood, Md., was nolle prossed yesterday in Municipal Court. According to the United States attorney's office, the dismissal was ordered after the couple were fined $50 in Juvenile Court for contributing to the delinquency of their 13-year-old son, in connection with the shop lifting.

The husband, wife and child were arrested in Sears Roebuck & Co., Wisconsin ave. and Albemarle st., with $42 in allegedly stolen goods, according to the charges.

Boy Drowned While Wading In Anacostia

Francis Thomas, jr., 14-year-old Randall Junior High School pupil, yesterday was drowned when he stepped into a depression while wading in the Anacostia River just upstream from South Capitol st. bridge.

Francis

Efforts of a 13-year-old companion and a group of other boys swimming near by to save the boy proved futile and his body was recovered by Harbor Police a short time after the drowning, which occurred at 2:30 p. m.

Nearby swimmers threw an inflated inner tube toward Francis as he bobbed up three times, but it was futile, police said.

Harbor police said it was possible at that point to step from a 3-foot level down to a 15-foot level and that there were huge holes in the river bottom caused by sand dredges. Docks of the Smoot Sand and Gravel Co. are situated nearby.

Francis lived part of the time with an aunt, Miss Lilian Johnson, 8 M st. sw., and at other times with an uncle, Clifton Johnson, 1244 Half st. sw.

Navy Man Killed As Car Crashes Into Phone Pole

Navy Chief Petty Officer Leonard H. Wold, 30, of 22 Galveston pl. sw., was killed instantly early yesterday in an automobile accident near the Patuxent Naval Air Station rd.

The Associated Press reported that his car went out of control for some unexplained reason and crashed into a telephone pole on Route 5, about 3 miles north of the Naval Air Station.

Wold was an aviation chief photographer. Richard L. Scott, 36, of 609 Oakwood st. se., also an aviation chief photographer, suffere minor injuries in the crash.

Wold is survived by his wife and two children.

Thieves Get $2500 in Loot At Auto Store

Television sets, radios, guns and bicycles were among the many items, valued at a total of $2500, taken sometime early Monday from the Western Auto Store, 3941 Minnesota ave. ne., police reported yesterday.

Thieves, using a hacksaw, forced entry through a barred window, according to Paul Pollock, assistant manager. They used a push-cart, kept in the store for moving heavy supplies, to move the loot from the front to the rear of the store, where they carried it out through the back door and apparently loaded it in a car or truck, police said.

Also included in the loot was a large quantity of ammunition and golf and tennis balls. Pollock said it was the second time the store had been entered in three months.

Another housebreaking was reported by James Cosmos, owner of the Virginia Candy and Tobacco wholesale store, 1907 7th st. nw., who said a cigar box containing $543 was taken sometime early yesterday. Locks on three doors were broken, he said.

Mary Logan, of 1919 9th st. nw., manager of High's Ice Cream Store, 800 F st. ne., reported an unsucessful attempt was made to get in the safe there by knocking off the dial. An undetermined amount of butter and eggs was stolen, she said.

Woman's Bridge Leap Thwarted By Policeman

Police Pvt. David M. Brown, a veteran of 24 years on the Metropolitan police force, thwarted the suicide leap of a 36-year-old woman from Calvert st. bridge early yesterday.

Brown was summoned by William P. Hunt, a cab driver, of 4721 Hamlin st. ne., who drove past the woman at 4 a. m. as she was tearing up identification cards.

Hunt found Brown patrolling in the 2600 block of Connecticut ave. nw. The pair raced to the scene, crept up behind the woman, and seized her before she could jump. She was sobbing, police said, and shouting, "Why don't you cops mind your own business?"

She was booked at the Eighth Precinct station, and sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation.

Seed Trade Association Opens 66th Annual Convention Here

About 1000 seedsmen settled down yesterday to three days of discussion on the production and selling of flower and vegetable seeds in the 66th annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association.

They heard their president, Merritt Clark of New Haven, Conn., say in an opening speech that Federal and State agencies should keep out of the production and distribution of seeds—and confine their activities to research on such problems as why bean plants drop their blossoms.

The answers to such problems, he said, are "far, far more important" than the introduction of a new variety, and they are "problems on which private business cannot afford to work."

Sharply opposed to this view was Victor R. Boswell, principal horticulturist and assistant head of the Fruit and Vegetables Division of the Plant Industry Station in Beltsville, Md.

"In the Department of Agriculture," said Boswell, "we believe that is is our particular job to breed varieties having those new characteristics that cannot very well be develop by private firms."

Clark surprised Charles Hollenbach, 68-year-old Chicago seed retailer who has never held high office in the association, by giving him an honorary life membership in the association, its highest award. Another surprise for Hollenbach came when Mrs. Hollenbach arrived for the presentation, by secret arrangement of the association.

The ASTA sessions will continue today at the Hotel Statler, with meetings of the wholesale packet, farm seed, mail order and associate member divisions.

Citizens Tell Of Recreation Needs for '51

The D. C. Recreation Board, which still is waiting for its 1950 appropriation, last night heard representatives of citizens groups outline their recreation desires for fiscal 1951.

About 100 persons, representing as many civic groups, read their requests to Chairman Harry S. Wender, Superintendent of Recreation Milo F. Christiansen and other members of the board and Recreation Department in the Commissioners' Board Room of the District Building.

Their demands, centering mostly around increased personnel and physical improvements, ranged from construction of two major play centers in the Northwest to conversion of the "odoriferous and offensive" Southwest dog pound to a swimming pool.

"Policies and Ideologies"

Although Wender warned the meeting at the outset that "policies and ideologies" were not under discussion, the problem cropped up at times when citizens suggested mixed use of recreation areas as a solution to the shortage of Negro facilities.

Robert F. Brooks, of the John A. Logan P.-T.A., put forth one such suggestion in an exchange with Wender. Wender had explained that land for the proposed Logan playground was not yet under the board's jurisdiction and that the board could not demolish property on the land until it acquired jurisdiction.

Wender quickly ruled out further discussion of converting white playgrounds into mixed areas.

Most groups wanted improvements of physical facilities, such as resurfacing of playground areas, more and better equipment, drinking fountains, fences and additional equipment.

More Personnel Asked

A request from O. H. Bartlett of the Glover Park Citizens Association for a new fieldhouse at the Stoddert Playground was discouraged by Wender. He said there was "no likelihood of any new fieldhouses for some years to come."

Requests for more personnel also were numerous. In asking for a playground director, the Horace Mann P-TA pointed out that the organization itself had paid for a director's services in the past.

Swimming pools were asked by the Hilltop Recreation Council, the Ivy Citizens Association and the Southwest Neighborhood Council. Charles A. Lewis of the Shipley Terrace Citizens Association asked for equipment for a playground the board hardly knew about.

Land Reported Offered

Lewis said a building contractor had offered a tract of 185 acres around 23d and Alabama ave. se. which the residents themselves would clear and turn into a playground.

Lewis said about 200 children in the area were without adequate facilities and past requests for playgrounds had been denied.

Wender told the meeting that some of their demands would be by Congress. The District is askmet if the 1950 budget is passed ing a total of $1,426,000 for recreation purposes in fiscal 1950.

NAACP Asks Ouster Of Recreation Aides

President Truman yesterday was asked to remove members of the District Board of Recreation "who are opposed to eliminating racial barriers" in playgrounds.

The request was made by the District branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in a letter signed by Stephen G. Spottswood, president.

The letter urged also that the Department of the Interior maintain control over all recreation areas now within its jurisdiction "until all racial barriers are removed by the Board of Recreation."

The Recreation Board's recent decision to continue segregation in District playgrounds "is in direct opposition to your admirable civil rights program," the NAACP letter asserted.

Lt. Hellmuth Reburial Set For Friday

Lieut. George J. Hellmuth, Washington B-17 pilot killed in action over Abbeville, France, on March 13, 1944, will be reburied in Arlington Cemetery on Friday at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. John J. Coady, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Brookland, will conduct graveside services.

Lieut Hellmuth

Lieut. Hellmuth, who was 24 at his death, was born here, attended parochial schools, and was graduated from McKinley High School in 1937. He enlisted in the 260th Coast Artillery National Guard unit in December, 1940, later transferring to the Army Air Corps. He received his wings at Luke Field, Ariz., in June, 1943.

He received the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroic action on his thirteenth mission for bringing his plane back though severely wounded. On his next mission the plane he was piloting was hit. He and four crew members, including the copilot, were killed.

Survivors include his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Hellmuth, and his sister, Miss Ruth Hellmuth, all of 910 Irving st. ne.

Mrs. Mabel Bates Williams

Fort Pierce, Fla., June 21 (AP).—Mrs. Mabel Bates Williams, prominent in newspaper work in Michigan around the turn of the century, died today after a long illness.

Mrs. Williams was born in Travers City, Mich., where her father, Thomas Bates, was a pioneer newspaper publisher. She was married to Carl Williams in 1906 and later edited women's pages for the Scientific Farmer and the Farmer-Stockman which her husband published in Denver and Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Williams and her husband came here 16 years ago from Washington, D. C. The husband and a sister, Miss Clara Bates of Fort Pierce, survive.

Sergt. Forrest E. Fulk

Sergt. Forrest E. Fulk, of Harrisonburg, Va., who was killed in action in France on August 7, 1944, will be reburied in Arlington Cemetery at 2 p.m. Thursday.

His mother, Mrs. Madeline G. Fulk, lives at 1739 Cameron st., Alexandria.

A former Washington Post carrier boy in Harrisonburg, Fulk, 21, was serving with the 29th Infantry Division when he met his death.

He enlisted in the Virginia National Guard when he was 17. He went overseas late in 1942 and was in Normandy with D-Day forces.

John Parker Aylor

John Parker Aylor, 60, sightseeing guide and owner of a tourist home at 307 E. Capitol st., died last night in Emergency Hospital after a short illness.

Born in Madison County, Va., the son of Herbert Irvin and Mary Madison Thomas Aylor, Mr. Aylor has lived in the District for the past 25 years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Maud David of Atlanta, Ga.; seven sisters and three brothers all of whom live either in Washington or in Madison County. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Miss McCord Dies; Noted As Librarian

Miss Julia L. V. McCord, 89, former librarian of the United States Geological Survey and daughter of a pioneer Midwestern family, died yesterday at her residence, 1600 Q st. nw. She has been ill for seven weeks.

Miss McCord

Miss McCord was born on a homestead near Lincoln, Nebr., on September 3, 1859. She lived in Missouri, Michigan and Kentucky before moving to Washington in 1876. She completed her education at Columbian College (now George Washington University).

She joined the Geological Survey as copyist soon after finishing school and in 1908 was named librarian, a position she held until her retirement in 1929.

An internationally known authority on geological literature, Miss McCord was at one time one of the three highest paid women employes in the Government.

At the time of her death, Miss McCord was an active and long-time member of the American Association of University Women, the Columbian Women, and the Foundry Methodist Church. She was a former member of the American Library Association.

After her retirement, Miss McCord spent considerable time in research in Potomac River history and the historic homes of Virginia.

She is survived by her sister, Esther McCord Chapman, an artist, who lives at the Q st. address; two nieces, Mrs. Leonora McCord Waite of the Q st. address and Mrs. Catherine McCord Cattaui, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and two cousins, Capt. John H. Long, USN, and Capt. Victor D. Long, USN.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Lee funeral home, 4th and Massachusetts ave. ne., with the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, officiating. Burial will be in Rock Creek Park Cemetery.

Joseph C. Cardwell

Joseph C. Cardwell, 73, a retired bookbinder, of 1322 A st. se., died yesterday at Sibley Hospital. He had been in poor health since suffering a stroke in 1940.

Born in Philadelphia, he came to Washington about 40 years ago and worked for the Government Printing Office until his retirement in 1940.

He was a member of the Masonic Order, Lebanon Lodge No. 7 and of the Bookbinders' Union.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace A. Cardwell, and two daughters, Mrs. Grace E. Coffren and Mrs. Kathryn M. Ross, all of the A street address; three granddaughters and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 11 a. m. at the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Grace H. Ford

Aberdeen, Md., June 21 (AP).—Mrs. Grace Horney Ford, wife of the commanding general at the Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground, died at their home on the post last night. She was 55.

Mrs. Ford's entire life had Army associations, for both her father and husband were West Pointers and became generals. She was the daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. O. C. Horney, and was born at Fort Logan, Colo.

Her husband, Brig. Gen. E. L. Ford, is one of the Army's top ordnance men and during World War II he was among the chief planners of the North African and European invasions.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. J. R. Brown of Thomaston, Conn., and Mrs. John E. Westberg of Elmsford, N. Y. Funeral srevices will be held at General Ford's quarters Thursday.

Alabama Klansman Says He'll 'Tell All'

Birmingham, June 21 (U.P.).—A Baptist preacher claiming to be a Ku Klux Klan official tonight said he will tell the Alabama Legislature "all about the Klan and its recent activities."

Stallworth

"We don't want to see the return of carpetbagger government or Negroes running things," said the Rev. Alvin Horn of Talladega, identifying himself as a member of the Alabama Klan's board of governors.

He said he would tell the full story of Klan activities to a House Judiciary Committee hearing in Montgomery Wednesday on the Senate-approved bill to remove the hoods from the Klan and similar masked groups.

His mention of "recent activities" was the first hint from a purported Klan source that the organization might be connected with the wave of violence in the Birmingham area in the last month.

Thousands of citizens, representing veterans' and men's and women's civic groups, were adding their voices to the clamor for an end to mob rule.

John J. Playfair, president of the State CIO, denounced the terrorists in a message to every CIO local in Alabama, comparing the "bedsheet hoodlums" with Hitler's gestapo and Stalin's secret police."

Although not one person had been arrested in connection with the beating or intimidation of 11 persons here and in adjoining Walker County, two men were charged in connection with an assault on a Birmingham Post reporter at Sumiton, Ala., yesterday.

Reporter Clarke Stallworth said he was attacked when he went to the little Walker County mining town for more information on the reported abduction of a mother and two teen-age daughters by a mob in white robes.

He named as his attackers Roscoe Fowler and Glenn Godfrey, asserting that Fowler lured him to Sumiton on a tip that he had additional information. The reporter was only bruised in the scuffle.

Junior's Meet

East Central Civic Group Ends Season

A talk by Gardner L. Bishop, representative of the Consolidated Parents League, on the aims of the league featured the season's final meeting of the East Central Civic Association last night at Bundy School, 429 O st. nw.

Bishop said the league seeks to relieve crowded conditions in the schools and to obtain more playground space for children.

William P. Thomas, chairman of the recreation committee, reported on the meeting of the Recreation Board which he had attended earlier. Mrs. Marie Doxon Perry, chairman of the summer camp committee, reported she had collected enough money to send two children to Camp Lichtman in Virginia.

The regular meeting was preceded by a meeting of the Junior East Central Civic Association.

Council Silent On Meeting in Alexandria

The Alexandria City Council met in a special closed session last night, reportedly to consider the city manager situation, but the council members refused comment after the meeting.

"Nothing for publication," said Mayor William T. Wilkins.

Two newly elected members of the council were to have attended the meeting.

The present city manager, Robert S. Marshall, jr., was named last March on a temporary basis. It was more or less understood that after this month's council election, the council would take up the subject of acquiring a permanent city manager.

NMU Locals Ratify Contract in 20 Ports

New York, June 21 (AP).—The National Maritime Union (CIO) reported today that its locals in 20 East and Gulf Coast ports had ratified with "practically no opposition" a recently negotiated contract with shipping companies. The NMU claims 60,000 members in the 20 ports.

Hodges Appointed

The Montgomery County Council yesterday appointed William W. Hodges, 74, of Comus, Md., to a 3-year term on the county appeals tax court. He succeeds J. Ernest Hawkins, who refused to be considered for reappointment.

Teen-Age Slayer Sentenced to Life

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MILTON BABICH, 19, yesterday began a life term at hard labor for shooting to death Patricia Birmingham and dumping her body into the Milwaukee River to silence her about the illicit pregnancy of her sister, Kathleen, now Babich's wife. The 18-year-old Kathleen, who expects her baby next month, said she will stand by her prisoner-husband even though her child would be 11 years old before Babich is eligible for parole. She said she will continue to live with Babich's parents

Lee Appointed To Md. Board

E. Brooke Lee, vice chairman of the Maryland-National capital Park and Planning Commission, has been appointed to a four-year term on the State Planning Commission.

Lee, long-time Montgomery County political leader, was appointed to the non-salaried post by Governor Lane. Lee recently announced his intention of resigning as a member of the M-NCPPC within six to nine months.

Farm Youths Convening at College Park

More than 500 Maryland rural youths who plan to make a career of agriculture gathered at the University of Maryland yesterday for the opening of the three-day convention of the Future Farmers of America.

Judging of cattle, poultry, swine, farm mechanics and crops filled up most of the day. Results were not announced. They are being held up until an awards ceremony Thursday.

The convention is under the joint sponsorship of the State Department of Education and the University of Maryland.

Twenty-five outstanding members will be promoted to the rank of "Maryland farmer" at the Thursday ceremony. They were chosen for their qualities of leadership, club and school activities, and farm projects.

Only 2 per cent of the total members may attain this rank—second highest in the FFA. The top title is that of "American Farmer."

Those to advance to the Maryland farmer grade are:

Howard Warren, Cordova; Henry Holloway, Dublin; Carl Michaels, Dublin; Elliott Burch, Hughesville; Herbert Catterton, Southern; Allison Clement, La Plata; Raymond Gross, La Plata; L. K. Ensor, Sparks; Alfred Freyse, Damascus; Robert Headner, Flintstone; John Hill, Clarksville.

William Huffard, Sparks; George Jenkins, Hughesville; Joseph Jenkins, La Plata; J. K. Meyers, Hagerstown; John Miller, Cumberland; Robert Moore, Clearspring; Donald Morrison, Clarksville; Charles Newcomer, Smithsburg.

Arthur Pickett, Clarksville; Donald Rollins, La Plata; David Starliper, Hagerstown; John Sullivan, Hagerstown, and Frank Thompson, Poolesville.

President Gets Bill for Child Day Care Centers

Congress yesterday completed action on and sent to the President a bill to continue the District child day care program to June 30, 1950.

Funds to finance the centers for children of District working parents represent a compromise between the House and Senate.

The compromise figure, as agreed to by the House yesterday, is $100,000. The House had voted $50,000; the Senate originally approved $150,000—the current appropriation for the program.

African Wed To White Girl Is Outcast

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 23 (AP).—The blind and aged uncle of Seretse Khama told 9000 fellow Bamangwato tribesmen today his nephew had "broken the family waterpot" by marrying a white girl.

Seretse Khama, 27, heir to the Bamangwato chieftainship, married Ruth Williams, 24, a white typist, in London last year. He and his wife are living in London, where he is completing his studies as a law student.

Members of the tribe gathered at Serowe, capital of Bechuanaland, to decide whether Seretse can take over as chief and bring a white girl as his queen.

Peto Mphoeng, the uncle, told the tribesmen:

"Seretse has broken the family waterpot. If he wanted to marry and light the family fire it must be done according to custom."

Speaker after speaker arose from the great throng of black men gathered under the thorn trees. All refused to accept the marriage, although they wanted Seretse for their chief.

Seretse was chief-designate of the 100,000-strong Bamankwato tribe when he defied tribal custom by marrying without permission of the tribal elders.

'Cantankerous Old Gentleman' Cause of Bill

A "cantankerous old gentleman" who refused to sign over his retirement check in part payment for board at the Home for Aged and Infirm gave rise to a bill approved yesterday by a House District subcommittee.

The bill would clarify a right of the District Board of Public Welfare to admit paying patients to the District institution. It stipulates that funds collected shall not exceed estimated per capita cost for the current year.

Welfare Director John W. Tramburg told the committee that a dispute recently with the "cantankerous" patient suggested the need for the clarifying measure.

The subcommittee voted also to report to the full District committee bills to remove the requirement for residence in the District for membership on the Mental Health Commission, and one to grant a license to practice as a chiropractor here to Abraham J. Erhlich, of 1935 16th st. se.

4-H Group Off For Farming In Europe

Thirty-one 4H Club boys and girls from various States left their annual national camp here last night en route to a summer in Europe under an international farm youth exchange program.

They will live, work and play on farms in 10 European countries. The program was praised by Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen yesterday as he gave the boys and girls "commissions" as "grass root diplomats" at a camp session in the Department Auditorium.

Allen said the exchange of young people could do much for international peace through the increase of understanding. Under the program, 15 farm youths from the United Kingdom and Denmark will live on American farms.

Judge Jones Speaks

Thirty-four 4-H clubbers from various sections of the country who have recently reached voting age were honored in a citizenship ceremony held at 7 p. m. at the Jefferson Memorial.

Chief Judge Marvin Jones of the United States Court of Claims, chief speaker at the ceremony, told them that Americans must never grow careless of their liberties, as principles are "inanimate things unless some human being breathes into them the breath of life."

T. Sutton Jett, curator of the Jefferson Memorial, spoke on Jefferson. The new voters were presented with copies of the Constitution.

Women Here Hailed

Mrs. Jessie Fant Evans, a trustee of George Washington University, told yesterday's 4H State Club leaders' conference that the women who came to Washington to help run the Government during two wars knew the "secrets of the world" and have a powerful influence on Washington life.

Bernard M. Suttler, FBI special agent, described the workings of the Justice Department agency to the 4H Clubbers and later took them on a tour of the FBI.

The week-long 4H camp will be concluded today with discussions on citizenship and a candlelight ceremony at 8:30 p. m. at the Aztec Gardens pool of the Pan American Union.

Breast Cancer Film To Be Produced

An animated color film on breast cancer will be produced for the American Cancer Society, it was announced here yesterday.

Financed by a grant from the National Cancer Institute, it is intended for showings at women's clubs and similar organizations, said Dr. J. R. Heller, director of NCI.

Silent, Like Donor

Mounted Moose MostMemorable In Menagerie

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

CURRENT star boarder at Washington's Zoo is a tiny tiger cub who inhales his vitamins avidly, via a nursing bottle. But more appealing to this perverted department is the Zoo's sole inanimate animal—a haphazardly stuffed elk head which hangs, somewhat inappropriately, in the machine shop! In his heydey the forbiddingly antlered beast hung, or at least, resided in the White House. It was the final, and also first, gift to the Zoo from Calvin Coolidge! When the late Mr. Coolidge trekked back to Northampton from the Capital, his accumulation of presidential loot (presumably including those famous Indian war-bonnets) went along, too. Only the elk was abandoned. Perhaps, to the cautious Coolidge, it was too expensive to truck. Perhaps it was a wee bit too sporty for Northampton's professorial atmosphere—who knows? But anyway, with a gesture lavish as his New England nature permitted, he sent the elk to join his more lively brethren at the Zoo.

THE MOST refreshing reading these predog days is a tartly informative little sheet called the Washington News Letter. It's a bimonthly publication, now in its sixth edition and goes cross-country to the chairman and program chairman of every member of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs. Editors are seven smart congressional wives: Mesdames Styles Bridges, Homer Ferguson, Robert Taft from the Senate side, and Mesdames Horace Ellsworth, Robert Hale, Walter Judd and Carroll Kearns from the House. Purpose is to get information back home to Republican women about governmental activities—what their Senators and Representatives are striving for on the Hill. The format is simple, effective and consists of a page of news flashes, articles analyzing current Senate and House activities, Quotes of the Week.

NEWS IN BRIEF, quotes, and, especially pithy comments to Martha Taft, are a delight. From the June issues flashes: BRANNAN OMELET: The Government has stored in a cave in Kansas more than 1000 carloads of dried eggs. Still the Administration keeps on laying 'em! BRIDGEWORK ACROSS THE SEAS: A British doctor says, "Under socialized medicine England has become a nation of weeping and wailing of national teeth." LOCK THE STABLE: If Americans are not dead sure about security of atomic secrets—Americans are going to be dead—sure!

"Our favorite in an earlier edition and said to be a Taftism anent this spring's Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace meeting at Manhattan's Waldorf Hotel: "We used to think of Waldorf salad as nuts and apples but now it's just plain nuts with Russian dressing."

On the Party Front...

MME. DE KAUFFMANN, wife of the Danish Ambassador, entertained yesterday at a cocktail party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Povl Bang-Jensen, who are leaving soon for Denmark. Mr. Bang-Jensen has served as Counselor at the embassy here. He will be replaced by Hessellund Jensen, who is arriving September 1.

The Ambassador was not present at yesterday's party, as he is in San Francisco, Calif., attending meetings with the Danish Minister of Commerce, Jens Jens Krag.

Guests who attended the party yesterday included the Ambassador of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Ambassador of Sweden and Mme. Boheman, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Ernest Gross, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. John Hickerson, Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. John Begg, George Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Muir and many others.

This New Coffee Flavor
Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Dears...it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

It brings out the "angel" in the grouchiest early morning grouch! "What's in it?" people ask! The answer is Selecciones! (Pronounced seleck-see-o-nays.) That's Spanish for selected... some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body . . . others mainly for perfecting flavor.

Yes, the flavor coffees in this mouth-watering new blend are hand-selected 1,—2,—three times!

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
3. Hand-selected before and after curing.

No wonder it's so delicious. Try it! If you don't think it's the best coffee you ever tasted, just send us the unused portion and we'll give you double your money back. Get your pound today! (It's vacuum-packed, of course.) And long live your houseful of early morning angels!

Peruvian Hotel for Children To Ease Baby-Sitting Problem

A MODERN hotel for children, where expectant mothers can leave their youngsters while they keep a rendezvous with the stork is designed to solve the baby-sitting problem in Lima, Peru.

There the tots can romp over spacious lawns or gambol in flower gardens under the watchful eyes of experts. Or they can exhaust their excess energy on the latest play equipment in a large playground.

In fact, play programs and diets for each age group will be worked out by specially trained personnel and dietitians.

Soon-to-be mothers, however, won't have monopoly over this dream hotel, which still is in the blueprint stage. Other tots may enter when their mothers are ill at home and unable to care for them, when there is a communicable disease in the family or when parents need to travel.

Even the mothers who are just plain wornout with domestic routine or harassed with servant problems may board their children at the hotel.

Tourists, too, will be in luck. They can park their offspring in the hotel and see the sights of the Peruvian capital with freedom of mind and assurance of safety for their tots.

Sponsors of the proposed children's hotel are Senora Rosalia Lavalle de Morales, founder and president of El Hogar de la Madre (home for mothers) in Lima, and Senora Lucila F. de Tejada Soranzo.

They stopped in Washington a few days to confer with social agency leaders and architects on their dream project. Now they are seeking the best advice in New York City.

The Children's Hotel is slated to flank a new modern, five-story maternity institution, to be called the "Clinicia Mater Admirabilis." It will cater to families who are able to pay moderate fees for complete maternity services.

There will be a terraced garden on each of the five floors of the new maternity center, where patients may stroll or loll in the sunshine. Rooms will be designed with special emphasis on light, airiness and soothing colors. And of course, equipment and installations will be the last word in modernity.

If present plans don't go awry the maternity center and its adjacent children's hotel will be completed in two years—in time to celebrate the silver anniversary of the present El Hogar de la Madre. El Hogar de la Madre, which was opened in 1926 in Lima, offers free pre- and postnatal care to needy mothers plus many contributory services for their infants.

Plans for the new maternity institution and hotel in Lima have been financed without Government aid. The two Peruvian women declare that, except for limited backing and financial advice from the men, the venture is all feminine. The project, however, has the approval of the Peruvian Ministry of Public Health.

Senora de Morales, who never has had any children of her own, has dedicated a large part of her life to improving the lot of underprivileged mothers and children in her country. She is a sister of Juan Bautista de Lavalla, Peru's Ambassador to the Council of the Organization of American States in the Pan American Union, and of Hernando de Lavalla, president of the International Bar Association.

A widow of a former President of Bolivia Sorzano, has a young son and daughter. For the past eight years, she has worked with the Peruvian maternity institutions. During her stay in the United States, she expects to visit her 90-year-old grandmother in California.

AAUW Study Funds for Year Total $117,529

The American Association of University Women has raised a total of $117,529 this year for fellowships and study grants to women scholars. Announcement of the sum—largest in any previous fiscal year—was announced by Dr. Meta Glass, chairman of the AAUW Fellowship Committee, yesterday at the association's biennial convention now in session in Seattle, Wash.

This amount is in addition to a $40,000 bequest received during the 1948-'49 fiscal year from the late Miss Mary Andersen of Madison, Wis. to endow an AAUW fellowship. Dr. Glass told convention delegates, recalling that the first AAUW fellowship was awarded in 1890.

In 1927 the association set out to raise a million-dollar fellowship fund. This year's total contribution for fellowship endowment brings the figure to $957,211. Last year the the AAUW awarded 27 fellowships for advanced research by women scholars. Applications for the 31 fellowships offered for 1950-1951 now are being received.

Two of next year's fellowships' stipends have been increased from $1500 to $2200. Five carry a stipend of $2000, one $850 and the others $1500.

AAUW branches this year raised funds amounting to $100,734 for AAUW international grants through which students from war-devastated areas are enabled to come to the United States for study. Fifty-five young women studied in this country on AAUW international awards. Arrangements now are being made to bring an equal number or more for the 1949-'51 academic year. One hundred and sixty-six women from 29 countries have received AAUW grants for study in the States since the program was inaugurated in 1945.

Women Have Responsibility To Community as Well as Home

Women should not neglect their families for community work, but neither should they ignore their civic responsibilities while raising a family, Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger said yesterday.

Mrs. Magdeburger, a member of the District Board of Education and president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, was the guest speaker at the annual installation dinner of the Washington Chapter, Women's Association of Allied Beverage Industries, at the Mayflower Hotel.

More than 100 members and their guests witnessed the presentation of an award of merit for bond drive participation in the chapter by Mrs. Lindsay P. Rawley, director of the Women's Division of the United States Treasury's Opportunity Drive.

Incoming officers who were installed by Miss Margaret Adams were Mrs. Julia Kraisel, president; Mrs. Sara Mackenzie, first vice president; Mrs. Bertha Rothart, second vice president; Mrs. Celia Morson, recording secretary; Mrs. Rose Davis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ida Sherman, treasurer, and Miss Verna Northart, assistant treasurer.

The outgoing president, Mrs. Freda Ezersky, in her report, announced that the chapter had raised $2000 at a recent dance for the benefit of Children's Hospital. The sum, according to Mrs. Ezersky, will be used to outfit the institution's out-patient clinic.

Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, secretary of the national board of the WAABI, served as toastmistress at the dinner.

Mrs. Keefer Installed As Carlyle Club Head

Mrs. C. A. Keefer was installed as president of the Carlyle Women's Club at a recent meeting at the home of Mrs. Irvin Hufford.

Others inducted into office include Mrs. W. A. Jarrell, first vice president; Mrs. A. Clarke Slaymaker, second vice president; Mrs. P. H. Butler, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Teele, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard H. Bussard, treasurer, and Mrs. Edward Bussard, reporter.

The new president succeeds Mrs. Mildred Richard.

Prince Georges BPW Installs Miss Bowman

Miss Emma Bowman was installed president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Prince Georges County at a recent dinner meeting held at the Kenesaw. Miss Earlene White, past national BPW president, conducted the induction ceremony.

Others installed include Mrs. Catherine Reed, first vice president; Miss Susie Beall, second vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Parker, recording secretary; Miss Martha Hook, corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Speicher, treasurer.

Two new members—Mrs. Geneva Barbe of College Park, and Mrs. Bertha Tether—were inducted by Mrs. Earla Marshall, who served as initiating officer.

Fashion Group's Final Luncheon Slated Thursday

The Washington Fashion Group's final luncheon and meeting of the season on Thursday, June 23, will feature a program on home furnishing entitled "Gracious Living—Fall 1949." The event will take place on the Washington Hotel roof at 12:30 p. m.

Guest speakers will be Ben Rose of Chicago and Miss Elinor Hillyer of New York. The latter is editor of Design for Living, and author of the best seller, Mademoiselle's "Home Planning Scrapbook."

Mr. Rose, one of the country's outstanding designers of modern fabrics and wallpaper, will be presented at the luncheon with a citation from the Institute of Contemporary Art for his "significant contributions in the development of color and design in contemporary textiles." Robert Green, head of the institute, will make the presentation.

Dinner for Mrs. Keith

The D. C. Chapter, National Federation of Music Clubs, will honor Mrs. Royden James Keith of Chicago, president of the national federations at a dinner tonight at the Willard Hotel.

About a Recipe For Pepper Nuts

Will you please give me a recipe for old-fashioned pepper nuts? We used to make them out West for Christmas, and they were very good, but I have forgotten what I used to know about making them. They use molasses, spices, sour milk, egg, flour, salt, but it's been over 40 years now, and I cannot remember how much we used.

E. A. K.

Here is a recipe for old-fashioned "pfeffernusse," also called pepper nuts or spice nuts. This one isn't made with molasses and sour milk. However, I think the effect will be similar to what you have in mind. Or perhaps some reader can send us a recipe using the sour milk-molasses combination.

Pfeffernusse

5 eggs, beaten
2 cups sugar
Grated rind 1 lemon
3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup chopped fruit peel
6 cups pastry flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon mace
1 tablespoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped nuts

Beat eggs well. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time and beat thoroughly with each addition. Add lemon rind and juice, citron, dry ingredients which have been mixed and sifted together, and nuts. Chill at least an hour. Roll ½ inch thick and cut out with a pfeffernusse cutter, a round cutter about ⅞ inch in diameter.

Place pfeffernusse on a cookie sheet and let stand overnight in a cool place to dry. The next morning before baking, invert each cookie and put a drop of fruit juice or brandy on the moist spot on the bottom of the cookie and bake upside down. The fruit juice or brandy adds flavor and tends to make the pfeffernusse "pop." Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit). This recipe makes about 180 to 200 cookies. The cookies are better for ripening in a tight can with a cut apple.

One of your readers asked for an Italian dessert made with cottage cheese and glazed fruit. Here is one from my Italian cook book. It may not be exactly what she wanted, but it sounded so good it may serve as a substitute. J. C. D.

Cream Tart Sicilian

1 sponge cake (10 by 12 inches in diameter)
½ cup sugar
¼ pound glazed mixed fruit
1½ pounds ricotta (Italian cottage cheese)
2 squares bitter chocolate, chopped
2 teaspoons almond extract

Strain ricotta through wire sieve to refine. Add sugar and mix thoroughly. Add chocolate and almond extract. Blend until custard-like consistency is obtained. Set aside in cold place until ready to use.

Cut plain sponge cake in three layers. Put bottom layer in large round dish. Spread about ½ inch thick with filling. Top this with another layer of cake, then another ½ inch of the filling. Top layer should be sponge cake. Set in refrigerator until this frosting is ready:

1 teaspoon almond extract
1½ cups sifted 4X sugar
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Gradually mix 1 cup sugar with egg white. Beat with spoon until smooth. Add flavoring and lemon juice. Blend with more sugar (about ½ cup) until thick enough to spread.

Cover sides and top of tart evenly. Place cherry in center. Distribute glazed fruit on top to form an attractive design. Sprinkle with nuts and citron if desired. This recipe serves 10 to 12 persons.

Is there any organization in Washington that is interested in high school and college textbooks 15 to 20 years old? We would gladly deliver a number of such volumes, rather than throw them out. Also, there are some novels and biographies we wish to dispose of. I also have a large bundle of used clothing and shoes in good condition and some nice pieces of material suitable for curtains, draperies and cushion covers. W. F.

The Goodwill Industries occasionally has calls for old textbooks and they tell me that they would be glad to have yours. They also rework used clothing and shoes to put them into new-like condition and then sell them. In the process, many individuals are given employment so it is a most worth-while cause. Goodwill will pick up the articles if you will give them two days' notice. You can reach the Alexandria branch of Goodwill by calling TEmple 7426.

Who makes the better wife—the home girl or the girl who has worked in an office? Oddly enough it's the business girl, according to Elaine Carrington, top writer of radio serials, who believes that the girl who has worked can more readily understand a husband's point of view.

"She doesn't visualize him 'sitting around the office all day' while she's slaving over a hot stove," explains Mrs. Carrington. "When he says he's too tired to go out at night, she knows from experience what a hard day at the office means. Of course he must be willing to compromise, too, for that's what a successful marriage is—a 50-50 proposition with husband and wife understanding and respecting each other's viewpoint."

Does a husband expect his wife to look glamorous after her hard day? Our authority contends that if the wife looks sweet and attractive that will be glamour enough for him.

This understanding woman, who solves the problems of three radio families and has a family of her own, gives young people some sound, straight-from-the-heart advice:

"Don't marry too soon," she warns. "Many girls marry the first man who asks them, just to be married, or to be the first one in the crowd to waltz down the aisle. There wouldn't be so many divorces if young people would wait until they feel they are able to take all the difficult moments of married life, and to build a home where both of them would rather be than anywhere else."

She's convinced that movies and magazines too often depict the happy ending as the time when two people walk away from the altar.

"That's only the beginning of the real adventure," she points out. "Marriage is a full-time job which isn't always easy. But by making a go of it both people grow, and find the way to lasting happiness."

And here's a sage bit of wisdom from the author of "When a Girl Marries," among other radio dramas: "Don't try to make your husband over, girls, just try to make him happy . . . then everything will come out all right."

Many a young woman eagerly following the adventures of the radio heroines may think of herself as not doing much, really. But to Mrs. Carrington this average young American housewife is "a courageous girl doing a wonderful job."

"From a girl who has been having a good time and lots of dates, she becomes a girl who is making a home. She is doing so many jobs at once that it's almost impossible to get them all done—running a house, looking after the family, trying to make ends meet, and keeping sweet with it all. She has fully as difficult a time as grandma had—probably more so—and I don't think she is bored or sorry for herself either."

All right, husbands—how about giving the little homemaker a pat on the back?

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Well-meaning friends and relatives seeing a husband and wife growing apart often suggest that having a baby will heal the breach. One cannot deny that such a prescription sometimes seems to work. Usually, however, it's a risky sort of cure for an ailing marriage.

It's increasingly clear that the happiest, best-adjusted children come from homes where father and mother get along happily together. In families where parents are unhappy with one another, or are antagonistic, children are likely to have a rather tough time.

Biological ability to have children isn't enough. Youngsters deserve the sort of parents who have worked out their own adjustment and are emotionally free to give that full, rich affection to children that is of greatest importance to normal, happy development.

It's far sounder advice to urge that those involved in an ailing marriage seek some marriage counseling, which may help them work out their problems of living together. It's expecting too much of a child to think that he will be the prescription to better a relationship that two adults haven't been able to develop satisfactorily themselves.

Ring Elected To A. S. & T. Directorate

By S. Oliver Goodman

Gustave Ring has been elected a director of American Security & Trust Co., President Daniel W. Bell announced last night.

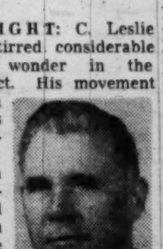
Ring

Ring, president of the Ring Engineering Co., is noted for his large scale housing and office projects. One is the Ring Building in the 1200 block of 18th st. nw. Among others are Colonial Village in Arlington, Brentwood Village, the Marlyn Apartments and Norwood Apartments in Baltimore.

During the war, Ring was on the staff of the National Defense Advisory Commission and was attached to the office of the Under Secretary of War. He was released as a colonel.

Born in West Virginia, he moved to Washington at an early age. He attended District schools and George Washington University engineering school. He entered the building field in the employ of Morris Cafritz in 1920, becoming an official of the Cafritz organization in 1930.

LEADS FIGHT: C. Leslie McCrea has stirred considerable interest and wonder in the financial district. His movement to block North American Co.'s sale of controlling stock interest to a Florida group is snowballing, he said yesterday, with many more shareholders evidencing interest. McCrea, a graduate of New York University with a mechanical engineer's degree, came to Washington in 1917. He was local Frigidaire branch manager from 1920 to 1927. From 1927 to 1936, he was general manager of the old National Electric Supply Co. Since 1936, he has operated his own heating and air conditioning firm. McCrea expects to lead a minority group of Capital Transit Co. stockholders which will ask that the transit firm buy and retire the North American block of stock. He will appear at an SEC hearing on June 28, he said.



McCrea

RAIL REVENUES: The Association of American Railroads estimated that railroad operating revenues last month dropped 7.8 per cent as compared with May, 1948. Freight revenues in May were estimated 8.3 per cent below a year ago and passenger revenues declined 6.9 per cent.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Howard I. Page, executive assistant to the president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), has been appointed a shareholders representative for the company's affiliates in the United Kingdom. David A. Shepard will become executive assistant to President Eugene Holman . . . Martin A. Page of Enterprise Federal Savings & Loan Association, today will mark his thirty-fifth year of service to that institution . . . Logan Monroe of Cleveland yesterday was elected president of the National Association of Cost Accountants . . . Eugene F. West has been named general sales manger of Lehn & Fink Products Corp.

ODD LOTS: As part of a general corporate change, Pennsylvania Railroad is cutting 70 minutes off the running time of the Senator, Boston-Washington express . . . Dun & Bradstreet reports business failures totaled 196 in week ended June 16, compared with 174 in previous week and 100 in like 1948 week . . . James Lees & Sons has cut prices about 5 per cent on its carpet and rug lines . . . Allied Stores Corp. is basing its operations for this fiscal year on an assumed drop of 5 or 6 per cent below fiscal 1949 . . . President E. T. Stannard of Kennecott Copper Corp. confirmed a report that Kennecott will join in development of gold property in the Orange Free State (South Africa) to the extent of 10 million dollars . . . Lincoln Electric Co. of Cleveland plans immediate construction of an $8,500,000 plant in Euclid, Ohio.

ADVICE: L. W. Horning, vice president in charge of personnel and public relations for the New York Central, advised rail officials recently to cultivate good community relations by dependable cooperation with the local press. He said newspaper workers should not be antagonized by erecting an "iron curtain of 'no comment'" when reporters seek information on a subject that constitutes news. Horning asserted a company gains nothing and loses much by "sitting on the facts" and forcing reporters to rely on "roundhouse scuttlebutt" for their news. He spoke to the fifty-third annual convention of the American Association of Railway Superintendents in Chicago.

NEW OFFICERS: Carl A. Taylor and Charles J. Geyer, both of Richmond, were elected vice presidents of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. They will take over the duties previously handled by A. T. Lowmaster, who is retiring as executive vice president and general manager after many years of service. Taylor will be vice president and general manager of the Chesapeake District and Geyer will be vice president—maintenance and construction.

Senate Approves Two Types of FHA Insurance Plans

A stopgap 60-day extension of two types of FHA mortgage insurance beyond June 30 was approved by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House.

One is insurance of small "repairs and improvement" loans, known as Title I by the Federal Housing Administration, used to modernize present homes or aid in building new structures. Lenders are insured against loss up to 10 per cent of amounts advanced.

The other is mortgage insurance on "rental housing" under section 608 of the National Housing Act, which provides special incentives for large-scale rental projects.

The same bill would increase the mortgage insurance authority to FHA by 200 million dollars immediately and allow the President to add another 30 million dollars later if needed.

Correction

A headline on an account of a District Court decision in two loyalty dismissal cases in The Washington Post yesterday erroneously stated "conviction is upheld." The court acted to throw out the suits brought by two employes of the Army Finance Center in St. Louis. No criminal charges or conviction was involved. The Post regrets the error.

Comfortably Air-Conditioned

By Georganne Williamson

FOR an indoor combination of good food and dancing, there is the Carlton's Congo Room. Basil Fomeen, a Russian troubadour looking starry-eyed as he wields his accordion, plays with pretty Dolores doing the vocals.

FOMEEN

The Carlton is famous for its service. I was taken by the sight of three impeccable waiters hovering over a brass lamp, ceremoniously extracting tidbits from a lobster, dunking them in hit butter and passing them to the waiting guests. Resembled a tribal rite, the way they did it.

Chief among the Carlton's assets are a helpful, cooperative manner and an air of relaxation.

FEELING completely beat by the heat, we retreated to the Roger Smith Starlight Roof last weekend, and found it refreshingly cool.

Done in a dashing red and white, replete with flag flying from pole top over the city's blinking lights, we settled in a cozy corner, and realized that most all the tables gave the same removed impression. Somehow, the Roger Smith people have discovered how to make each table an entity unto itself, and still manage to get the most out of their space.

On the roof, Larry Murphy and his three men play for dancing from 8 till 1:30. Their pianist, Harry Orns, takes over the Cafe Caprice during the cocktail hour.

This room, decorated by Winold Reiss as are the roof and dining room, is a two-story fushion of reds—swirling, reflected in all possible shades. Francesca, Canadian gift from the spirit world, tells you your future in either room.

The Oak Lounge will remain open this summer, offering a quiet library-type room to those who want no sign of entertainment or commercialism.

IN THE mood for a tremendous, healthy, well balanced meal, and surroundings as comfortable and wholesome as the food? I was, and tried Water Gate Inn.

Delectable little appetizers, whopping meat courses with especially well cooked vegetables, old fashioned salad bowls, relish trays, just-right popovers, and Pennsylvania Dutch desserts was the gratifying fare.

The rare early Amerian antiques follow the Pennsylvania Dutch strain, with hobby horses and brightly painted wall plaques. Wooden beams and posts remind ones of the place's early days as a stable. Eating on the stone, ivy-covered, porch is coveted for the view of the Potomac just across the road.

Situated at F and the Potomac River dr., it is owned by Marjorie Hendricks (who also has Normandy Farm). It is open from 12 till 9, with tea-time in the afternoon.

Divers Find Sunken Hull

Point Pleasant, N. J., June 21 (U.P.).—Two deep-sea divers saw a 13-year dream of finding $250,000 in sunken gold treasure coming true today.

Floyd Sharp, jr., 31, and William Conway, 25, reported they had found the 51-year-old wreck of the liner S. S. Delaware, believed to have a quarter of a million dollars in gold aboard, and have begun exploring it.

"We've found some signs of the gold aboard," Conway said. "But we'll have more to say about that some time next week."

Sharp said his interest in the wreck began in 1936. Simon Lake, the late inventor of the submarine, led an expedition then to recover the treasure, but ran out of funds before locating it.

3-Vote Margin

Group Kills 'Ripper' of Security Law

By Robert S. Allen

The Gearhart "ripper" has been quietly eliminated from the Social Security law—at least for the time being.

Enacted by the Eightieth Congress, the provision deprived an estimated 750,000 salesmen and other self-employables of Social Security benefits. President Truman made the enactment one of his hottest campaign issues. He repeatedly denounced it and its author, Representative Bertrand Gearhart (R., Calif.). The latter was defeated by Democrat Cecil White, liberal rancher.

Gearhart's "ripper" was voted out of the law by a narrow margin in a secret meeting of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee has been working for weeks behind closed doors on the President's program to greatly expand the range of Social Security benefits. Under his plan, 20 million addition workers would be made beneficiaries. The House committee is still far from finished. Insiders say it will be well into July before the committee will report out its bill.

They are also making no predictions on its final form—except on one thing. This is that the legislation will fall considerably short of the President's demands.

The consensus of the committee is that not more than 12 million beneficiaries will be added. They will include full-time domestic employes, but not agricultural workers. A New Deal bloc in the committee, led by Representative John Carroll (D., Colo.), has been making a determined fight to include farm workers. So far, the group has got nowhere.

The reason for the unpredictability of the final form of the bill is that everything the committee has done so far is wholly tentative. That's why the elimination of the Gearhart "ripper" is still in doubt.

It was revoked by a three-vote margin in a strictly partisan count. Several committee members were absent on this secret vote. Their positions are unknown, and on the final showdown on the bill they may reverse the situation. The same may happe on other tentative features of the bill, some of which were approved by only one-vote margins.

Alexandria Health Plans Outlined

After a month on the job as Alexandria health officer, Dr. Thomas J. McGough yesterday outlined some of his long-range public health plans for the city.

The city's problems can't be solved overnight, McGough warned, but he has already taken first steps on several projects. They are:

1. Rat, fly and mosquito control. McGough yesterday asked the State Health Department for R. E. Dorer, engineer in charge of the Bureau of Insect and Rodent Control, to make a survey of the city. This, said McGough, could lead into other allied problems—such as high weeds, broken-down backyard sheds and debris.

2. Scavenger service. This operation—the cleaning of outdoor toilets for 250 homes—is now coming under health department supervision. McGough said 97 of these families have paid tappage fees and now need only fixtures installed. About 100 others who are near sewer lines will be asked to hook up, he said.

3. Chest X-ray survey. The State health department will send three mobile X-ray units to Alexandria the week of Stepember 19. McGough hopes to X-ray 7500 persons during that week to show the State what the city can do in hopes that the survey can be done on a mass scale next year.

4. State inspectors will visit Alexandria July 11 to help survey needs in food establishment sanitation.

Text 'Probe' Seems Headed For Discard

By The Associated Press

A projected Congressional probe of school books yesterday appeared to have backfired into a House Un-American Activities Committee wastebasket.

Republican committee members denounced it Monday and Democrats followed through yesterday with a prediction the committee will drop it like a hot potato.

It appeared likely that any investigation made now will be by a special commission of noted educators, possibly headed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

Committee Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) said he was at a loss to "know what all the shooting is about" and insisted the committee is not investigating textbooks.

"Purely preliminary steps," he told newsmen, have been taken by committee investigators as a result of complaints by the Sons of the American Revolution. These complaints, he said, made "some very grave charges" involving communism in schools.

"I think," Wood said, "that the educators themselves would be interested in refuting the charges if they are not true."

CAB Grounds Airline, Asks Prosecution

By The Associated Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday revoked the operating rights of Standard Airlines, Long Beach, Calif., and asked criminal prosecution of the company for willful violation of regulations.

The action was the first of its kind taken by the board. It came less than 24 hours after the deadline for applications for individual operating rights under a new CAB ruling.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Wonder If I Could Get A Patent on It?

Each year at about this time (usually after a visit to the Stadium) I vow that I'm going to bring out a new soft drink called "Water" and make a million dollars.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Male Manx kitten, beautifully marked." (Wisconsin 0833.)

"Housebroken mother cat and three cute kittens, 5 weeks old." (Otis 8639.)

"Gray cat must find a home or be sent to the pound." (Greenbelt 6173.)

"Small black and white kitten adopted us, but we can't keep her; the landlord says no. Will deliver." (Shepherd 6369.)

"Large mixed Irish setter, 18 months old; minds well, gentle, healthy and needs room to stretch his legs." (Randolph 2686.)

SOUNDS LIKE ONE OF NATE LEIDERMAN'S PUNS

"If the boss borrows five bucks from you," asks Pete Doyle of 1731 Lyman pl. ne.,

"is that what you would call 'the executive touch?'"

SHORT STEMMED BEAUTY

Hariot Stem invited me to be her guest on "Television Shopper" (WOIC, 7:45) the other evening.

After the program was over, it was my turn to interview her.

I found out that she has big green eyes, stands on telephone books for close-ups because she's 5-feet-nothing, and got into television by a stroke of luck.

HARIOT

Hariot works for an advertising agency, and for a long time has been assigned to write and produce programs for the Hecht Co., which is one of the agency's clients.

When "Television Shopper" was being planned, the agency began looking for a clever gal who photographs well. Hariot was assigned to test the applicants, by running through a bit of histrionic business with them.

The O. Henry twist to the end of the story is composed of one part Fate and one part Hariot.

The big boss happened to drop by during one of Hariot's tests, and immediately exclaimed: "That's the girl for the part." But he wasn't pointing at the applicant — he was pointing at Hariot.

BY THE WAY—

Today is the last day to mail in Give-Away notices which are to appear before I leave for vacation at the end of this week.

Unless I receive your letter by tomorrow, I won't be able to list your Give-Away until I return, on July 18.

My inability to decide where to spend my vacation continues to bring in all sorts of advice—some of it printable.

Roy C. Ward of 3355 16th st. nw. suggests Inlet, in the Adirondacks. He says: "I'll bet Schopfer's Cabins would provide you with some interesting dialog for your column."

John I. Tait of American Airlines says: "I don't particularly care where you go, so long as you go via American Airlines. But if you want my suggestion, I heartily recommend the Mexico City trip." (You've got me mixed up with the man who owns the paper, John; I just work here. My money runs out someplace over Ohio.)

G. R. Cooley of 4317 15th st. nw. recommends that I take the kind of six-day trip from which he has just returned. He writes:

"Captain Knust owns two 3-masted schooners, home port Annapolis. They cruise on the Chesapeake as the wind dictates, and offer the finest of meals. You can swim, fish, play cards, read, sit in the sun, play shuffleboard, or just wait for the next meal. I think the name of the outfit is Chesapeake Vacation Cruises (Annapolis) and I own no stock in it. I just want to pass along a good thing."

On the other hand, a thick package of travel folders from S. C. Wooster, Washington representative of the New York Department of Commerce, contains just the message you might expect.

"Your worries are over. Come to New York. New York has everything."

And Jean Broulik of 3850 39th st. nw. puts it this way:

Take a bus, or take a boat;
Go by plane or choochoo.
Vacation's fine, in any clime,
If someone's there to smoochoo.

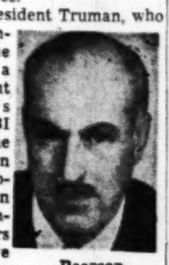
Hoover-Clark Feud Basis Denied

By Drew Pearson

The 48-hour mystery over J. Edgar Hoover's resigning as head of the FBI got stirred up from two separate sources.

One was President Truman, who got highly indignant at the smearing of a lot of innocent bystanders when the FBI reports in the Judith Coplon case was published. Truman felt that unchecked rumors should not have been allowed to get into the FBI files, and for a while he was all for firing the efficient FBI chief.



Pearson

The other source was J. Edgar Hoover's public relations experts who set in motion the rumor that Hoover was about to resign—as a backfire against Truman's intimation that it might be a good thing to have Hoover resign.

Clark and Hoover

Contrary to reports of trouble between Hoover and Attorney General Clark, Hoover never sent a letter threatening resignation, and here is what actually happened between the two men.

Clark telephoned Hoover after Dr. Edward U. Condon of the Bureau of Standards had asked for an FBI apology. Jokingly, Clark called Hoover "Dr. Condon." Hoover laughed.

Clark then asked how many confidential agents he had lost as a result of making public the FBI reports in the Coplon case. Hoover said he had lost about 12, and that the one that was most important was inside the Russian Embassy.

The Attorney General said he had been talking to Acting Secretary of State Webb, who said he was sure the Russians knew they were being watched.

Clark went on to say that he simply could not drop the Coplon case rather than produce the FBI reports because, if he did, every espionage agent in the United States would figure he had immunity. He would know the FBI could not produce its reports in court to prove the Government's case.

Hoover then asked if the Justice Department couldn't take "a contempt" as in the Touhy case in Chicago. There, gangster Roger Touhy had demanded that certain FBI reports be produced in court, and the Justice Department had refused, even though Judge John Barnes threatened to hold the local United States attorney in contempt.

Clark replied that the Touhy case was different from the Coplon case in that Touhy was making an appeal and the burden of proof was on him. Therefore, all the Justice Department risked in taking "a contempt" was a $100 fine. In the Coplon case, on the other hand, Clark continued, the Justice Department was the prosecutor, and if it was held in contempt, the judge would not merely assess a $100 fine—he would dismiss the case.

Hoover said he guessed the Attorney General was right. He added that publication of the FBI papers in court was now water over the dam, but he would be dead opposed to producing the "top secret" document.

Clark said he heartily agreed, and if the judge ruled this report had to be published, then he would appeal to a higher court, and if overruled there, then he would move to dismiss the case. (Since then, Judge Reeves has ruled that this top-secret document was not to be produced.)

The conversation was completely cordial throughout, as have been relations between Hoover and Clark ever since Clark became Attorney General. While Hoover has sometimes differed with other attorneys general, he and Clark have been close friends ever since Clark was Assistant Attorney General in charge of the criminal division.

Facts About FBI Files

Here are two important facts to keep in mind in the FBI-Coplon case furor:

1. The FBI builds its files somewhat like a newspaperman builds his files. A piece of information comes in from one source which means nothing. Then something comes in from another source, and perhaps from a third source, which taken separately mean nothing. But put together, they begin to tell a story. Therefore, the FBI is duty bound to keep unchecked rumors in its files.

2. However, these unchecked rumors should not be made public, any more than a newspaperman can afford to publish rumors without checking for accuracy.

NEW YORK—New York's ticket brokers, now under investigation by the License Commissioner, are banding together to retain counsel to fight the constitutionality of the law requiring them to be licensed . . . Jack Benny's television show this fall will be presented every second Thursday, alternating with dramatization of "Inside USA" . . . Mrs. Wendell Willkie, fully recovered from her auto accident, is back in New York with her son, Philip . . . Jake La Motta, who wants to fight Rocky Graziano if Cerdan is unable to meet him, fought Rocky when they were 12. The fight went on for hours until by-standers stopped it.

Eleanor Roosevelt has a new hair-do. When she ordered it cut as short as it is, the 65 year old lady explained, "It saves a lot of time, drying and combing, when I go swimming" . . . John Balderston, author of "Berkeley Square," is completing a new play. He'll finish it in London this fall . . . John W. Davis, who testified as a character witness for Alger Hiss last week, telephoned Hiss during the House Un-American Activities hearing, and said: "Would you mind a bit of advice from an old lawyer?" Hiss said he'd welcome it. "My advice, then," was Davis' counsel, "is for you to hire a lawyer."
